Bricklayer Athlete Wins Gruelling Race

W. J. KENNEDY.

Outfitting a fast field of 18 runners, W. J. Kennedy, a bricklayer who trained after his day's work was done, won the American Olympic marathon, distance 25 1/2 miles, Saturday, June 28, at Chicago.

Chirps & Chatter

There are two good ideas buried in that scheme of Charles Carr's to pass up hotels next year and have the Kaws live while on the road in a sleeping car.

Jack Johnson's ability to evade punishment and his clever foot-work were principal factors in his desire and his success in getting over the border.

Since Ben Johnson discovered that Joe Birmingham wasn't competent to manage the Naps, the club hasn't won a game. Use your own judgment as to whether it is Birmy's hard luck or Ban's foresightedness.

All the nuts are not confined in the strong wards. There were 21 runners in the Saturday marathon race at Chicago.

Our ideal of nothing at all—inside baseball that produces a victory for the other team.

It is hard to tell whether Cy Falkenberg is being worked too hard or whether it is a natural desire to return to his old haunts on the banks of the Maumee.

Manager Tealey never gives up hope. Little Nap probably uses more pinch hitters than any other team in the league. Young Brown

The mighty Mike bestrid the diamond like a colossus. His robes thundered across the green sward and rankled in the breast of the Iron Man.

Must men suffer such humiliation? They must—that is when they can't get an occasional hit at least in the presence of nine fat a juicy passes to first.

Mike was chesty. He brought his demon sluggers from the wilds of British Columbia and when the husky Meek and Swain and Rawlings had done their worst it was all off with Tacoma. Score, 7 to 2.

Why even the venerable and once idolized Danny Shea rapped the sphere for three sacks, while doubles and single swats were to be had for the asking by the "Blawsted Brits."

It was no use. Tacoma had plenty of chances but fiddled miserably. She could not hit the ball. They had things coming in the sixth when Mr. Boatman of Puyallup took pity on them but Mike banished him and put in Fitzgerald and with the bases full and none out Fitz saved the day.

Even the worm will turn, as Confucius once remarked. For instance, the Pirates vary the monotony by winning a game with a margin of one run.

An expert informs us that the Tigers will be a strong team by the time August arrives. Therein they differ from the Giants, who show their greatest strength in December.

SPOKANE, July 4.—Portland found its batting form yesterday and drove Kraft from the mound. When the smoke cleared away Portland had tallied five runs as against Spokane's four tallies.
