

Just Beginning to Live at 56

The governor of Indiana is 56 years old, yet by his own admission he's just beginning to live—all the rest of his time he was only existing.

For Governor Sam—Sam Ralston, you know—is taking his first vacation!

Kind you, we've not a word to say against the chap who's so hard up he can't afford a vacation, but even a trip once in a while to the old homestead, a camp-out in the back yard or a picnic by lake, ocean or creek. It's the tragedy of our time that there are such folks, by the hundreds and thousands; the galley slaves of want, who have to pull to the limit of their strength each minute, merely to keep afloat.

But Governor Sam isn't in that category. When not doing politics he's a banker, with a wad. Long ago, had he wanted to, he could have found out what the wild waves were saying. Why didn't he?

We don't want to be unfair to Governor Sam, but the chances seem to be that he thought more of money and property and of piling up things than he thought of the immortal soul within him. If that's the right guess, here's hoping that his fort-night down on the Massachusetts coast, where the Atlantic billows roll and the 'skeeters sing and prey, will convince him what a sad mistake he's been making all these arid, humdrum years.

Not take a vacation when you can? What earthly excuse is there for denying so reasonable a call of nature?

Congressmen talk of expelling McDermott of Illinois, considerably mentioned in connection with the "insidious lobby." We don't gather whether he is to be made "a horrible example," or just a common "goat."

McCall, Tammany's man for mayor of New York, declares against extravagance and high tax rates. We think we see the tiger kitty cutting down the supply of cream.

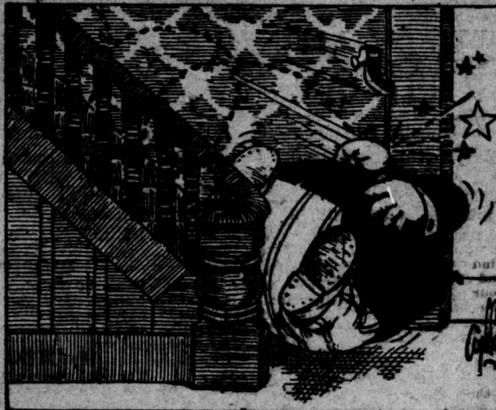

"New York Will Demand Thaw," is a newspaper heading. Beats all what weather they have back there. Last week they were cussing the heated spell.

Dead silence by beautiful Inez Milholland ever since she married that Dutchman.

Maybe some of the ladies think that controlling a man's rights is just as good as having them.

Our new ambassador to Germany expresses doubts of his ability to live on his salary of $17,500.

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

Lord Ballyrot in Slangland

I managed to converse one day, old chap, with the engineer of a swift steam train. His answers to my questions were both interesting and informative, and when I asked him by what means he ascertained whether or no there was danger in front he enlightened me in this fashion:

"You see, Jack, when we pipe a cranberry gim up the streak of rust, he hisses down to tiptoe and the rate of three yards an hour. The glow that looks like the south end of a ketchup bottle means, rein up, there's something worse than a grasshopper on the track. But when we get that little old creme de menthe signal, say, we jus bore a hole in the climate and leave our shadow limping on a hand car. We're hep that everything's all to the hector when we get that Erin Go Bragh orb."

IN THE EDITOR'S MAIL

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 29, '13 Editor Tacoma Times, Tacoma, Wash. Dear Sir: A few days ago I called your attention to the attitude of the local Telephone company to new citizens, and inasmuch as they have changed their attitude, and put in a phone for me immediately, I want to take this opportunity to inform you. Yours very truly, H. M. TINKER.

Our Showing of Heaters Is Ready for Your Inspection

With the most complete line of heaters in the city and with prices ranging up from $2.25, our showing of wood and coal heaters is ready. Already we begin to feel the need of a heater these cool mornings and evenings. We have increased the force in our stove department, and are now ready to serve you. Our stove business last year was 25 per cent. greater than our record of the previous year, and we anticipate a corresponding increase this year over last year's business. Our prices are the lowest that honest business methods permit, our goods the best for the money, and our service prompt and efficient. Buy your heater now and get full use of it. Buy it before our big rush begins. If you haven't all cash now—that's all right. Our "Easy Payment Plan" will set up the heater in your home, and you can pay the balance later.

AT THE TACOMA MAIL ORDERS FOR "EVERYWOMAN." The advance sale of seats for Mr. Henry W. Savage's production of "Everywoman" is conducted on different lines than any sale held at the Tacoma theater, in the fact that the mail orders take precedence over the regular box office sale held at the theater one day ahead of the performance.

AT THE PRINCESS Although they are presenting "Over Night," a clever farce, this week with unusual effect, the Princess players are working like mad on their next week's production of "Kindling." This play was put on by Margaret Illington and scored tremendously.

PANTAGES Scotch music furnishes a lively feature act at Pantages theater this week. Bernie's Five Musical Lassies, Scotch girls with remarkable talent, are attracting more than ordinary attention. The entire bill is replete with good musical and comedy acts.

MELBOURNE Readers of Poe's famous stories will be much interested in "The Death Pit" film, which is to be shown at the Melbourne theater Sunday. This film is a marvelous production in tragic and imaginative detail, rivaling in some respects even Dante's immortal work.
