Mr. Rupp Hasn't Got the Idea

The trouble with W. A. Rupp, republican state chairman of Washington, and other advocates of amalgamation of the progressive and republican parties, is that they do not understand the basic differences in principles between the two.

To the republicans, the change in rules of representation at the national convention is an end in itself.

To the progressives, it is merely a means to an end—a means to the effort to bring about greater social and industrial justice.

It is idle for Rupp to cite Washington as an example of republican progressiveness. He knows that progressive legislation in this state was obtained in spite of the hide-bound republicans, not by their aid.

The eight-hour law for women was fought for in two sessions.

Senator Campbell, now a progressive, introduced it. Ed Sims, Dr. Beach and the other other good republicans who have remained loyal to the G. O. P., fought it. The initiative and referendum was fathered and championed by Governor Teats, Hugh Todd, Senator Landon—and none of them are republicans today.

The republicans of today are those who fought against these measures.

The workmen's compensation act was fathered by Congressman Falconer and Governor Teats, both of them progressives, not republicans.

It was Speaker Taylor and other faithful republicans who defeated the first aid provision in that law. It was the strict republican party vote which defeated the first aid in the last session.

No, Mr. Rupp, you have not grasped the big idea—the real difference between the two parties.

When the republicans are ready to adopt the progressive principles, the progressives will welcome them into the party.

It's time to start saving up for your Thanksgiving turk. They're going up.

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

PAY DAY, YOU KNOW.

"What are you digging for?" asked the bystander. The workman looked up. "Money," he replied. "Money!" ejaculated the amazed wayfarer. "And when do you expect to strike it?"

FOLLOWING ORDERS.

The teacher of a large class sent one of her scholars to buy a pound of plums from a fruit-vender outside, and as she handed the little boy a nickel said: "Be sure, Willie, before buying the plums to pinch one or two just to see that they are ripe."

An altercation arose between a farmer and a so-called expert in agriculture. "Sir," said the expert, "do you realize that I have been at two universities, one in this country and one in Germany?" "What of that?" demanded the farmer, with a faint smile. "I had a calf nursed by two cows, and the more he was nursed the greater calf he grew."

"What Happened to Mary" is Relief from Problem Plays

"What Happened to Mary" is not a mystery-play, even though the name might imply this thought. It is a simple, touching story, told something in the style of Deanna Thompson's popular "Old Homestead." It has love and pathos and humor, and is so distinctly different from the grist of modern sociological and problem plays of the present day that it is said to be a genuine relief.

A PERTINENT EXPLANATION

One of our good old friends came in the other day and said he had been told that the reason we were selling new player pianos at such low prices was that they were of the rubber-tubed variety. Nothing could be further from the truth.

When you come here to examine a player piano, insist on the salesman showing you the metal tubes and be satisfied with no other. As we've repeatedly stated, we have no inferior pianos to sell, even though we're selling high grade pianos at prices as low and lower than Tacoma people have been regularly paying for inferior pianos.

It'll be worth money to you to investigate the wonderful possibilities in this big closing out.
