The annual dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Mohr following the completion of inventory by the Henry Mohr Hardware company was given last evening coincident with the 54th birthday of Mr. Mohr. At the conclusion of the dinner, a birthday cake, with lighted candles, was placed before Mr. Mohr. After speeches by Mr. Mohr and Mr. Miller, the company adjourned to the living room and spent an enjoyable evening with cards, music and conversation. Those present at the dinner were: Henry Mohr, president; Theodore Miller, vice president; Jas. A. Pleasants, secretary; Wm. Pickert, E. Harbor, H. D. Coffey, Miss Anna Hanson, J. C. Hanes, Ray R. Bolin, Ernest Anderson, David Hansen, Oral Sloat, Canrad Feuerstein, Tony Lapore.

The Woman's clubs of Tacoma are being made the center of education respecting the new civil service amendments that will be up before the voters next spring. Yesterday afternoon speakers addressed the members of the Y. W. C. A., the Presidents' council and the Woman's club. J. S. Ellsworth, L. J. Muschek and Dudley Eshelman are doing the talking.

The Y. W. C. A. annual meeting takes place January 27.

Honoring Dr. George S. Innis of Hamline university, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Rich will entertain at their home on North Junett street this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Hoffman are visiting their son in California.

Saturday afternoon Miss Mignon Fleetwood will reopen her dancing school for children at her home on North I street.

Cards and dancing took up the evening when Miss Luch Lee entertained Tuesday evening at the home of her parents, 2901 North 21st street.

The first meeting of the year of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society was held yesterday afternoon in the church parlors. The winners of the recent contest were given a dinner by the losing side.

Over 20 guests played cards at the home of Miss Anna Langlow Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rhodes leave soon for an extended trip to the east.

Because of the Commercial club election next Monday the Ladies' Musical club have postponed their musicale January 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herald, whose recent marriage caused a surprise to their friends in Tacoma, have returned from San Francisco.

CYNTHIA GREY'S LETTERS

Dear Miss Grey: I am a young girl of 22, and come to you for your opinion, and that of the public.

I have gone to public dances since I was 16. Of course, I am well acquainted with the young men who go to those dances, and the longer I go the more disgusted I get with them.

I have tried to break away and go to private dances; but when I do the young people treat me as though I wasn't anything. I am a good girl and always will be; but the question is, why does nearly everybody think a girl who goes to public dances isn't of much account, and the supposed to be good people try to kick her down when she goes to them?

B. R. O.
A.—A young person is judged by the company he, or she, keeps, and you, who have attended the public dance for years, confess that you are disgusted with the young men you have met there. Now, I believe you are a good girl. Many a good girl, or boy, does attend the public dance hall; but when they do they are judged by those who attend who have not learned to live honorable lives.

There ARE good people who will treat a girl right who is trying to improve herself; but with those who do not I would advise her to be charitable, for to a degree she has brought this judgment upon herself.

ment upon herself, and only by persistent right association can she overcome it. If she in turn judges the supposed good people, has she not become as wrong in her view as they?

Dear Miss Grey: Will you please tell me what to do? I am a young man of 22 and she is a nice girl of 23. We have known each other for about four years, and have always been harmonious. I was always welcomed by her parents, who were very good to me.

Some months ago I left New York. Circumstances did not allow me to see her before leaving; but I wrote her many letters and cards. In one letter I asked her if she would wait for me until I have a better position here and then marry me.

About a month later I received the answer that I don't know each other long enough to be even engaged, and that she is keeping company with another young man. I wrote a few more good letters, but have not heard again. What do you advise me to do? Thanking you.
SOMEONE.

A.—By making a strenuous effort could you not have seen the girl before you left for the Pacific coast? The average girl, had she been leaving her lover for so long a distance and time, would have MADE a way to see him. If you truly could not, have you explained the reason to her? If not, I would advise you to do so. If you have, I see nothing for you but to abide by her decision.

Dear Miss Grey: How much education must a girl have if she wants to get a position in a library—not in the office, but the other departments? What studies must she take up? Thanking you.

A.—The fundamental requirement at most libraries is high school graduation, or its equivalent. There are other requirements, and libraries differ in regard to them, besides changing the requirements from time to time.

If you will call up the librarian or write the Library Board you will get full information.

Dear Miss Grey: I am a constant reader of your department, and find you have a panacea for every ill flesh is heir to.

There is something eating holes in my sheets and mattress. I cannot find them, although I have diligently sought them. In your wonderful knowledge can you give me a remedy for their extermination? If so, I will forever be your debtor.
ANXIOUS.

A.—I really couldn't risk losing your good will and friendship by doing that. You see it is this way with little unseen things that eat holes in bed clothing. Each class has its peculiarities as to what it likes to eat, just as different nationalities have their favorite dishes. Man in his great wisdom has discovered at least one thing each class is fond of which will prove fatal to them if eaten. But, the poison that will kill one specie will cause another to thrive.
Recommending a remedy for one of these classes "sights unseen," as it were, would be worse than buying a "pig in a poke," for in that event I would have myself to blame. In this case you would blame me, for I might recommend just the thing that would cause your unseen annoyance to thrive and multiply.
First, find the troublesome cause, and I can probably give you an exterminator.

Dear Miss Grey: I see by your answers that you know everything, so please tell me where a young man can learn to be a moving picture operator, and how he can join the union. Thank you.
A STEADY READER.

A.—Inquire of the secretary of the local union of moving picture operators.

AT THE TACOMA

Lovers of vaudeville can't help being delighted with the Alice Lloyd show at the Tacoma last night and scheduled for another performance tonight. While Alice herself shows up better in vaudeville than musical comedy, she has a number of very high class supporting acts.

The Cowboy Minstrels, one of the finest singing quintets here in many a day, probably scored the biggest hit of the evening, but Frank Fogarty and his Irish services, Sarah Vernon in her jodeling, the Spanish dancers, and Mr. Craig, the violinist, were not far behind. "Hallice" scored heavily in her songs, and gave full measure.

The closing feature, the Danse Revue, with its X-Ray dance and the rest of it, proved highly entertaining. A feature of this act was Colonel Marc Diamond, 76, and Miss De La Ware, 67, who tango like youngsters.

The Confessions of a Wife

CHAPTER XLVI.

"I shall begin at the beginning," said Kitty. "You know, Madge, I have always wanted to marry a man who had money. I was always tired of seeing my mother worry and work to get things for me that I might have the pleasures of other girls."

"You used to say, Kitty, when we were in school together, that it was just as easy to fall in love with a rich man as a poor one."

"Yes, I know," continued Kitty, without a smile. "I thought I was in love with a good many of the boys you and I used to know, but I always asked myself when they proposed to me: 'Do you care enough to work as your mother did for a poor man?' and I found I did not."

"All the while, Madge, I wanted a good time—the pretty clothes—the flowers—the music—the admiration that was given a pretty girl. And then—once day I met Will Tenney. I was invited to a motor party and was given a seat beside him in his wonderful seven-passenger car. IMMEDIATELY I KNEW HE WAS THE MAN."

"Are you sure, Kitty dear, the 'wonderful motor' did not have something to do with that knowledge?" I asked.

"It might," she answered honestly, "but I was greatly interested in him and so he was with me. No one told me he was married—indeed, I did not know it until weeks afterward, when he said one day: 'God forgive me, Kitty, I love you!' I asked him why he wanted to be forgiven and then the whole story came out."

"That dog-in-the-manger wife of his does not want him for herself, but she is determined that no other woman shall have him. She will not divorce him, neither will she give him reason to divorce her, and here I am with the love and everything else that I have wanted all my life just out of my reach."

"When Will told me he was married I determined not to see each other any more, but Madge, you might as well tell the water in the brook not to run toward the river."

"I LOVE him, Madge, and he LOVES me. What shall I do?"

I answered very truthfully: "I am not going to give you the conventional advice, for you probably would not take it, but I am going to tell you what I think I would do under the circumstances. I would try and reason it all out and I hope I would be big enough to choose the right. But, outside the right or wrong, would you be ish any more." "I am not so sure," answered Kitty, with a sigh. (To Be Continued Tomorrow.)
