Outbursts of Everett True

A SPICY REPORT.

"Excuse me, Rufus, I took you for a cinnamon bear."
 "Well, nex' time yo' shoot, white man, smell mah breath. Yo' won't smell no cinnamon—cloves is what yo'll smell!"

JOB FOR THE DOVE.

Dove of Peace—Where are you taking that one?
 The Stork—To the Jones.
 Dove of Peace—All right, I'll drop around there when they come to change the name for it.

BY JIM MANEE.

She's here and there and everywhere,
 Throughout a monstrous store,
 She slaves for wages all day long,
 At night her bones are sore.
 It's cash girl this and cash girl that,
 The name becomes a pest.
 Some law should say that now and then,
 The girl must get a rest.
 P. S.—"Oh, gee, Mamee, we've got to work tonight, too!"

HE SHOULD WORK

The Wife—Why don't you hustle up a job? I've supported you ever since we were married.
 Mr. Neversweat—I know you have. In fact, work is beginning to look effeminate to me.

SADLY FOOLED

He was one of the smart men who like to show their cleverness.
 "See me make him look small," he said, as the beggar approached. Then he listened solemnly to the tale of hard luck.
 "That's the same old story you told me last week," he said, when the vagrant had finished.
 "Is it?" was the reply. "Praps I did, p'raps I did," he admitted, "but I'd quite forgotten meeting you for the moment. I was in jail last week, and there was such a lot of us, you see."

WHO GOT THE $5?

Blinks—Well, so long! I owe Brown $5 and must go around and pay him!
 Jinks—I'll go with you! Brown owes me ten!

THE TRIBUNAL.

"Are you really going to marry Harold?"
 "I don't know what to say. All the girls in my class read his letters."
 "Well?"
 "Eighteen of them think him a dear, and nineteen say he's a dub."

A MYTH! SURE.

The dealer in antiques was showing an old violin to a probable buyer.
 "Yes," he said, "that is of historical interest; that is the identical fiddle Nero played while Rome was burning!"
 "Oh, that is a myth."
 The dealer agreed, saying:
 "Yes, it is; and Myth's name was on it, but it has got worn off."
