WE COULDN'T WHIP BEAVERS

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 4, 1914.

Dear Fellow Fans: Just a line to let you know that Russ Hall got here with his crew all right. Also that the crew was so inflated with self-pride from that long bunch of winnings in Tacoma that it forgot it was up against the leaders of the league yesterday. Oh, sure, we got trimmed to the tune of 4 to 1, and it was mostly the Tigers' fault, too.

This fellow Harstad who pitches for Vancouver is a great boy. We got only two little hits off him in eight innings, and we never got a man on second. But that wouldn't have been so bad if McGinnity had been in trim, or the Tacoma gang had been working together properly. Mac gave 'em seven hits and then consented to be yanked out and let Oscar Jones relieve him in the eighth inning. Oscar allowed one more little hit, and the Tigers slipped across a run in the ninth, after getting two skinny singles, but the game was hopelessly lost.

Tacoma made three errors in the first part of the game, allowing the Beavers' first three runs, but tightened up later, and I felt sorta proud of them even if they did come out at the little end of the horn. Here's hoping we do better.

Yours,
THE OLD FAN.

MAISEL, NEW YORK YANKEE, IS WONDER STEALS MORE BASES THAN BIG STARS INSTINCT RULES HIM IN HIS WORK

Two pictures of Fritz Maisei, sensational base thief of American league.

BY HUGH FULLERTON

Fritz Maisei, the diminutive third baseman of the New York Yankees, is a sensation in the American league as a base runner.

Maisei has passed Ty Cobb, Clyde Milan, Eddie Collins and the other famous base runners of the league. More than that Maisei is destroying all the accepted percentage of successful base stealing. He is on the bases many fewer times than are his rivals for the honors, yet leads them in actual number of stolen bases.

Calls the Turn
I watched Maisei on the bases. He has speed, and spryness, is a quick starter, and a speedy runner and a clever slider, and is hard to touch. He gets his stride at the first jump. I was watching him with Benz pitching. Benz has achieved the Walsh balk motion and is a hard man to get away against. Twice he and Maisei jockeyed, and twice Benz threw the ball to first. Then he pitched once and Maisei stood still. On the next ball

Maisei took a jump even before Benz started to wind up, was 20 feet down the line and at top speed before the ball was on its way to the plate and in spite of a good throw he stole the base by five or six feet.

After it was over I went to Maisei to find out how he did it. "I called the turn on him," he remarked. "I saw he was going to pitch and got the jump on him."

"How did you know?"
"I don't know—something he did, some move—I don't know, anyhow I saw he was going to pitch."

It was useless, so I appealed to Chance.

"He is the cleverest base runner in the league," said Chance. "When I got him he wasn't doing it. I urged him to run. He made an awful mess of it for a time. He wasn't trying to think what the right thing to do was, but to think what the manager might want him to do. I told him to go ahead and use his own head, and run when he thought he ought to run. From that day on he was a great base runner."

ARE YOU BUILDING A MINIATURE AUTO FOR THE RACES? E. H. PENDLETON, MANAGER OF THE RACES, WRITES AGAIN PICTURE SHOWS SIMPLEST WAY TO MOUNT YOUR ENGINE

PLATE N° 3

MOST SIMPLE WAY of SETTING ENGINE

DESIGNED BY E. H. PENDLETON

In the two previous articles, Mr. Pendleton has shown the boy-builders of miniature racing cars just how to construct the frames and springs, the axles and steering apparatus. In this article he tells how to mount the engine on the frame. Tomorrow he will tell how to finish up your machine. Mr. Pendleton has gone East to buy motors for the boys, but Homer Loudenslos, the boy builder, is at the Olympus hotel and will gladly instruct any boy who wants more information regarding the construction of a machine.

BY E. H. PENDLETON

My Dear Boys: Plate number three shows you the simplest way to mount a motor on the frame. By this method you will see that the engine is belted directly to the rear wheel without the use of a jack shaft or any gearing.

The reduction or the difference in the size of the two pulley wheels should be about one to four or in other words the driving pulley on the rear wheel should be just four times larger than the pulley wheel on the engine, unless you have a Thor engine or one that is geared on the inside, then you will have to find out what that gear is and make your outside reductions accordingly.

I just want to call your attention to the method of finding out just how to set the angle in your steering rods so the front wheels will steer right in going around a corner. You know that if you make the rods come out straight you would not have the proper length tie-rod between them and your wheels would not track right.

Now to make this correct drive a tack under your rear frame cross member and tie two pieces of string to it. Now draw each one through to the front and tie to the top of the bolt that holds your front knuckles on, just as you see the dotted lines in the drawing. This line will give you the right direction to bend the rods.

Be sure that your front wheels are set so that the front of the tires are one quarter of an inch closer together inside measurement than the back of the same wheels, in other words the front wheels toe in just a quarter of an inch.

Yours truly,
"E. H. P."

THANKS!

Besides hanging out Tacoma-made cigars to all the fans at Athletic park Sunday, the Cigar Makers' union of Tacoma, which had charge of the day's game, Sunday sent around to the Times' sporting editor a souvenir box, guaranteed to breed sport inspirations daily. All we can say is, that we're sorry the cigar makers don't take charge of the baseball games more often.

If this European war gets any worse we hereby resolve to stay away from the Schwaben picnic this year. Supposing some Bavaria gets one Schoppen too much of the king's wine.
