

THREE OF THESE JUDGES WANT YOUR VOTE

The supreme court of Washington has just made a present of $150,000 to the big fish canning companies of the state. And the money was the people's.

The supreme court judges employed nothing that wasn't exactly legal. And one of the surest legal weapons is delay.

The supreme court judges delayed. After six months, they discovered they had no jurisdiction to try the case of the people against the fish packers. The delay meant money in the pockets of the canners and out of the pockets of the people.

Three of the supreme court judges, Crow, Chadwick and Gose, are now asking another six-year term on the bench.

Soon after L. H. Darwin became state fish commissioner he proceeded to enforce the collection of 90 cents a ton for fish taken by the canning companies.

The fish trust claimed the law did not mean what Darwin said it meant, and Attorney General Tanner, true to his standpat record, held with the canners.

Darwin insisted he was right. The fish men appealed to the governor to call Darwin off. The governor looked up the matter and agreed with Darwin.

So the canners rushed to the supreme court and got out a restraining order against Darwin. The arguments were made early this year.

Months passed and there was no ruling. In the meantime, the fish made their way into cans and were generally shipped out of the state. And property that's out of the state cannot be taxed.

At last, after months of silence, the supreme court woke up. They rendered a decision.

They did not decide whether the fish trust should pay up or not.

They did not decide whether the people should get approximately $150,000 for the people's fish taken by the canners.

But the supreme court did decide it had no jurisdiction in the matter until the case is first tried in the superior court.

IT TOOK THE SUPREME COURT OF WASHINGTON SIX MONTHS TO DISCOVER THAT IT HAD NO RIGHT TO ISSUE THE RESTRAINING ORDER WHICH MADE THE FISH TRUST A PRESENT OF $150,000. LEARNED JUDGES!

RUSS ADVANCE IS UNCHECKED

CZAR'S ARMY PUSHING ON TO BERLIN

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

The war situation, as ticked in over the Times wires from various correspondents, continues practically in the same general condition as yesterday.

The Germans seem for a time to have been stopped by staggering losses in their advance towards Paris. They are resting for a renewed dash.

The Russians claim nothing yet in the German resistance has been able to stop their progress toward Berlin. The town of Konigsberg is reported captured, and other German cities are in panic.

The Kaiser has become alarmed over the Russian invasion, and is hurrying reinforcements with orders to stop the czar's forces.

Italy is being strongly urged by Italian newspapers towards war with Austria, who seems to be preparing for more trouble.

The Belgians have again taken the offensive, and are worrying the Germans near Malines and Brussels.

Four German warships were sunk by British vessels off Heligoland, according to an official announcement.

The Germans have been unable as yet to collect the $40,000,000 war indemnity from Brussels and are holding rich Belgians as hostages.

RUSSIANS MENACE KAISER

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 29.—Russian troops have occupied part of Konigsberg, Germany. The Germans took refuge in the citadel, which is being invested.

A strong Russian force, it is announced, has already crossed the Vistula river. This was the line the Germans declared the invaders would be unable to pass on account of the strong fortifications. The czar's forces are moving through east Prussia and Austria just as the war office had planned, according to an official statement. Apparently the Russians, with a mighty host in the field, are pushing rapidly toward Berlin in spite of the efforts of the foe.

GERMANS ARE RESTING

PARIS, Aug. 29.—The Germans on the frontier are preparing for a fresh attempt to break through the Franco-British allied lines. The advantages already gained by the Kaiser's troops have been accomplished at such a terrible cost that their efforts have completely exhausted them. This is what the French hoped for in their desperate resistance in conjunction with British troops.

REPAIRING DAMAGE
French aerial scouts have reported that the Germans are evidently repairing the damage done to their front. Fresh soldiers are being brought up to relieve those who have hitherto borne the brunt of the fighting. Gaps in the ranks are being filled. More artillery is being rushed to the front.

Behind line fortifications the French and British are awaiting the enemy confidently.

CZAR WORRIES WILHELM

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Orders that the Russian advance into Germany be checked at once have been issued by the war office. The troops of the first line, strengthened by second reserves and Land-sturm reservists are being rushed eastward. An Austrian corps is coming to their support. Austrians are being withdrawn from the Servia frontier to stem the tide of the Russian invasion.

ITALY URGED TO WAR

ROME, Aug. 29.—Under heavy pressure, the Italian government is bending slowly toward war. The people are extremely angry over the reports of massing Austrian troops on the frontier. Newspapers are urging the government to learn immediately what Austria intends to do. That an ultimatum to Vienna is near has been rumored. The foreign office, however, continued to insist that Italy would remain neutral.

BELGIANS AFTER GERMANS

ANTWERP, Aug. 29.—The Belgian troops are vigorously on the offensive again. The war office is extremely active. It is reported that a fresh attempt is about to be made to cut the line of communication between the Germans on the French frontier and base. This development of the renewed Belgian offensive has already forced the Germans to withdraw 40,000 troops from south Belgium to meet the foe operating from Antwerp. The Belgians are reported to be engaging Germans at Malines and it is believed they are about to attack Brussels.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Thrown into a panic by the approach of the Russians, the Germans of Danzig have begun a series of anti-foreign demonstrations, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company. Passengers arriving from Copenhagen from Danzig are quoted as telling of fierce riots there.

MAYOR SAVES MONEY

Mayor A. V. Fawcett today declared for a slashing reduction in all city departments for the year 1915.

Beginning in his own department to back up his argument for less taxes to Tacoma citizens, the mayor in a statement to the city commissioners showed a reduction of $7,193.60 in his 1915 estimate compared with the 1914 allowance. The mayor's department is that of public affairs, health and sanitation.

Shows Big Cut.
"This department asks for $21,782 for the budget of 1915," said the mayor. "In 1914 it was $28,975.60. The new estimate is a straight cut of $7,193.60 or a reduction of 18.5 per cent. Would save $164,759.86."

"If all departments are reduced 18.5 per cent as has been done in this department it will mean a cut of $164,759.86 from the budget of 1914. This would still leave intact the former levy for sinking fund, interest and retirement of bonds. I believe reduction is possible and necessary at this time."

Scarcely Out Of Her Short Frocks, Girl Fights For Lover

Sadie Broadhurst, 17-year-old modern cave-man in heart of city. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—Seventeen-year-old Sadie Broadhurst, petite and shy, and scarcely trained nurse, who was kidnapped by out of short frocks, knows how it feels to be wooed by a cave-man. Carried off bodily by her tempestuous admirer, 18-year-old Charles Bozelle, son of a prominent merchant of San Jose, and compelled to flee with him in a wild 60-mile night ride, after he had taken her from the sanctuary of friends here at the point of a gun, the girl became the unwilling heroine in one of the most daring love episodes of modern times.

Would Do It Again.
But by some inexplicable quirk of a woman's heart the experience clinched her wavering affection, even though the adventure landed her cave-man in jail with a serious charge against him. She has turned like a fury against those who would punish her abductor.

"I think I would do it all over again if he asked me," said Miss Broadhurst while attempting to minimize the gravity of the offense to the authorities, to whom she has interceded for leniency.

Bold Bad Man.
Modernizing the pre-Adamite's methods of winning a mate by utilizing a high-powered automobile and a revolver, Bozelle forced his way into the home of Dr. W. J. Hawkins in the residence section here, where Miss Broadhurst was employed as nurse, held off the family at the point of his gun, and carried his screaming sweetheart to the waiting machine, speeding away into the night.

Charge Murder Assault.
In warding off the girl's protests he fired several shots, one of which slightly wounded the sister of Mrs. Hawkins. It was this which resulted in a charge of assault to commit murder being placed against him after he had been arrested several hours later at San Jose.

Love Condone.
The impetuous suit of her admirer has entirely overwhelmed her crime in the eyes of the girl. That love condones everything, in her estimation, its fury has completely dispelled all doubts as to whether or not she wants to marry her Lochinvar, says Miss Broadhurst.

"I love Charlie," she said, after a talk with him in his cell, "and I certainly will not prosecute him. He asked me to marry him last Christmas and he is Christmas present, but I told him to wait three years—that he was too young."

Witnesses Make Plain Charge Of GRAFT

Commissioner Mills, Chief Loomis, former Detective Captain Fitzgerald, City Detective Frank Geary and two Pacific avenue patrolmen are the men against whom the mayor's graft charges are being made.

This was indicated at the graft investigation at the city hall today. Fawcett considers the inquiry a certain indictment against the police. Officials of the public safety department ridiculed the mayor's evidence and did their best to make light of it.

Probe Vice Next.
Fawcett's next attack will be an investigation of vice conditions, to be held in the near future, in which prominent women social workers, together with many business men and citizens of the residence districts, will testify. And he hinted today that a grand jury might be called later to clinch his charges.

Affidavits Read.
Today's inquiry, which attracted a crowd that filled the council chamber, was confined to questions of graft. Several of the mayor's principals, witnesses were frightened away and would not testify. Three affidavits were read by City Clerk Nicklaus in which direct insinuations of graft were made, and verbal testimony was given by former Police Captain John Forbes and Ole Olson, a half-blind shoe-string peddler, who was recently told by two different policemen that he would have to leave his post on Pacific avenue or hand over $2 graft money.

Special Officer Testifies.
James D. Jones, 2207 Fairbanks street, submitted the first affidavit. Jones reported to Chief Loomis on May 28, 1913, the affidavit said, that open gambling was being conducted in room 203 of the Langlow building, 12th and Pacific. Loomis, he declared, advised him that he "must not see too much," and the gambling den was never raided. Jones swore that he had been solicited by a negro on D street in July, 1912, and taken to a room at 1735 D street.

Definite Graft Charge.
When the special officer remarked that the woman and her companion were in danger of arrest, she replied that "there's no danger. The police won't bother us. We're paying them for it."

On Sunday, July 6, according to the affidavit, Officer Jones found Jacob Otto conducting a dance at Fraternity hall, 1117 Tacoma avenue. Beer was being sold. Jones asked Otto if he were not afraid of being arrested. "No, we have a good stand-off with Mills and Loomis—they won't bother us," Otto is said to have replied. When Jones reported the affair to police headquarters, his affidavit said, he was told to leave the place alone.

55 Got Woman Released.
Alexander C. Bassett, 742 D street, submitted an affidavit that on February 22, 1910, he paid $5 to one Arthur Kuhl for the release of Mary Agnes Linda from the city jail and that as soon as the money was paid over to a certain detective the woman was released.

Expense Account Padded, Alleged James Bachelor, 4706 North Gove street, submitted an affidavit to the effect that Detective Frank Geary had filed a bill for $12.50 expenses on a trip to Hoods canal in search of Charles Frey, a boy burglar, when he only paid out $3.45 as expenses. Bachelor was a member of the party. He said that when he (Bachelor) started an investigation, Geary quickly turned back to the city that he had collected, and tried to cover up his tracks. He also said that Geary had pocketed a gold watch found in Frey's possession.

Who Got the $50?
John Forbes, former police captain, testified that following the raid of a house of ill fame on October 12, 1913, the "landlord's" bail was reduced from $100 to $50 and that the $50 was forfeited but never went to the city.

Wanted $2 From Blind Man.
Ole Olson, a half-blind shoe-string peddler, was brought into the council room. He testified that, while operating a music box on Pacific avenue near 15th, two weeks ago, a policeman told him that he would either have to pay over $2 or "get out." He moved to the Peoples Store corner, he said, and last week another policeman accosted him and made another demand for $2. Olson said that he was poor and did not have the money, so he was forced to abandon the corner. Policemen Dick Filkins, Charles Simmons and Hicks were brought before the man, but he could not identify either of them as the men who had demanded graft tribute.

Loomis Calls Mayor.
Chief Loomis broke up the hearing temporarily by declaring that the mayor, who had given Olson a permit to stand on the street corner, had no business to issue such permits.

"I want to tell you," blazed Fawcett, "that I am in charge of public affairs in this city and that I am the chief executive. I'll manage things as I feel best." Loomis apologized and sat down.

During the last half hour of the hearing Mills and Loomis went over the various charges, denouncing and ridiculing them, but offering no proof in denial of them. The hearing adjourned at 11:30 in the midst of prolonged applause from the audience.

Jamieson! A TRAITOR TO PROGRESSIVES

Richard W. Jamieson is the sheriff of this county. That is, he is sheriff in so far as collecting the rather considerable salary that is attached to that job.

Jamieson, this fall, will have completed one full term in office; a term of two years. He has drawn his wages. He has not done his work as he promised to do it.

Jamieson was elected as a Progressive. He still poses as a Progressive but he is not a Progressive. He has been false to Progressive principles. He has betrayed the Progressive party.

He has appointed deputies who are ingrained and venerated with contempt for the plain people of Pierce county.

So far as his word of honor is concerned, the word he pledged when he sought election as a Progressive candidate—the man hasn't the remotest conception of what this word means; he openly, regularly and recklessly scorns these promises, these honor pledges.

Now he is seeking to be re-elected. He is telling his friends that he is a victim of a plot. He tells them that he is a victim of The Times.

"But I will win in spite of The Times," he said recently. "My orders at Ruston are approved today by a certain group of men. These men will not forget what I did for them."

This is the astounding and insolent statement Jamieson made a few days ago.

He has ignored the voters who looked to him for a square deal, he has deliberately betrayed the whole people of Pierce county. So, when you go to the primary booth in September, don't forget what Jamieson has done.

Don't forget what he has neglected to do. Don't forget what he has refused to do.

Never mind what this monumental bluffer, this prime bunk artist, says; judge him by his deeds.

ST. PAUL MILL DOCKS BURN; LOSS $15,000

Practically the entire length of the 3,000 foot dock and tramway of the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber company, extending out into the harbor from the St. Paul mill, was destroyed today in a spectacular fire that started shortly after 1:30 a. m. The loss will be about $15,000, but is covered by insurance.

Operation of the mill will not be ended by the fire, since the dock was only used for loading ships, and the lumber can be handled temporarily by rail to other docks.

Millions of feet of stacked lumber along the dock and tramway were destroyed or scorched by the fire. In order to keep the flames from spreading to the mill itself, dynamite was used freely during the morning along the tramway. Firemen fought the blaze from both the harbor end and the mill end, assisted by the tug Fearless, which is equipped with fire-fighting apparatus. Origin of the blaze is not known.

Agents Under Federal Jury School Days Are Here

A federal grand jury investigation of Northwest employment agencies will probably result from the visit in Tacoma today of J. Alexander Speak, special agent of the commissioner of labor.

Speak has found that employment agencies in the west are operating on an "endless chain" scheme, he says, shipping workmen around the circuit to jobs that never develop, and bleeding them until they are totally destitute.
