JUST LOOKIN' ON

IT'S REALLY UNFORTUNATE WHEN IT HAPPENS LIKE THIS—

I. Her cheek was like the damask rose
That in some fairy garden grows;
II. Her hair in tantalizing ways
Had crowned her in a golden haze;
III. Her eyes of hyacinthine blue
Held sleeping pools of fire, too;
IV. Her lips wore Nature's scarlet dye,
Her teeth were like the coralite;
V. Her form was straight, erect! No queen
E'er better fit to grace the scene!
VI. But list; we spring it short and terse,
The Poor Gel stuttered something fierce!

THE FABLE OF ABOUT ANY OLD HUSBAND

Ezra Easygink was a Model Husband and he had a Certificate of Virtue from every Sewing Circle and Ladies' Aid in town. He arose at 5:30 a. m., built the fire in the kitchen range, prepared a frugal meal and Toted a Cup of Coffee up to His Little Wife which she Calmly swallowed and then Turned over and went back into the Arms of Morpheus. Ezra, not being Jealous and not knowing old man Morph, didn't care. Then he hurried off to work and at Noon spent 15 cents for his mid-day chuck. At 6 p. m. the whistle blew and Ezra scampered straight home, not indulging in Refreshments where the Other Boys stopped for a Few Minutes. After Ez had chopped the Wood, fed the Chickens, (not the place to laugh), Cleaned out the lye, and Washed the Breakfast dishes, his wife Permitted him to Bite into the Evening Eats. After supper Ez would lapse into a Comatose State and at 9 o'clock Stagger up to Bed. His wife would get Home about 11 p. m. from a session of the Gabfest Progressive Whist society and utilize Ez as a Human Hot-Water Bag!

NEW BULLET WOUND LIKE MOSQUITO BITE
The entrance wound caused by the modern bullet is not a gruesome spectacle. It is small, and its appearance has been compared to that produced by the bite of a mosquito. Often there is but little external bleeding, but this is not to be taken as a danger signal, as might be supposed.

WIFE ACCUSED OF CRIME BUT HUSBAND SMILES

A Story About Dr. Carman and His Wife Who Receives Her Guests in Boudoir Cap, In Spite of Trouble

BY NIKOLA GREELEY-SMITH

This is the face of a man because of whom a woman died, because of whom another woman killed, it is charged. Though the picture was taken just a few days after a woman patient in his office had been shot to death and his own wife had been accused of the crime, the man is SMILING!

THE SMILE

Dr. Carman

Today, even the fact that his wife, Mrs. Florence Carman, is on trial for the killing of Mrs. Louise Bailey, does not sober the smiling lips of Dr. Edwin Carman for any great length of time. This husband, whose wife had installed a dictograph in his office that she might listen to his conversations with other women, is still the jovial, good-natured fellow whose ideal of life is to get as much speed as possible from his automobile, and the gossip of Freeport, L. I., say from himself as well!

Dr. Carman's manner today holds a hint of elation because a woman loved him so much that she is accused of killing for his love. The doctor apparently has entered upon a new honeymoon—a honeymoon with the blood of Louise Bailey upon its face! The sphinx-like woman who is now ever beside him, seems to have acquired a new and permanent value in his eyes. And this strange creature of stone and steel seems to realize and respond to her husband's new lover-like attitude.

There are touches of coquetry in her manner and dress. The day after her release from the Minocia jail she appeared before the newspaper men in her home on the Merrick Road wearing a boudoir cap which did not wholly conceal the fact that the hair underneath it was done up in curl-paper!

From death to curl-paper, from the accusation of manslaughter to the coquetry of a boudoir cap! There is something strange and gruesome about a woman who could present this incongruity with no sense of its awfulness. There is a strange kinship with those grim women of the French

RUSSIANS DEFEAT AUSTRIANS NEAR SAN

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—A defeat by Russians of Austro-Hungarian forces near the river San was announced by the war office today. The Russian infantry and artillery are said to have attacked the enemy's center while the cavalry charged the flank with complete victory for the czar's troops. The enemy lost many guns, much transport equipment, besides severe losses in killed and wounded.

STEEL ARROWS NOW DROPPED BY AVIATORS

One feature of the aerial part of this war has been the employment by both French and German air corps of a new kind of missile, a small steel arrow, which, when dropped from a height, proves a peculiarly deadly weapon.

ENGLAND HAS REBELLION IN SOUTH AFRICA

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Martial law has been proclaimed throughout British South Africa following the discovery of a plot by Col. Maritz's command to establish an independent republic in the northwest of Cape province. Admission that the anti-British Boers are in rebellion came from the official war news bureau. The insurgents are armed with German guns and aided by troops from the kaiser's territories in South Africa.

Kaiser's Men Have Occupied Ghent

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Though the war office did not confirm the report, there is no doubt felt concerning the accuracy of the statement that Germans have occupied Ghent. Maneuvering on both sides showed that preparations are being made for a general engagement along the river Lys, a region the Germans would naturally traverse on the way from Antwerp into France.

GERMANS CONTROL RUSSIAN POLAND

BERLIN, via Amsterdam and London, Oct. 13.—With the exception of Warsaw, the Germans now control all of Russian Poland along the Vistula river, it was officially announced today. This left no doubt that the Russians have been heavily repulsed, and that the Germans have advanced rapidly.

MOVE BELGIAN CAPITAL TO FRANCE

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Arrangements have been completed for establishing the Belgian capital at Havre, France, it was announced today from Bordeaux. The transfer is expected immediately. The outlook at Ostend is considered too uncertain to make it a desirable place for the seat of the Belgian government.

BRAVES WORLD CHAMPS

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The Boston Braves are champions of the 1914 world's series, taking the fourth straight game from the Philadelphia Athletics today in a bitterly contested game, in which Philadelphia had a slight edge on the hitting. The score that clinched the series for Boston was 3 to 1.

The crowd numbered more than 30,000 fans. The game started in a raw, high wind which made fielding difficult. At the finish of the game the Boston fans swept onto the field. A pandemonium of joy followed. Men threw their hats in the air, others cried and not a few fainted from excitement. The Boston Braves own the city tonight.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—"This is the thirteenth, I notice," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, this morning as he greeted newspapermen. "It will be the final jinx for the Athletics. Thirteen is our lucky number."

If Boston fans were baseball mad yesterday they are insane today. As the gates to Fenway park opened thousands rushed onto the grounds and sought out their seats, ready for the fourth and perhaps final contest of the wonderful championship baseball series. Lovers of the game here are wild with enthusiasm, and from the bleachers shouted happily that it is "all over but the celebration."

Although today's game was not as spectacular or sensational as any of the three previous contests, it kept the monster crowd in a thrill of interest. The Philadelphia players opened an offensive game, with apparent orders to rush the Braves off their feet.

Time and again the visitors made hits and landed men on bases, but they could not score. In the fourth inning Evers scored, after he had walked, been helped around the bases, and brought home on a sacrifice. Philadelphia came back with Barry's single and Shawkey's double in the fifth, tallying a run. In the same inning Boston slugged the ball for three hits and two runs, pounded Shawkey out of the Philadelphia box, and cinched the game. Neither side had a chance to score again during the remainder of the game.

Pennock replaces Shawkey for Philadelphia and held the Braves to two hits in the remaining three innings.
