

WHO'S WHO IN THE TACOMA TIMES BUSINESS MEN'S CONTEST

If you want to see what an interest Tacoma Times readers take in Who's Who Contest look in Mark S. Davis' show windows. The exhibits you will see there are a few of the most interesting of the many hundreds submitted in the Who's Who Contest.

The problem, in brief, was to place the Tacoma city's business man's picture published last Monday in the advertisement which it did not belong, into the advertisement where it did belong. Accuracy in preparation of answers, spelling and neatness were elements in the contest, as well as the problem of correct placing of pictures.

NEATNESS IMPORTANT

The contest, so far as the prizewinners were concerned, soon simmered down to a matter of neatness.

For fifty of those sending in answers correctly placed the pictures, and were accurate in the way of spelling of names and so forth.

The judges, who worked Saturday afternoon and most of Sunday, decided the first prize to be awarded to Mrs. Maude Ross Herbert.

Contestants call for prizes. All winning contestants will be given their prizes under proper identification at the Times office. Call any day between 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Second prize, R. L. Sitzer, 950 Commerce st.
Third prize, Miss Theodosia G. Allen, 5064 North G st.
Fourth prize, Mr. Scharp. Mr. Scharp was the first man sending in a correct answer, reaching the Times office at 6 o'clock p. m. Monday, March 8.
Fifth prize, Chas. Townsend, 3801 South Eighth.

A NIGGER IN THE WOODPILE

Everybody thought that the Hicks-Bull Mac. Co. ad had some-catch to it. The trouble was that both Mr. Hicks and Mr. Bull at the last moment decided they were not good looking enough to have their pictures taken, and the contest editor could not induce them to. So, therefore, this advertisement is now without a picture.

C. B. Johnson of the Bostwick hotel lost out because he spelt Peterson "Peterson."

O. C. LeBridde had T. L. Walker instead of T. L. Wright, who otherwise would have had fourth prize.

Ida C. Toner had H. E. Carter instead of H. K. Carter. Marion Emma had the same error.

Lora Blackwell deserves worthy mention, but lost out by omitting "a" in Murray.

A. L. Greshell had Hodds instead of Hobbs.
R. F. Singer spelt Hinz "Hinz," so lost out.
Mrs. E. J. Wilton, like C. B. Johnson, spelt Peterson with an "o."
Beatrice Emma also spelt Peterson with an "o."
Fred Smith deserves mention with an exceptionally artistic layout, but unfortunately spelt Peterson with an "o."

Hundreds of others too numerous to mention made similar errors.

Those who failed will have another opportunity to get prizes, as the Times will publish another Who's Who Contest in a few days.

See Mark Davis' window for the winners and some of the beautiful designs sent in, which may be a help to you in the next contest to be announced later.

MORE GOLD FOR TIMES READERS

Owing to the great interest in the Who's Who Contest, the Times will announce at an early date a Who's Who Contest No. 2. If you were not successful in this contest, watch for the No. 2 Who's Who Contest.
