ROB U. S. MAIL BOX

Using a steel "Jimmy," thieves early today broke open a U. S. mail box at 26th and E streets, helped themselves to the contents, and fled, leaving several letters unopened on the ground beneath the box. The robbery was discovered by Patrolman Hector Campbell at 6:45 a. m. Postal examiners were unable today to tell whether there had been any letters or packages of value in the box. The last collection was made yesterday afternoon, and usually the box is well filled when it is opened the next morning. The government penalty for tampering with mail boxes is a three-year term in the federal prison, or $1,000 fine, or both. This is the first mail box robbery to occur in Tacoma in several years.

He Goes to View War's Effects On Homes of Europe

CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.

Today every correspondent and writer in Europe is trying to slip through the lines into Flanders and Poland—where 5,000,000 men are fighting in the trenches. This is the side of war you are hearing about all the time in the cable dispatches.

But, at home—in Germany, France, England and Russia, 350,000,000 human beings are fighting a war.

FOR FOOD, FOR WORK, FOR LIFE!

ENGLAND is trying to stifle a volcanic labor strike involving 1,000,000 men—daily, hunger comes closer to London's masses.

IN FRANCE war lust has cooled and crepe and taxes have stunned the masses who fought silently at home in sorrow—the battle of exhaustion.

THE RUSSIAN people view with rising resentment the system which will bring a million more husbands, fathers and sons from their cabins in May, to give up their lives for a cause only one in 20 understands!

IN GERMANY the savings of the poor are seized and emptied into the bottomless coffers of Krupp—soldiers are wrecked for their lead and copper for bullets—protests against the continuation of the war ring out even in the national parliament.

WAR IS COMING HOME TO ROOST!

And so at this time—at this crisis when a fresh outburst of the war is about to bring greater horror to the world, Charles Edward Russell, famous magazine writer and economist, is going among the distracted peoples of the war-shocked countries to investigate conditions, to talk to statesman and blacksmith, to question noblewoman and fishwoman, to ascertain what are the undercurrents and to report to the readers of the Times what he hears and sees.

This is the most important assignment of the war. And no man is better qualified than Charles Edward Russell for this task which the Times has commissioned him to perform. For 25 years he was a successful newspaper man. This experience, not to speak of his success as a magazine writer, enables him to handle this assignment as no one else can handle it.

SON OF ABE LINCOLN MUST EXPLAIN LOW PULLMAN CAR WAGE

CHICAGO, April 6.—Fifty years after an assassin's bullet ended the life of Abraham Lincoln, his son has been called upon by the United States to take a public position, and a conspicuous one. The public position will be as a witness before the U. S. commission on industrial relations, and Robert Todd Lincoln will be asked about labor unrest and about high profits and low wages paid by the Pullman company. Lincoln is chairman of the board of directors of the Pullman company. Lincoln has more to say than anyone else about the commerce commission's sudden interest in the sleeping car trust it was learned that each of the 4700 cars in operation was making a profit of $5000 a year for the company. Some profit!

Had Illustrious Career The company cut down this apparent profit by charging off half of that sum, $2475, to each car's annual repairs. One railroad which owns its own sleeping cars found that $350 a year was all that was necessary to pay for the upkeep of a car. However, retiring as he has been, Robert T. Lincoln has had an illustrious career. He was born in Springfield, Ill., August 1, 1843, and as the eldest child in the family of President Lincoln was the pet of Washington when living at the White house. He was educated at Phillips Exeter academy, Illinois State University and Harvard. He was graduated from the last named institution in 1864 and received a degree of LL.D. in 1893.

Ambassador to Britain While a student at Harvard law school he left to join the army, serving until the end of the war as an aide on the staff of Gen. Grant.

In 1867 he was admitted to the bar and practiced in Chicago. He was secretary of war from 1881 to 1885 and from 1889 to 1893 was United States ambassador to Great Britain.

He later acted as special counsel of the Pullman company, and on the death of George M. Pullman, became president. Poses as Aristocrat Since he took up his residence in Washington the capital has known little of him and seen less. He has been most exclusive, he never figures in social columns, never entertains and never is entertained, so far as the public knows.

Although he has a beautiful residence in a fashionable part of town, it is doubtful if one person in 10 in Washington knows he lives in the city. He has spent most of his life in Chicago and has apparently made every effort to cultivate the idea that he is an aristocrat, in contra-distinction to his father's great democracy.

wages, working conditions, security of employment and hopes of a decent living, among the 6000 baggage porters and 2000 white men who are conductors on the Pullman cars. Shadowy Figure. Now after the world—or that much of it outside the Pullman company—had almost forgotten about him, Robert T. Lincoln has forced on him the publicity he hates. Nothing conspicuous about him. He is a strange, lonely, shadowy figure, cut off absolutely from the "mob" and "crowds" and common people with which his father so loved to mix—an aristocrat! At the time of the interstate

He practically has never been interviewed, dislikes publicity and is seldom seen on the street. Receive $27.50 a Month

When the hearing opened yesterday the first witness called was L. S. Hungerford, general manager.

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the commission, questioned him. Some of the facts divulged were:

That porters begin work at $27.50 a month, buying their own uniforms, and after 10 years' service are increased to $28.87, with the company furnishing the uniforms.

That porters are permitted to retire at 11 or 12 p. m. and expected to be on duty again at 3 a. m.

That they are required to shine passengers' shoes and buy their own polish.

Hungerford testified he had not considered the social effect of such a wage which compels men recently removed from bondage to subsist on gratuities from another race.

being fought in the woods between the Meuse and Moselle and in the east and southeast of Verdun, the war office announced. Distinct progress is reported on the Meuse heights, from where the French are directing a determined offensive.
