Give Them the Limit

We have naught but admiration and respect for Judge A. B. Anderson of that Indianapolis federal district, who conducted the Terre Haute election trials.

He proved to be one of the federal judges who promotes public respect for courts, which has been at a very low stage in this country, and we judge by his firmness and fearlessness that he fully realizes the importance to the nation of these cases. Because of the conduct and character of Judge Anderson it is safe and justifiable to make some comment on these cases which comment, otherwise, might be decidedly out of place as well as premature.

It is doubtful if there has occurred in all of past history an expose of political corruption approaching this Terre Haute case in brazenness and venality. Boldly, by use of money, bludgeon and brutal exercise of official power, the election was conducted and concluded for the profit and advantage of tenderloin and public officialdom. So shameful was the violation of public laws and private rights, so fearless the depravity that the affair was hardly less of a comedy than a crime.

The life of our form of government depends upon honest elections. Failing to secure this, we justify the cause of the anarchist, the nihilist and all others whose creed is opposition to law and order, and this Terre Haute affair was an organized, deliberate conspiracy to assassinate government by, of and for the people.

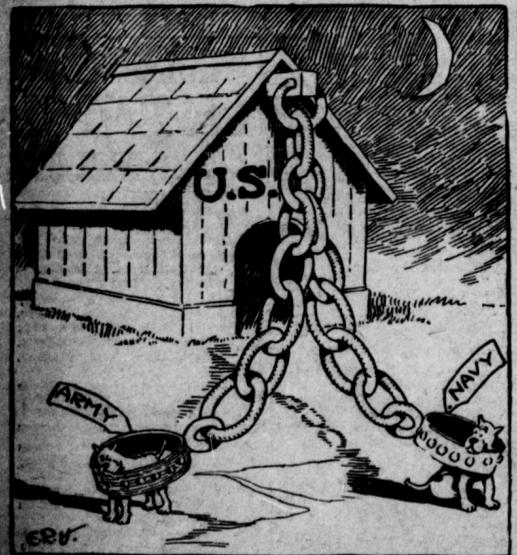

The parties to it were vilest of the vile and their crime the most dangerous of all crimes. Indiana hangs one man who premeditatedly slays another. These conspirators struck at the very life of the state itself. They may be punished by a few hundred dollars' fine and a ridiculously short term in prison.

We write of this case thus, in order to conclude with the suggestion that conviction in these cases warrants sentence for all that the law allows. The law should allow much heavier punishment, but let them have the limit, whatever it is!

That's what some folks say about 'em. They argue that any European or Asiatic nation would be afraid to attack us—afraid of these dogs of war.

How badly do you think any of those big powers would scare at our puppies of war?

And while you're thinking about it—hasn't our navy pup got a whale of a job—guarding all those thousands of miles of American coast line?

Another great oil field has been brought in in Texas which is said to equal the Beaumont or Dayton fields.

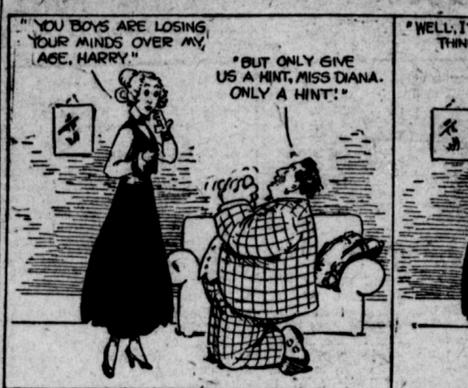

A systematic plan by which the petroleum deposits of this country would be exploited and fully developed would seem to be a good move on the part of this government.

Russia's great oil fields, with the opening of the Dardanelles, will again dominate the petroleum industry. Individual exploitation has its limits for it is costly, but with a minimum of encouragement by the United States government, this country might maintain its present supremacy.

Two hours later, the silvery moon gleamed on a fair park. Into this beautiful scene intruded Fuller Pashton, Venus, and the Fordmobile. Stowing the machine under a small log, our hero lit a cigarette and took Venus by one more or less lilywhite lunch-hook. They sat on a rustic bench.

Fuller leaned back and blew out a cloud of smoke.
"I love you!" he announced, calmly.
"O, Full!" gurgled Venus, rubbing fifty cents' worth of beauty off on his right shoulder. "I love you, too. You are handsome and rich, and I have always wanted to spend money. Why not yours?"
"Dear heart!" he breathed, lighting another cigaret.

AND THAT TOO.
A clergyman catechizing a Sunday school, when comparing himself—the pastor of the church—to a shepherd and his congregation to the sheep, put the following question to the children:
"What does the shepherd do for the sheep?"
A small boy in the front row piped out:
"Shears 'em!"

HIS RHETORIC.
A famous clergyman tells of a lay preacher's conference in which a veteran described his method of sermon preparation.
"I take my text," he said, "and divide my sermon into three parts. In the first part I tell 'em what I'm going to tell 'em. In the second part—well, I tell 'em. In the third part I tell 'em what I've told 'em.'"

The judges awarded the prize hat to the design which they considered the best of those submitted embodying THIS SEASON'S STYLES. They did not know at that time and do not know now, nor is it any of their concern, what the financial status of the winner might be. The contest was a hat contest, not a poverty contest.—Editor.

EMBARRASSING

Tacoma Woman Recalls Time Taffy Made Her Ridiculous

It seems that nearly all the embarrassing moments of Tacoma men were related to their school day careers.

How about the embarrassing moments of grown-up years? Any of you ever have them? Remember, there is a $2 prize waiting for the funniest one submitted.

Among the bunch that came in today is this one:
The most embarrassing position I ever was in came about when I was in the seventh grade at school. I was eating taffy and studying history. I saw the teacher coming toward my desk, and bit down hard on the candy, thinking I could break it and swallow it quickly.

The candy would not yield and my jaws stuck. The teacher asked me if I had my lesson. I sat there and could only look at him while the candy melted and the juice ran down my chin. The children all laughed. But the teacher never so much as scolded. After that I ate no candy during school hours.
