ROSE SHOW SET FOR JUNE 4 AND 5 AT GLIDE RINK

Directors of the Tacoma Rose society have decided tentatively on June 4 and 5 for the dates and the Glide Rink as the place for the annual show. President John Schlarb says there will be 40 or 50 handsome cups offered, for winners, and predicts the largest show yet held in Tacoma.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better. Most soaps and prepared shampoo contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mul-tified coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get mul-tified coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Advertisement.

QUESTIONS OF A WIFE (Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Enterprise Association)

I reached home from my visit to Mr. Hutton thoroughly exhausted, but I was glad that neither Dick nor Aunt Mary was there. I am afraid I would have told them about Mollie. I seemed to have taken so much upon myself in the shaping of their two lives, and yet, little book, I am not sure that I did anything. Mollie, for all I could say, is determined to give up all for Mr. Hutton, and he has told me that by tomorrow morning I will have in my hand a letter from him to Mollie giving her up. She has decided upon this letter before he saw me, that the music I heard with my requiem over his dead love. He had not at that time, of course, decided to send the letter to me to give to Mollie. I tried to dissuade him from sending the letter this way, but he said as long as Mollie had given me her confidence it might help to have someone to talk to after he had gone.

How well Mr. Hutton understands a woman's nature. Mollie will be very angry with me at first, but after a while she will be glad to talk to me. Not one word from Dick. Jack cannot be dangerously ill or he would write. His mother is nearly crazy, and, as usual, she is trying to find an excuse for him by saying that if I would write him he would answer. She does not know of the many, many loving letters I have written to Dick when he is away from me and never have I had but one letter from him in all our married life. I have often wondered if he had been out of town before we were married. If he would have written. Someway I feel rather cheated. Other women have hugged to their hearts letters which told of undying affection. Since love was first written on the sand or carved on the bark of trees in the rude hieroglyphics of primitive man a woman has loved to have her lover gladden her eyes as well as her ears by his pleasing flatteries.

I can almost envy Mollie the letter she is going to get tomorrow, although, poor child! when she reads it she will probably think that she is done with love forever. It is a queer state of affairs, little book, in the Waverly family. Here is Mollie, poor Mollie! loving a man she can never marry unless his insane wife dies, and Jack, after saying that he could not live without Mary, finds after three years of marriage that he can't live with her. I guess Dick and I are the best off, for really Dick seems perfectly happy. He believes in me implicitly and does not as he pleases himself with the sure knowledge that I am also doing just as he pleases. I cannot be unhappy, little book, with the knowledge of my baby coming. "Some way, I think Dick has gotten a little tired of my talk about you, sonny boy. He has never enthused much since the first time I told him about you, and if he loved us very, very much he certainly would have written to us. However, when you get really truly in my arms I will never be unhappy again."

But oh, little book! little book! I am very unhappy now. I'm afraid Dick is drifting away from me and I want him to love me. I want him more it seems to me than I ever did before in my life. Sometimes, baby, I almost wish we could both die—the future looks so vague and disappointing. Here, here, Margie, this will never do. You have promised yourself that you would not weep nor think yourself abused until you felt your baby in your arms. The promise of its coming would sustain you and after as long as you have had nothing can matter much. (Continued Tomorrow.)

Votes and Veils Appeal to Women

Everybody isn't wearing them, but a great many young women in New York are showing their interest in suffrage by wearing the new "Votes For Women" veil. Every veil sold adds to the suffrage funds.

Fashion Insists Betty Brown Have Real Waist-Line

In "The Belgian," one of the new models for an afternoon gown the prevailing fashion ideas may be noted. The slightly fitted waistline which is one of fashion's imperative decrees, the full skirt and the irregular skirtline. It will be noticed the skirt is considerably shorter at the sides than the front or back—this uneven line is a feature of all the best gowns for evening or after-noon wear. The gown is developed in Belgium blue faille silk.

CYNTHIA GREY'S LETTERS

Q.—We know two girls, 18 and 19 years old. They are exceptionally witty, in fact they are always joking and laughing and agreeable.

We are two young men keeping company with them. We work Saturday evenings. Our friends say they are girls going with other men. Of course we do not credit this story, but sometimes Sunday evenings we fail to find them at home. One says that she goes to see her sister who boards, but we know she hasn't any sister. Now what shall we do? Break up steady company, or get engaged, so the girls will feel bound to consider our rights? We are not financially situated so we can marry just now.

TWO FRIENDS. A.—As to the breaking up of steady company, the girls seem sufficiently expert at the job to make any action on your part unnecessary.

If I have you boys sized up rightly you are quite young or you could do your own thinking about such an important matter as becoming engaged. Take my advice and wait until your finances have actually improved before you go so far as to get engaged to any girl. Also, look for something more than exceptional wit in a girl as a qualification for matrimony.

Q.—What does affinity mean? A man whom I have been going with for several years called me his affinity the other day. Does it mean the same thing? MISS SEVENTEEN.

A.—You could spend a few moments consulting the dictionary to good advantage. By no means are the two words synonymous. A man promises to marry his fiancée whether he loves her or not, while he promises to love his affinity no matter whom he may marry.

Q.—Recently, I met a girl who made a very marked impression on me. Contrary to most cases where a young lady strongly attracts a young man, this girl is not beautiful. She is sensible, intelligent, refined and an altogether wholesome girl. In the present day of shallow and frivolous girls, this class of girl is rare, and it does one's heart good to meet a girl of this type. I have not been with her a great many times, but enough to make me want to cultivate an acquaintance, and I know it would please me very much if our friendship would some day develop into a deeper feeling.

There is only one objection—if it be an objection—the girl is three years and three months my senior; she is 22. I see no reason why this difference in age should be considered an objection, but would like to know whether you consider it one and your reasons. WAITING.

A.—The friendship of such a girl at this time is invaluable as a part of your general education; but you are three years less than 22. Therefore you will not pursue the wisest course if you allow yourself to take the sentimental side of the affair too seriously at present.

If you feel the same about this girl when you are 22, then no one will be able to convince you that your choice is unwise, in which case it will not be, for you will probably continue steadfast in your devotion.

Q.—Isn't ice cream a purely American invention? AN ICE CREAM FIEND.

A.—The invention of ice cream is often attributed to Dolly Madison, one of the early and most famous mistresses of the White House. It is further asserted that Nancy Johnson, wife of a young naval officer, invented the freezer. It is probable that Dolly Madison did serve ice cream at the presidential receptions, but the delicacy had been known in England half a century before her time.

Ice cream was introduced to the English aristocracy in the eighteenth century by a London confectioner named Ganton, who may or may not have been its inventor.

Q.—What will be nice to serve at a wedding supper of three courses, everything cold? M. S.

A.—If possible serve coffee with added nuts, olives and hobs-bons with either of the following combinations: 1.—Jellied chicken, sandwiches of brown bread, white bread, lettuce and mayonnaise; café au-lait and wedding cake. 2.—Taboret salad, several kinds of sandwiches, fruit cups, cake. 3.—Chicken salad rolls, individual ice cream, wedding cake, fruit punch.

Q.—Please tell me how to clean wicker and willow furniture. Y. S. A.—Scrub wicker furniture with salt and water, using a soft brush. To bleach willow which has turned yellow, use chlorine, allowing two ounces to two quarts of water. Wash chairs, apply the chlorine solution, then rinse several times.

Q.—Please tell me in your column how I can curl the plume of my hat which got wet in the rain. WENATCHEE GIRL.

A.—Use a dull case knife, begin at the back—bone of the feather, taking a few strands at a time and strip toward tips. This should be done very gently so as not to break the strands.

Q.—There is a certain young woman, a friend of mine, who has been going out with a young Englishman, and giving him special privileges. This is none of my business, except that I loved the young woman and thought she cared for me a bit. Would any young woman who cared at all for one man go out with another as she has done? Respectfully, S. W.

A.—If a woman cares anything for a man and has reason to believe that he loves her, she will not bestow undue attentions upon another.

It's a "Watch-Your-Step" Gown And It's Best One Yet, She Says

Why is a "Watch-Your-Step" gown? Well, it just is, that's all. Miss Ethel Arnold, the bewitching young thing who has set all Tacoma to humming her new songs, wears one of the new creations, but she says she hasn't the slightest idea why it has such a funny name.

Miss Arnold is featured on this week's Pantages bill. Her gown, which was designed by Mrs. Vernon Castle, is the first one of its kind to come west. It has a gir-dle at the bust, no waist-line, and the gown flares out in a most bewildering display of filmy, dainty material. There's about four times as much cloth in the "Watch-Your-Step" gown than there was in the gowns of last year's styles. "It's simply called a "Watch-Your-Step" dress because it was worn in the play of that name, I suppose," said Miss Arnold today. "You certainly don't have to watch your step when you wear one. You have unlimited freedom for limb movement; you don't have to worry about climbing on street cars, and there's no danger of tripping over yourself when you are walking in a hurry. It's the best style yet, so far as common sense can be used in dress-making. And it's pretty, too."

DISAGREES WITH RUSSELL

Editor The Times: Why don't you pinch your friend Charles Edward Russell and wake him up. He states that the British workingmen have been attending international conferences, and congresses of work-ingmen, and now they revolt against the idea of going forth to shoot the comrades they have met. This is an old gag. The French and German work-ingmen used to meet and resolve that the workers of the world had nothing to lose but their chains, and now they are scrap-ping each other like what war is, to save their chains. Although the structure has been replaced, and is now adorn-ing a street in Hoquiam, where it crosses the river at an impor-tant point, taxpayers of Tacoma are still paying for it. Commis-sioner Atkins sent $26,000 to New York yesterday to pay off prin-cipal on the debt of $100,000. This makes $30,000 of the original debt that has been paid.
