RAPS "SISSY" MEN

"If this nation were to be controlled by the sissy men who murmur soft 'peace at any price' talk," said Chaplain S. S. Sulliger to the national guardsmen yesterday, "we would soon be unable to protect our citizens either abroad or at home."

He believed the 20th century would bring universal peace, but "the peace of the Christ of Nazareth."

Gov. Lister highly praised the guard for efficiency, following an inspiring review, which thousands witnessed.

CROWDS AT PARK

Tremendous Sunday crowds continue to pour into the Mt. Tacoma national park. With a total of between 1,600 and 1,700 visitors yesterday, a season's mark of 14,000 already has been set. This is as against a mark of 15,038 for a previous whole season. One party of five went to the summit, and returned to Paradise valley in seven and one-half hours, a new record. John Maw of Tacoma and Howard Boynton of Parkland were in this party.

ROAST U. S. FOR NOTE

BERLIN, July 26.—Declaring that the supreme duty of Germany is to conquer her foes, and that the "freedom of the seas" is a mistaken phrase, the press of the imperial government roasts the United States for its latest note.

One paper, the Tageblatt, says the purpose of the United States to cripple Germany's submarine warfare is clearly shown.

RUSH POWDER TRUST

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 26.—The Dupont Powder Co. today entered a tremendous order for factory materials, and made public the statement that the orders which it had received will keep the whole system, including the plant near Tacoma, Wn., busy for five years.

HUGHES MIFFS BRYAN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.—In introducing Col. Bryan here at a religious meeting, Bishop Hughes of the M. E. church said: "On this occasion, Mr. Bryan is speaking without a cent of cost to the committee."

Bryan was offended, and prefaced his speech with the declaration that for 15 years he had accepted no fee for religious addresses.

GERMAN SUBS BUSY

LONDON, July 26.—German subs. got busy yesterday, and sank a British and French steamer, in addition to five British trawlers. In the day's work, fourteen men were killed from the attacked vessels. It is reported also that one of the submarines was destroyed by gunfire.

UNWRITTEN LAW

PORTLAND, Ore., July 26.—Following the death of Robert Moran of McMinnville, Ore., a murder charge was placed today against A. H. Adams, well-to-do rancher. Latter admits attack on dead man, but charges it was after he had found Moran visiting his wife.

FEARS WAR GREED

CHICAGO, July 26.—Congressman Frank Buchanan, addressing the industrial Council, said he feared the greed of war-munition makers in this country would lead the nation into war with Germany.

DYING FROM THE TERRIBLE GERMAN GAS

This photograph has just arrived from Poland. It shows a scene at a Russian Red Cross station immediately after the Germans had sent a cloud of gas over the Russian trenches. The men have just been brought in and laid on the ground around the station while the doctors and nurses hurry to give "first aid." Nearly all are unconscious or dying. Pneumonia and bronchial pneumonia usually follow these gases, as is frequently the case in peace when a person is overcome by illuminating gas.

One Year of War

AS SEEN IN GERMANY

CARL W. ACKERMAN, United Press Staff Correspondent. BERLIN, July 26.—Germany looks back upon her accomplishments of the first year of the war with satisfaction. The Germans believe the events of the 12 months have demonstrated to the world that the Teutons are the mightiest race of all history.

Germany has won her claim to a place in the Sun. The German empire has added brilliant chapters to the history of Teutonic might begun under the Hohenzollerns of the Kingdom of Prussia. The kaiser himself has earned for himself the title of William the Great, which posterity surely will bestow upon him.

These are the dominant beliefs of the German people at the close of the first year of the war.

Germany has shown up the world in all its littleness, and all its boasts of false greatness. Only the Germans themselves have withstood the test of blood and iron, for only the Germans have gained victories during the last fateful 12 months.

Germany believes she has changed the whole future course of history. German influence upon the future of civilization for generations to come will far beyond the influence of any other nation.

Germany will not dominate the world by her armed might, but by her virtues which have given to her a greater capacity for organization and discipline than all the rest of Europe combined possess.

Such is her fixed belief. When the Germans look back to last August and recall the threats that then were being made against them, and the penalties that were imposed by England, France and Prussia in advance of the trial by battle, the nation laughs.

The world didn't understand Germany last summer. It is beginning to learn now that the Hohenzollern empire has progressed during the years since the Franco-Prussian war in ways unsuspected by the rest of mankind.

There is nothing in the German of today that wasn't put there by the discipline and study that the world knows under the name of Teutonic Kultur.

Nearly 1000 Hibernians returned to Ireland for an afternoon at their picnic at Redondo Beach yesterday. Athletic events and Irish entertaining tickled the old folks.

AS SEEN IN FRANCE

WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS, United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, July 26.—The great world-war is one year old this week: What has France accomplished?

I put this question to M. Jean Cruppi, ex-minister of foreign affairs, member of the chamber of deputies and of the foreign relations commission, a man physically not very unlike Theodore Roosevelt. He replied:

"France accomplished the defeat of the Germans in the Battle of the Marne; she stopped the German drive for Calais and the sea; she has kept Germany nailed to the spot for 10 long months, steadily reducing her by attrition; she has done many other big things, but the greatest of all was the dropping of internal differences, her unification of all classes into one, great, fixed purpose in view: 'Victory.'"

"Yes," he continued earnestly, "our word 'union' means something more than the harmony of our people; there is something of the sacred in it. This sacred union will last. France is one man with one idea; final success, cost what it may!"

To appreciate fully M. Cruppi's words one has but to glance back at the France of the years just preceding the war; France, the antithesis of Germany where collectivity is the national passion; France, the nation of individual workers and thinkers where no two people could be expected to agree on any subject.

In the chamber of deputies there are a score or more parties instead of two or three as is the case in the United States. The Dreyfus affair split the nation into two hostile camps and each camp into others with varying opinions. The Caillaux case to some extent did the same thing.

But what happened? The real France found herself. The nation's heart, so long hidden, was revealed, and to the last man France became a unit. As M. Cruppi remarked, nothing has shaken this unity since.

The moment the general mobilization order was posted in France all classes rallied to the tri-color. Gustave Herve tried to enlist. Labor became a marvel of efficiency and patriotism, anti-militarists boosted it, considering it against what they are against—militarism. Socialists became cabinet members, one now holding a position similar to that of Lloyd George, minister of munitions, in England.

It was the "sacred union," one of France's greatest accomplishments. Instead of a revolt in the ranks, the troops dried the tears of wives, sweethearts and mothers with laughter and went their way to war singing.

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

ED L. KEEN, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, July 26.—England's greatest victory in this year-old war was won before the war started.

Forty or fifty years from now—the Germans willing—when the British desire to honor the heroes of the Great War, they doubtless will erect imposing statues of Sir John French, Sir Douglas Haig, Sir Ian Hamilton, Sir John Jellicoe, Sir Frederick Sturdee and Admiral John de Robeck.

But if the English nation should fail to recognize in this distribution of awards a certain blind, blue-eyed young statesman of dandified mien and lisping voice, who by fortunes of politics happened to be the first lord of the admiralty in the summer of 1914, it will demonstrate that other forms of government besides republics are ungrateful.

"Britannia rules the waves" today because of Winston Churchill. To his foresight, imagination and nerve is due the fact that when the War Lord threw down his gauntlet the British fleet was READY.

Perhaps Churchill KNEW. Anyhow, most of his colleagues in the cabinet didn't believe him. He acted in spite of them. His resignation lay on the table, to be taken up if events should prove that he was wrong.

Early in July the Grand fleet had assembled off the south coast of England for its annual play at war. The maneuvers followed their usual course and under all the rules the fleet should have been scattered a week before July 28, the day Austria declared war against Serbia.

The next day—three days before Germany declared war against Russia, five days before she declared war against France, and nearly a week before England officially entered the fray—Churchill converted the prolonged maneuvers into the real thing.

On the night of July 29, there was flashed through newspaper offices of London the brief announcement, "The British fleet has left Portland under sealed orders."

Beside bottling up the German Grand fleet—the one outstanding achievement of the entire war—England speedily swept the German mercantile marine from the oceans, destroyed Von Spee's roving squadron, put out of business the German commerce raiders, and provided safe convoy, not only to her own troops and their supplies across the channel, but to millions of dollars' worth of arms and ammunition for both her allies and herself across the Atlantic.

Germany's war of attrition, conducted by means of submarines, can never overcome these results.

There has been a good deal of criticism of the British navy because early in the war it failed to catch the German East Coast raiders, and in more recent months adequately to protect merchant shipping against submarine attacks. But it should be borne in mind that the one big job of the admiralty is to see that the Grand fleet is kept intact and ready to meet the German fleet when it comes out in a body—if it ever does.

The year did not pass without its admiralty scandal—an ugly blot on an otherwise creditable page. In a pique Admiral Lord Fisher deserted his post as First Sea Lord. Rather than disrupt the navy—as he feared—Churchill agreed to step out. The prime minister picked Balfour as his successor; but Fisher didn't like Balfour any more than he did Churchill and refused to serve under him. What Asquith had been willing to overlook as temperament, he couldn't forgive when it became insubordination. So Fisher was replaced by Admiral Sir Henry Jackson.

Churchill, the man who defeated the German fleet before it could lift anchor, is still in the cabinet. The nation couldn't afford to lose a man of his ginger.
