

WON'T YOU HELP

If you knew a dear old lady, who had spent her best days nursing the wounded and dying on the battlefields of the civil war, who had no home, no relatives, no money, and nothing much left in life but the memory of it—

Would you chip in a dollar with 2,999 other good fellows to help make her, and a lot of others like her, happy the rest of her days?

Very well.

The Ladies of the G. A. R. of Washington have taken over a home for this dear old lady, and those like her, near Puyallup. It's the old Era Meeker home, a fine, historic old place, just the right sort of home for her.

But there's $3,000 to be raised, payments to be made, furniture to buy, and other things to do—that all take money.

Mrs. Ottilie Bartel of Kent, treasurer for the Ladies of the G. A. R., has asked The Times to ask you to help.

They want to open the home Aug. 26.

Now, won't you help?

REAR GUARD SUFFERS

The rear guard of the retreating forces suffered severely at the hands of an invading foe at the edge of Murray creek near Cosgrove yesterday when the state militiamen went through the maneuvers of handling the rear guard of a demoralized army attacked by an advancing enemy. Standing by the money wagon and ammunition train, the rear guard was forced to remain on the edge of Wilson creek for an hour while the engineering corps constructed a pontoon bridge. Several officers and a great number of the 1,000 troops taking part were theoretically killed.

URGES PENNY POST

Citing figures obtained from the federal postal system, Stanley L. McMichael of Cleveland, who is traveling secretary for the National One Cent Postal association, explained the reasons why business men should work for the penny post to a gathering yesterday at the Commercial club. It was shown that letters and post cards supplied the greater part of the revenue taken in by the postoffice, while the magazines supplied only a small part of the returns.

GETTING MUNITIONS

Lloyd-George said that 40,000 munition workers had been added to the different plants, more than half being skilled laborers.

REMARKABLE FLASHLIGHT PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN INSIDE OF CAPSIZED EASTLAND

INNER HALF OF THE DANCING FLOOR AS IT LOOKED RIGHT SIDE UP.

LOOK AT THE PICTURE THIS WAY FIRST.

It shows half the dancing deck submerged in the water. As the ship turned on its side all the merry dancers slid down into what is now the water-covered part of the deck and were drowned. No. 1 is the roof of the dancing deck, now a side wall. No. 2 is the benches where those not dancing sat. No. 3 is the dancing floor. No. 4 is the well of water in which 200 drowned. Now turn the picture sideways and you see the dancing deck as it was before the ship tipped over except—you only see half of it, the other half being covered with water.

HOW WORLD WAR BEGAN

Day By Day Review of the Opening of the Great Conflict.

AS SEEN IN FRANCE. By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMS, United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, July 29.—Gen. Joe Joffre must be enumerated among the great French successes of the first 12 months of the war.

Joffre already deserves the undying gratitude of his country if he never strikes another blow. He refused at Charleroi to sacrifice his men for a brilliant but temporary success though he must have known the country was waiting for him to make good; he ordered that soul-sickening retreat before a superior foe when he knew that every heart in France was weighted down by the doubt concerning him and his army; he patiently sought and seized the opportunity he was looking for, then instantly transformed the swift German advance on Paris into a disorderly retreat; he stopped short the mighty second German offensive in the west against the channel ports and pinned his enemy down for a long winter trench campaign where he held the advantage; he won the confidence of his men, individually the most intelligent soldiers in the world, giving them reason for their cheerful courage which never faltered even on coldest, wettest mid-winter days.

Lastly, but by no means least, he so handled his resources in material and men that now, at the beginning of the second year of the war the French army is the finest fighting body in the world. Joffre was the one man in France's 40 million for the job.

And at that, Joffre was an accident!

One Year of War

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND. By ED L. KEEN, United Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON, July 29.—"Are we down hearted? NO!"—with a heavy accent on the "no."

This is the slogan of British football fans in the bleachers (or the English equivalent thereof) when the home team appears to be getting the worst of it.

Since the failure of the Anglo-French spring offensive in Flanders, the disastrous defeats of the Russians, the news of the unsatisfactory progress of the Dardanelles campaign, the development of the Fisher-Churchill scandal, the French-Kitchener row, and the disclosures regarding Britain's woeful lack of the implements of warfare, culminating in the disruption of the cabinet, this attitude of the bleachers has become the attitude of the British public.

And when the British public says it is not down hearted it means it. Proof of this lies in the splendid fashion in which the workmen of the nation have answered the call for industrial reinforcements (bear in mind that 80 per cent of the British public consists of workmen, their woman and children); also in the marvelous response to the prime minister's appeal for an adequate supply of silver bullets.

Never in the history of any nation has a popular war loan met with such success.

MILLS A SPEEDER?

Is Commissioner Adelbert U. Mills a speeder?

'Tis hard to believe, but persistent reports brought to The Times office today convince us that Mills has forgotten all about the complicated set of auto speed ordinances that he recently pushed through the city council.

Mills lives at Day Island. Each day he drives his big car in to the city, leaving it at the police garage for the prisoners to clean and polish up.

Yesterday Mills came tearing in along the Sixth avenue boulevard at a speed that made his motor groan with the strain. At Proctor street, where the Sixth avenue cars stop, Mills sped past a group of citizens at a rate not less than 40 miles an hour, they declare. The street was wet. Muddy, greasy water was splashed by the commissioner's tires on the clothing of the group of citizens.

Exhibition of the famous motion picture drama, "The Clansman," and other similar films, in Tacoma, will be prohibited by an amendment to the motion picture censorship ordinance, which was introduced to the council yesterday by Mills.

The amendment hits at "The Clansman," over which the colored population of America has made a strenuous protest. The film is booked for Tacoma in two weeks.
