CLUBS WILL HELP STUDENTS CHOOSE FUTURE VOCATIONS

Three student clubs for the purpose of investigating the professional, commercial and industrial fields with a view towards a future livelihood have been started at Stadium high school.

This plan was launched last Thursday when Principal Hunt suggested the plans of organizing the clubs to the boys in a mass meeting in the auditorium.

He said the purpose of these organizations was to open the boys' eyes to the future; to make them realize that they were in school for a purpose and to help them find their calling, rather than to have them continue in high school blindly.

Many boys go through high school and college without an idea of what they are doing it for, he said. These clubs will start them thinking.

219 Boys Register.

Yellow slips were sent to every roll room Tuesday and 219 boys signified their intentions of joining one of the organizations, many of them selecting two.

There will be three clubs, the College club under the direction of Dr. N. W. Brown, of the physiology department. This club has a membership of 121 students and its purpose is to aid the boy

REWARD YOUTHFUL GARDNERS

Longfellow school, under the direction of the P. T. A., held its third annual dahlia show and garden exhibit Tuesday. A large number of mothers and visitors attended the show.

Principal Eva J. Smith said the garden movement was started in her school more than three years ago and each year it had grown.

There were 120 gardens, using 900 packets of seeds and 300 dahlia bulbs planted this year by children of her school.

She said the exhibits this year were by far the best yet shown.

Fan Owes Duty to Umps Says Champ 'Ball Bug'

"Casey Jones," world's champion baseball fan, in the cabin of his engine, receiving orders from a dispatcher.

(This is the third of a series of world series stories written for The Times by Lycurgus McDowell, better known as "Casey Jones" because he's a railroad engineer, and the world's champion baseball fan.)

BY CASEY JONES.
Railroad engineer voted world's champion fan.

Whether a game is being played in a world series or in the regular schedule of the season I think the fan owes a great duty to the umpire. That duty is to remember that he is human; that to err is human; that he has many more chances to err than the player; and that he calls plays as he sees them.

The umpire can make or break a ball game. He is the main cog in the contest, so why not treat him as such?

Of course, to take from the fan the chance to "roast" the umpire would be to take away one of the fan's greatest pleasures. What would the old game be without the "Glass Eye" and "Robber" stuff? But, at that, fans should be fair.

It happens that I have been in both sides of the game. I've yelled my head off at umpires and I've umpired amateur games where I nearly had my head taken off.

I consider myself lucky to have met several big league umpires. I found them a fine set of men. I found they are just like other human beings. They eat, sleep, talk and do everything just like a regular person.

I have always found the umpire willing to treat the fan cordially. He doesn't care much about talking baseball, but he will answer any reasonable question a fan puts to him.

The umpires who will work in the world series are bound to be fair. They hold their jobs because of their ability. A single decision may throw the world series to one side or the other, but I'll bet the umpire who makes the decision will call the play just as it looks to him, without any thought of which player, which team or which league it hits.

I believe fans should make it a point to get acquainted with an umpire once in awhile, just to see the kind of fellow he is. Don't quit roasting him when you get warmed up and his decision against your home club looks like a bad one—that would take all the fun out of the game—but be fair and don't be down on him for life just because he's an umpire.

PHILLIES WIN THE PENNANT

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—Philadelphia's National league team will have a chance this year for world's championship baseball honors.

By defeating the Boston Braves in a 5-0, one-hit contest yesterday afternoon the Philadelphia team won the National pennant. The season is not over yet, but Philadelphia has such a lead that it can lose every succeeding game without being dislodged.

Alexander was responsible for the victory. He pitched superbly. The Boston players did their best to hit the ball, but Magee was the only Brave to get even a single.

Three of the Phillies' singles came in the first. Bancroft singled. Cravath walked. And Paskert, the home run wonder, slammed out his 23rd homer of the season, for three tallies.

PHILADELPHIA IS BALL CRAZY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Philadelphia, the most staid and dignified city in America, is once more baseball crazy. When the news was flashed over the city last night that the Phillies had finally won a pennant, the fans lost control of themselves. A crowd of thousands of fans had gathered in City Hall plaza to see the electric scoreboard report the game, and when the contest was over, and Philadelphia had been proclaimed winner of the pennant, bedlam broke loose.

MORE TALK OF EIGHT CLUB COAST CIRCUIT

It begins to look as though Tacoma might get into the Coast league next year.

Practically all the owners of teams now in the Coast organization have recently expressed preference for an eight-team league, Seattle as the newcomers.

John F. Powers, president of the Los Angeles club, yesterday afternoon announced that he favored an expansion in the Coast league, and offered Tacoma and Seattle as two cities to be taken in. He suggested that Portland drop out of the league, but it is not probable that Portland would leave the Coast bunch if Tacoma and Seattle entered the circuit.

Portland has been an expensive ball town, because of the long jump for the teams visiting that city. With two other cities in the league up here, the Portland expenses would be made much lighter.

Powers, as well as other magnates in the Coast league, will make a fight at the coming directors' meeting, for an expansion of the circuit. It is believed that Tacoma, with a Coast league team and a new stadium here could easily support a good ball club. The personality of the Tiger management during the 1915 season has caused lack of patronage at Athletic park more than any other single feature.

Tacoma fans want good ball, but above all things they want it handled in a sportsmanlike and not a brazenly monetary spirit.

FED RACE IS MIGHTY CLOSE

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—So close is the Federal league race going that one game may change about the position of the three leading teams. It is considered one of the most interesting finishes ever held in a major league. There are only four more days of the season, and today Pittsburgh heads the list with .563, Chicago is second with .565 and St. Louis is third with .563.

NO CITY SERIES CITY PAYS AFTER ALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—At a conference between managers and owners of the New York Nationals, New York Americans and Brooklyn Nationals held during yesterday's ball game at the Polo grounds, it was formally decided to hold no city championship series for Greater New York this year.

Annapolis Team Is Discouraging

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—The Navy football team made an unencouraging showing yesterday afternoon in practice scrimmage with the Catholic University of Washington. Navy scored one touchdown and failed to kick goal. The university team was composed of much lighter players.

L. H. S. JUNIORS WIN FROM SENIORS, 9-0

Lincoln Park juniors came back yesterday after a week's practice and defeated the seniors, 9-0, in the play-off game, which previously had resulted in a tie.

The first quarter ended, 0-0, with the juniors playing the stronger game and putting the seniors on the defensive the greater part of the period.

The second period opened with the ball in the juniors' possession on the seniors' 15-yard line. Captain Parker fell back and placed a beautiful drop between the posts.

LITERARY EDITOR OF TACOMA ALSO SCHOOL DEBATER

Elsie Forsyth, the literary editor of the Tacoma for the Lincoln Park staff, has only been at the south side school for one year, but during that time has had a hand in practically every branch of student work.

Beside being a good student, Miss Forsyth is one of the school's best debaters, being a member of the team. Two years ago while she was at Stadium she won the oratorical contest there.

She was vice president of the junior class at Lincoln Park last year and is vice president of the Latin club. She will be graduated in June in history and Latin.

200 ARE EXCUSED

Two hundred Stadium High school pupils took advantage of the Puyallup fair yesterday as a legitimate excuse for being absent. Principal Hunt said this was the largest number of pupils ever excused in one day during the entire history of the high school.

WILLARD EAGLES WIN GAME FROM LONGFELLOWS

The Willard Eagles defeated the Longfellow team Monday afternoon, 1-0, in a hard fought contest. Both teams played a remarkably clean and heady game. Principal McGill, of Willard, refereed.

Members of the High School Manual Teachers' club met Tuesday evening at the Hotel Bonneville for their first meeting. The club elected Charles Colais president and decided to hold monthly meetings.

Those who attended the meeting were H. E. Emmons, Olaf Caskin, Charles Collais, C. E. Westgate, Howard Schartzow, Elmer Staples, C. E. Maljory, William Hemig, R. J. Mullin and Charles Miller.
