Plays at the Film Shows AT APOLLO TODAY

A. Film Sees Interesting Sights From Peep Hole In Black Box

Miss E. M. Barnes, a movie fan, examining a film as it is shown ready to be placed in the protecting machine at a motion picture show house.

Editor's Note—This is the first of three stories giving the history of the motion picture film. The next reel of this feature will tell what happens to the film in the laboratory.

BY A. FILM.

I am a motion picture film. I am one and 7-16 inches wide and 1000 feet long. The first thing that happens to me at a motion picture studio is that I am cut into 400-foot lengths. Each length is rolled into a tight little reel and each reel is inserted in a tin can which is then hermetically sealed. Then I go in my 400-foot segment, to the camera men. Each camera man takes a segment of me into a dark room, lifts me out of the little can and puts me into a funny looking box with a crank on it. Then the camera man carries me outside, funny box and all, to the studio where I am to work. The box is set up on three legs and after a while the director says, "Camera!" The camera man begins to turn the crank and I begin to run from one reel to another. I go over some spools and things, passing in front of a little round glass, where I get a fleeting glimpse of all the funny things the actors and actresses are doing. But the crank sends me along so fast that I don't get time to see very much. I clatter along at the rate of 16 exposures per second which does not allow much time for observation. It takes two turns of the crank to run me a distance of a foot. I am pulled along past the little glass by little holes that are punched in the edge of me. These are called sprocket-holes and there are four of them to every exposure. An exposure is each glimpse I get of the outside world as I pass the little glass called a lens. Some of the little burrs on the outside rim of each, which fit into the holes that are punched in the edge of me spools that I travel over have past the little hole with the lens. These spools are called sprocket-wheels, and they are what pull me past the little hole with the lens. There are 64 sprocket-holes to every foot of me. Sometimes I look at what is going on outside from a great distance. They call this a "long shot." And when the camera man carries me up so close that I can see the wrinkles in the actresses' faces it is called a "close-up." The camera man turns the crank until the entire 400 feet of me is wound from the first reel onto the second.

The special showings of "Damaged Goods" in the mornings for women and girls only, accompanied by lectures by prominent physicians, have attracted hundreds.

"Damaged Goods" continues to draw large crowds despite the rain. Last night many were unable to gain admittance to the Melbourne, where the famous photoplay will be continued until Friday. The last special showing for women will be given at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

"The Mating," a romantic drama of college life, which is shown at the Apollo today, is a film that awakens the motions and sends the spectators away feeling much better for the good things in life. The film features Bessie Barriscale, Enid Marker, Margaret Thompson and others.

The Melbourne is the latest theater to report a robbery. Manager Summerville this morning found that during the night a thief had pried open his desk and stolen $5 in change which had been left there for the opening of business, and $3 in pennies. Papers were rifled and a back door found open. The lock had been picked.

Q.—Does Gaby Deslys act for the movies in France?

A.—The Famous Players' company produced "Her Triumph" with Gaby Deslys in France and is the only film brought to this country which she has enacted there. There is no announcement of a future picture in which she will appear.

Arthur and Burton Cook, Tacoma motion picture photographers, report unusual trouble with static these days. They have written to other parts of the country and find that the static is causing general distress among movie men. It is an electric spark, caused by friction of the film during exposure, which causes "leak" images to appear on the negative. Every picture attempted recently has met with failure. The big companies are retaining scientists and experts to try to cure the trouble, but as yet have found no remedy.

In "The Lily and the Rose," a new Triangle release, Rosika Dolly, famous dancer, renders some oriental set pieces which prove very effective.

Suffrage has struck the movies. Marie Doro, Helen Ware and Jane Gray announce that they stand for women's rights.

Rhea Mitchell, former Ince star, is particularly well fitted for her part in "Don Quixotic."

Lillian Gish has presented her doll, which she introduced in "The Lily and the Rose," to a poor California girl who expressed a desire for it.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS, SICK FEVERISH CHILD

If little stomach is sour, liver torpid or bowels clogged.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleanser" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company. We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.
