The Fight On Brandeis

Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, member of the senate subcommittee which investigated charges against Louis D. Brandeis, appointed by President Wilson as associate justice of the supreme court, in his report to the senate, bares the source of the bitter opposition to Brandeis in the following illuminating statement:

"The real crime of which this man is guilty is that he has exposed the iniquities of men in high places in our financial system.

"He has expressed views of 'social justice'—to which vague terms are referred movements and measures to obtain greater security, greater comfort and better health for industrial workers, including safety devices, factory inspection, sanitary provision, reasonable hours, the abolition of child labor, all of which threaten a reduction of dividends.

"It is easy for a brilliant lawyer to conduct himself so as to escape calumny and villification. All he needs to do is to drift with the tide. If he never assails the doer of evil who stands high in the market place, he will have no enemies or detractors that he need heed.

"The man who never represents the public or the impecunious citizen in any great contest, but always the cause of corporate wealth, never has these troubles. It is always the other fellow whose professional character is a little below par.

"Discouragements enough beset the ambitious youth who resolutely sets out upon the path of devotion to duty and to the cause of justice, who strives to render some real public service. I do not care to warn him to abandon the hope of reaching the summit of his profession by that route.

"It is said that it is to be regretted that any such controversy as this in which we are involved should arise over a nomination of a justice of the supreme court. So it is. But when it is said further that one might better be chosen over whom no such bitter contention would arise, I decline to follow."

The war is costing Great Britain 25 million dollars a day, money invested in fighting alone. This is a tremendous cost, unprecedented in all history, but the money actually devoted to warfare is, by no means, all that the war is costing any of the belligerents.

If the facts could be ascertained, they would undoubtedly show that the war is costing the neutral people of the United States many millions every day. Try to put up a house, or paint a fence, or put in new carpets, rugs or window shades. Observe closely prices on dress goods, tailoring, stockings and all colored material. You will decide that in war times you pay somebody a whole lot more than formerly, for one reason. We may be enjoying war prosperity, but we are also enduring war prices.

And the tendency of prices is still upward, just as the tendency of the cost of war is upward.

How He "Declared Himself"

Day before yesterday a politician professing to represent the Rev. Mr. Stoever denied with considerable heat that the reverend gentleman lacked a platform and views.

He called attention to a list of meetings the preacher-politician was scheduled to address and added:

"If any of the people of Tacoma have any doubt as to where Mr. Stoever stands on the live issues in this campaign let them come out and hear him declare himself."

That sounded encouraging. We thought to ourselves, well, maybe Stoever isn't completely a neuter after all. Perhaps he's simply been timid, and now as the campaign draws to a close will begin telling the people where he stands on a few questions.

So we had a reporter cover the Commercial club meeting where he was billed to appear.

He talked about the fact that he'd been pointed to as a neuter and seemed to take considerable pride in it. He called some other politicians barnacles. He said he'd had experience that fitted him for handling the city's business, but did not tell what it was. He guffed and bluffed, and never came within a mile of touching on any concrete problem which the city faces.

He's a fine cross between a false alarm and a cipher.

A letter signed with the name of A. F. Wildt in one of the Tacoma papers which is favorable to the re-election of Owen Woods and Johnnie Meads gives the strongest argument yet advanced on behalf of those two candidates.

Mr. Wildt says: "Owen Woods and John Meads have not been found wanting. No man can bring proof of inefficiency or dishonesty against either. It therefore behooves the people of Tacoma in studying what is best for the community and for themselves, in this election, to let well enough alone, and re-elect both." Purely negative. Not one good, convincing, positive argument advanced for either. And Stoever is more neuter yet. The forward-looking Tacoman will vote for Pettit, Gronen and Shoemaker.

Pettit's Heinous Crime

The average workingman will observe not without interest that the Employers' Association is against Pettit.

A representative of the employers at a meeting in the Commercial club yesterday attempted to make capital of the fact that Mr. Pettit some years ago when commissioner of public safety refused to use the police department in the customary manner for the protection of strike-breakers and in opposition to strikers.

All of which may be terribly heretical if not downright damnable in the eyes of the open-shop employers, but which will not lose Mr. Pettit any votes among the working men of Tacoma.

Better Than Calomel

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They do not injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dullness" and that tazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. U. organization. The public is invited.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HELP

You can keep your hair at its very best by washing it with this simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff and dirt and leaves a clean, wholesome feeling. Just use a teaspoonful of canthox dissolved in a cup of hot water, afterwards rinsing thoroughly with clean water. One finds that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is unstreaked, bright, soft and fluffy, so fluffy in fact that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. All scalp irritation will disappear and the hair will be brighter than ever before.

ANSWERS

BY CYNTHIA GREY

Q.—I have been keeping company for nearly a year with a young man who has a fine position and comes from a good family. At Christmas he gave me a diamond ring, saying only, "Here's a little gift for you." He has never mentioned love nor what his intentions are. I was growing to love him, but lately have realized how strange it all is, and wondered if I should waste my time with him. Can you advise me?
A GIRL OF 22.

A.—You should not have accepted the ring from him. He did wrong to offer you such a valuable gift when you are not engaged. Nevertheless, the young man may be more worth while than if he were more demonstrative.

Q.—My mother tells me if it is natural to be fat one will be; or to be thin one will be that way. She says it is wrong to try to change the ways of nature. What do you think?
NAN.

A.—Nature intended us all to be in that state of health in which we may be happy, and do our work in the best way. She has laid down certain rules, and penalties for their violation. For instance, if you go out on slippery ice you may fall and break a bone. If you persist in eating the wrong kind of food you may grow very fat, or you may become very thin. Just because you like to walk on the ice is no assurance that ice was intended by nature to be your pathway. So you are not following the laws of nature if you follow a plan of life which renders you incapable of doing your best. We are only beginning to understand the laws of food.

Those Compelling Shoes

The tall and shining yellow shoes that all the girls are wearing are giving me a case of blues that many men are sharing. With interest, I must confess, I've watched those tall shoes growing, while shorter grows milady's dress, to make a better showing. But every day I meet a maid who's added on more leather, and every day I am afraid there may come windy weather.

Perchance a hurricane may blow with suddenness surprising; then where shall we poor fellow go while wind and things are rising? If we should be upon the street, pray, ladies, have compassion! Don't think us rude nor indiscreet; we didn't make the fashion! And we can't crane our neck to look at birds that are not flying, nor can we always read a book while motor cars are shying. So look not on us as a race of brutes devoid of feeling. To glance at beauty's no disgrace, and looking isn't stealing!

SAVE 20 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR

BY GEO. W. PERKINS

Chairman of New York's Food Committee.

Save money, avoid waste and keep well by taking proper care of the food you buy.

Food is often exposed to impure air which contaminates it and such food, when eaten, will often produce disease. To keep food wholesome, the dishes and places in which it is kept should be made sanitary.

Foods that soil easily are milk, cream, uncooked meat or fish, certain fruits, such as peaches and plums, and vegetables that wilt easily, such as lettuce and spinach.

Wash milk and cream bottles, particularly the top, before opening so dirt cannot get into the milk or cream. It will take up odors from other foods and become spoiled for table use.

Do not keep uncooked meat in the paper in which it is wrapped when it comes to you. The paper will absorb the juices. Wipe off the meat with a clean cloth that has been wrung out in cold water. It is good to wrap the meat in wax paper.

Never put uncooked fish into an ice box unless the fish is closely covered. Keep the fish in a pail.

All fruits should be kept in a cool dry place and spread out, if possible. Fruits should never be used without first being washed off.

Vegetables that are to be eaten in a raw state should be dipped quickly in boiling water to destroy any germs, and then put in cheese cloth and placed directly on the ice to preserve their crispness.

Foods that do not spoil so easily are eggs, butter, fruits, such as apples, oranges and lemons, cooked meat, and cooked, salted and smoked fish.

Care is necessary in the handling of eggs, as the spoiling is partly due to uncleanly handling, the shells being more or less porous. It is best to wash them as soon as you get them home. When only the yolk of the egg is used, the white may be kept in a cup or glass, covered with a damp cloth fastened with an elastic band; or, if only the white is used the yolk can be kept in the same way.

Butter should be kept well covered in a cool place. Cooked meat and fish will keep much better if well covered before being placed in the ice box. Cooked meat and fish attract flies and should never be allowed to stand uncovered.
