ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

PROTEST RATE ADVANCE

In order that the people of Tacoma may have a chance to protest to the public service commission against the Puget Sound Navigation company's proposed increase in steamer fare between Tacoma and Seattle, the members' council of the Commercial club yesterday authorized the transportation bureau to represent the club at the hearing.

The increased fare is set to take effect May 19. Dix Rowland, who brought up the question, said the rate ought not to be allowed without giving the people a chance to protest. A scheme of opening up 10th and 12th streets from Pacific avenue to Broadway was discussed.

MRS. ROGERS GOES FREE

NEW YORK, April 27.—"I think everybody feels that Mrs. Rogers suffered enough by depriving herself of her children," was the statement of District Attorney Martin today, following the acquittal by a jury of Mrs. Ida Shiffen Walters Rogers on the charge of murdering her 2-year-old son. The woman was given her freedom. Another indictment charging her with the murder of her daughter Florida, 8 months old, was dismissed. The verdict was not guilty on the grounds of insanity.

"We are going away somewhere where there are flowers," said the man who is now her husband, and who was the father of the father of the murdered children, when he left the courtroom with her.

The Weyerhaeuser Timber company, at its annual meeting here today discussed the feasibility of constructing wooden ships for carrying lumber. With the present high rates for bottoms, it was pointed out, wooden ships to be built on Puget Sound would almost pay for themselves with a single cargo.

Confessions of a Wife

THE LINES I AM PUTTING IN DICK'S FACE

I haven't seen Dick in nearly a week, although he has been in the city. He is making a reorganization of the book concern, and Mrs. Selwin, who takes breakfast with him nearly every morning, tells me that he is growing old every day. "I feel very sorry for him," said Mrs. Selwin. "He shows the scars of his business troubles as well as those that are personal."

You see little book, I am trying these days to keep out of his life as much as possible and I told him when I came over here that he must not feel me on his mind day after day.

It seems to me, little book, as though he had an added wrinkle—an added scar on his face—every time I see him, and I know that tired—oh so hopeless—look in his eyes I have put there. It does not make any difference that I have done this unwittingly; that I would have saved him from the horror of having a log for a wife even more than I would have saved myself from being that log if I could have done so.

Looking back over it all, it seems to me that I have been one of the worst of wives. I who wanted to be one of the best.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, swollen look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

I tried to say this to Dick the last time he was in here.

"Do you know, Dick dear, I sometimes think I am like that old woman who was the wife of a veteran of the Civil war," I said as I reached my hand up and smoothed his hair. "My mother used to tell the story—said it was one of my father's favorites—of the veteran who in all the glory of a somewhat faded blue uniform, brass buttons and white cotton gloves, sat in the street car on his way to the Fourth of July picnic."

"A stranger boarded the car, and as he sat facing the soldier and his wife he engaged the man in conversation.

"The talk soon turned to warfare, and the veteran said: 'Yes, sir; I've seen fighting. I got this gash across the cheek at Chickamauga. My stiff leg, by gosh, comes from a ball in the knee—Chancellorsville. This thumb was shot off at Gettysburg, and I lost the tip of my ear at Spottsylvania.'"

"Dear me," said the stranger, "how interesting. You have indeed seen hot fighting. But tell me, how did you get that long deep murderous dent down the side of your nose? A cavalry charge—hand to hand engagement?"

"The veteran ignored the question and began to talk about the heat. However, his wife interrupted.

"Go on, Bill," she said impatiently, "tell the gentleman how you got the dent in your nose."

"You shut up, Hannah," said the angered veteran under his breath.

"I won't nother," said the old woman. "For it just about riles the skin off me to hear you braggin' and braggin' about the marks you got in the war, whilst you never open your head about the finest and most noticeable mark of all—the one I give ye with the fire shovel."

Dick had to smile even when he winced at the application.

"I didn't mean to hit you with the fire shovel, Dick," I said. "I confess at one time I wanted to hurt you very much but not in the way I have done, and I want to tell you that I differ from the old lady of my story in not being proud of the scar that I know I have put on your face."

Dick came across to the bed and lifted me up into his arms. It nearly killed me but I did not make a sound or allow my flesh to cringe in the slightest.

"Marge, please don't make light of your awful tragedy," he said. "Sometimes it seems to me as though I could not bear to see you here. Oft times when I come in in the morning, all day long I can think of nothing else than

ANSWERS BY CYNTHIA GREY

Q.—I am a mother whose daughter graduates from high school this spring, and I wish to plan a luncheon for her and eleven of her classmates. Her class colors are purple and gold. Miss Grey, will you give me some suggestions? I have always stayed home very closely, giving the greater part of my time to my home and family, consequently, I am rather at a loss to know just where and how to begin. I will look forward eagerly to your kind advice, which I know I can rely upon. Thanking you. A MOTHER.

A.—The class colors may be carried out nicely in a pansy luncheon. For favors have tiny dolls in purple gowns and orange bonnets standing on purple bonton boxes tied with yellow ribbons. The candies are to be individual brass ones, with shades of purple under yellow lace.

A big yellow basket of purple pansies tied with purple illusion is to be the centerpiece. The refreshments should consist of a fruit salad served in orange cups, sandwiches tied with the class colors, orange sticks, orange ice sprinkled with candy violets and cakes with yellow frosting.

With the coffee and nuts, white papers, rolled like diplomas and tied with the class colors, are to be passed. On each sheet is to be written some joke reminiscent of the high school life.

Q.—Will you kindly give me your opinion on dreamy eyes? So many people seem to think dreamy eyes beautiful, but I, for one, do not. What do you think of them, Miss Grey? Do they mean anything? If so, what? W. E. O.

A.—Dreamy eyes "mean" just what the word indicates—they belong to a dreamer, and it all depends upon whether the possessor dreams things worth while, and makes them come true as to whether I admire them. Many of the world's greatest musicians, sculptors, painters, actors, novelists and poets have dreamy eyes; but back of the dreamy surface is a force, and those eyes I call beautiful. Then, again, there are people, sentimental, emotional, sensational yes, and even stupid who possess dreamy eyes, the surface of which reflects only pools of stagnancy. It is the expression that makes eyes of any kind beautiful or repulsive.

Q.—Do you consider it proper for a boy of 12 to take a girl of 11 to a place of amusement, unchaperoned, if the girl's mother knows they are going? The boy is a perfect gentleman and the tie between them is merely one of good friendship. L. P.

A.—Children of this age should attend entertainments with their parents. These children may play together, enjoy the same sports, and be good friends, but the idea of their "going together" is ridiculous.

TACOMANS DANCE KIDS INTO HOME
