

KIDS THRILL. GROWN-UPS

By Edgar C. Wheeler

What follows is nothing more than words; and anyone who felt the rhythm of 14,000 young bodies as they swayed in perfect harmony at the Stadium yesterday, knows that it cannot be expressed in words.

But anyway, Catharine Demaree, 14 years old, brown eyes flashing and cheeks aflame, stepped down from the platform after leading these thousands of school children in the wand drill, and the first thing she said was: "MY, BUT I WISH I COULD DO IT RIGHT OVER AGAIN!"

The highest ambition of Catharine, ever since she first took part in a Stadium Day drill had been to lead it. She realized her great ambition yesterday and she was flushed and happy.

"I felt that those thousands of boys and girls all were depending on me to lead them right, and that if I made a mistake it would spoil the whole thing. It was grand!" she said between breaths. Did you notice, you grown up, easy going folks, that each small John and Betsy who made up an important part of the greatest throng of school children that can be gathered together, was thinking and feeling the same thing as the leader?

They All Did Part. It was just because each small trained body was tense and eager and felt the importance of the part it was playing, that the whole inspiring army of boys and girls, swaying and marching in perfect unison, gripped hold of your heart and lifted you from the commonplace stone seat where you were sitting.

Willie's lithe little body was rigid, at attention, from the top of his hair to his finger tips, waiting for the signal from his leader. Little Jane's lips were counting one-two-three-four, one-two-three-four, as she marched proudly along in step with her comrade.

They were our little girls and our little boys, marching, drilling, dancing, molding themselves into one vast body which inspired us fathers and mothers with a grace and order that made our hearts beat faster. Do we remember ever having done so grand a thing?

What It Taught. Alone, each boy and girl, doing his or her very best, would have meant little. Pulling together with their leaders, they stirred the Stadium foundations. "I wasn't scared at all," said Everett Walsh, the boy leader.

"I forgot all about the thousands of people who were looking at us. All I was thinking about was working together with the rest of the children." Of course Everett didn't say that the 14,000 school children, who joined in forming a monster American flag, were training for their part as future makers of the nation. But the proud tilt of his chin and the flush of his cheeks showed that he felt it. Best of Tacoma's Events. He, like everyone else in the Stadium, had a glimpse of the power of pulling together with a leader. He saw what great things even the smallest little people, working together, can do. This was the patriotism of Stadium day. It offered the highest promises and ideals of American citizenship. It was a living demonstration of preparedness. It demonstrated the true meaning of individual effort and duty. Stadium day is the greatest, most inspiring thing that Tacoma has today.

LOOKING FOUR YEARS BACKWARD

EIGHT DAYS before the 1912 G. O. P. convention Secretary Hillis reported to President Taft that he was certain of renomination, with 577 votes to Roosevelt's 455. William Flinn of Pennsylvania, angry at the national committee's unfairness, announced the Roosevelt men would take all contests to the floor of the convention.

HOTEL IS RAIDED; 4 ARRESTED

Three women and two men were arrested early this morning by the police in a raid on the Hiroshimaya hotel, 15th and Market. One of the men, J. Medak, made complaint against the hotel. He is held as a witness. Rose Smith and Marion Swanson deposited $50 bail after their arrest. S. Ide, a Japanese porter, provided $25 bail. Fay Wells could not raise bail and is waiting in jail for trial.

LONG STAY IN MEXICO PREDICTED

COLUMBUS, May 30.—Army men today foresaw a lengthy stay of the American expedition in Mexico when Gen. Pershing ordered the engineers to begin work on the abandoned Melimon railroad roadbed to Dublin. Motor trucks will be used when the road is completed. Pershing today ordered severe punishment for those attempting to sell liquor near the American camp. It is reported that Mexican authorities offered to send flowers for the grave of Corp. Marksbury, killed in action recently.

Drawbridge Rusty; Will Not Budge

Because the Puyallup river drawbridge at Lincoln avenue, east of the St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber company's plant, has been allowed to become rusty from disuse, the services of an ocean-going tug were required last night to pull the draw open. A former city administration had made no effort to keep the machinery in readiness for operation, according to city officials. The bridge is not opened as frequently as either of the city's lift bridges.

Last night a piledriver was towed up the Puyallup river. The tug signaled the bridgetender to open the span. The tender started his machinery, but the bridge refused to budge. He worked for an hour, without success, and then sent for Street and Bridge Supt. McGregor.

A second tug was summoned, and it fastened a cable to the draw. Started at full speed down stream, the tug gave a mighty jerk on the structure, and pulled the draw loose. Orders will be given to exercise the draw frequently in the future, so that it will be in constant readiness.

STOP TRAFFIC ON HILL LINES

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 30.—Simplicity will mark the funeral tomorrow afternoon of James J. Hill, the empire builder, who died at his home here following an operation. Rev. Thomas J. Gibbons, vicar general of the Catholic diocese of St. Paul, is to officiate. The services are to be private at the Summit avenue mansion, starting Wednesday at 2 p. m. The body will be placed in a tomb at North Oaks, the railroad builder's former summer home. At 2 p. m. every Hill railroad train in the country and every Hill liner at sea will stop for five minutes out of deference to the memory of James J. Hill.

FLASHES

NEW YARD FOR SHIP BUILDING

The establishment of a ship-building yard near the J. B. Stevens warehouse on the tidelands is practically assured, according to a statement made by P. Morrison, a Seattle shipping man. Plans for the docks, which will occupy a space 400 by 400 feet, will be made public shortly, it is believed. Two five masted schooners will be the first vessels constructed. About 150 men will be employed.
