Papers Burn Auto Bus

The bus running from Puyallup to Orting was completely destroyed by fire Tuesday night, after rolls of newspapers piled near the exhaust pipe caught fire. The car was full of passengers when, at the junction of the Sumner and Orting roads, the papers burst into flame. By the time the passengers all got out the fire was beyond control. There was no water near and there was nothing to do but stand by and watch the car burn.

Young Couple's Story Like Movie Thriller

LAWRENCE AVERY AND THE BRIDE HE CHOSE IN PREFERENCE TO RICHES.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Here's the kind of stuff movie plays are made of and this happened in real life.

Lawrence Avery, son of a local capitalist, has chosen love without even a cottage, after being told by his father he will have to go out and "scratch for himself" unless he gives up his girl-ride with whom he eloped.

After his recent marriage to Miss Glow Shipman, cashier in his father's store, Avery was taken to Waukesha, Wis., by a friend of his father and told the police were after him for perjury committed when he swore he was 21 when he was only 18.

Just in Love

A week later, Avery says, his father had him examined for sanity and tried to have him placed in a sanitarium.

"They found nothing the matter with me," said Avery, "except I was in love."

Later, the elder Avery persuaded the young husband to join the navy, the boy said, urging that it was the only way to escape arrest for perjury. Young Avery enlisted.

While at the navy training yard Avery wrote to his wife, who had been prostrated at her home since his disappearance.

Buy's Husband's Release

Her family mortgaged the household furniture to get railroad fare and Mrs. Avery hurried to Chicago. She found it necessary to buy her husband's release from the navy, returned to Kansas City and borrowed the required amount, $52, from friends.

Avery used his month's wages to return to Kansas City and arrived with only a few cents.

After a conference in which his father told him to choose between riches and his girl-ride, Avery went to his wife's home where the couple is living until Avery can find a job.

"Father told me I'd have to scratch for my self," said Avery, "and now I'm ready to show him I am some scratcher."

SAN DIEGO EXPO BOOSTER IN CITY

W. M. Irwin, publicity agent, of San Diego, Cal., is in Tacoma in the interest of the San Diego exposition. He says it will close at midnight Jan. 1, thereby breaking all records by making two years and a day of continuous exposition.

"The people of the northwest have been our best patrons during 1914," said Irwin, "and the people of San Diego greatly appreciate it. The exposition is at its best during November and December; the planting was never so beautiful and the weather simply ideal."

The ordinance provides that two of the members shall be women, one must be a theater proprietor and another a manager of a motion picture show. All appointments must meet the approval of the commissioners of public safety.

White Border On Hat New Fad for Widows front, in sharp contrast to the high collar usually considered part of mourning attire.

Lately Fashion relieved the widow of her enshrouding black crepe veil, but never has she abandoned the narrow cuffs and collar of white organdie.

A designer of stage costumes has discovered the artistic value of these white bands, and a new place for adding their emphasis to a mourning costume.

This is a border for the hat. White crepe is used for the purpose with such stunning effect that the fad promises to be adopted by married, unmarried and divorced, as well as widowed beauties.

The buttoned behind dress and the high tight collars are copies of styles worn by war widows. The pictures were posed by girls of "Go To It," the new musical comedy now in New York.

This moyer age dress for a widow is not intended for a widow of middle age.

On the contrary its princess lines are made to fall straight by the weight of a heavy fur border, making the dress suitable only for a slender figure.

The arrangement of the veil in a double box plait fall from beneath the hat brim is distinctive.
