CITY LIGHT PLANT MAKES GOOD

Carries Full 32,000 Horsepower Load For First Time

By E. A. Peters Tacoma's $2,000,000 electric plant has been put to the supreme test. And it has not been found wanting.

With the Nisqually river at a lower point than any time in the past dozen years, the turbines of the mammoth municipal power station have turned over at maximum speed for two days.

The four dynamos have generated their full overload capacity of 20,000 kilowatts, or 32,000 horsepower, during 14 straight hours of these two days.

Not only have they supplied all the juice for electric lights and commercial motors in Tacoma, but they have turned the wheels of every street car in the city and half of them in Seattle all at the same time.

It is the first time in the history of the city's plant that the electric system has had a chance to demonstrate its ability. It has lived up completely to the predictions of Engineer Kelsey, who designed it.

Four Turbines Running For more than three weeks the city plant has been furnishing electricity to operate Tacoma and Seattle's street cars. The electric department is selling 14,000 kilowatts a day to the company. Of this amount 7,000 kilowatts are used to operate Tacoma's cars.

Never before has it been necessary to use all four turbines at once. But on Monday and Saturday the four great water-driven engines ran steadily for 14 hours, delivering a quantity of electric current which skeptics had once pronounced impossible in the city's plant.

Nisqually Low The Nisqually river is so low that only three-tenths of a foot of water is flowing over the upper dam at La Grande. This is the lowest record in the history of the river gauges.

At the end of 14 hours' continuous run of all four dynamos, it was found that the turbines were taking water faster than the river could believe it.

But during the remaining 10 hours of "off peak load," between midnight and 10 o'clock the following day, when the demand for electricity was small, enough water backed up in the huge tanks to make another 14-hour run possible.

The city is getting approximately $500 a day from the Tacoma Railway & Power Co., for the electricity used for street car operation. The price is extremely low.

Pure Velvet. But the current is sold as "waste power." That is, our municipal plant is allowing the street car company to purchase cheaply electric current which the city cannot use normally and which we would otherwise have to literally throw away. According to Superintendent Llewellyn Evans, the extra cost of turning out this additional current is so small as to be scarcely worth figuring.

The $500 a day from the street railway company then is "velvet." The street car company's shortage of juice is due to the fact that a quantity of electric water in all rivers which operate the Stone-Webster hydro-electric plants is extremely low. There has been no rain for 55 days.

All of these rivers are on the north side of the hills and the cool weather has prevented the snow south side of the hills, and has had from melting. Nisqually is on the plenty of water until the past few days.

Comes to Scratch But the idea for Tacoma to be joyful over, is that the city plant, for the first time in its life, has shown that it can do everything that its builders promised of it.

Some day the demand for juice in Tacoma will be so great that even the four dynamos, pulling together, cannot satisfy it.

But until that time, our Nisqually plant is ready to deliver the goods.

R. R. President Talks

(Special to The Times.) FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 17.—Another railroad president has interferred with the effort to spread the impression that the Wilson administration has been detrimental to the business interests of the country.

E. P. Kearney, president of the Wabash railroad, today said: "Prosperity was on its way when the European war broke out, and the war is not the cause of the great business in the United States, but only served to hasten it. I expect to see the boom keep up even though the war should end tomorrow."

"The Wabash is doing wonderfully well and this is the greatest year in its history."

Accuse Sheriff Hodge

SEATTLE, Oct. 17.—Sheriff Bob Hodge of King county stands accused by the Millwaukeee railway today of allowing booze seized in a freight car to be sold to a Seattle druggist. Hodge claims the liquor was destroyed by his deputies.

Prosecuting Attorney Lundin has promised a rigid investigation. The charges are made in a letter from the railroad's attorney to the county commissioners demanding $170, the value of the booze confiscated on its way to a drug store in Renton. The letter says that a portion, if not all of this booze, was located in one of the downtown drug stores, having been sold to the proprietor by a plain clothes man.

Doctor Saves Himself

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—By remarkable presence of mind and physical effort, Dr. Ivan Balabanoff of Tacoma saved himself from death in the New York subway last night. The Tacoma man, who is 60 years old, was entering an express train just as the guard closed the end door. He was hit by the door and knocked down in such a way that his legs extended under the car platform while his head and most of his body remained outside.

The train had sped four blocks before his plight was discovered. Then it was found that he had held his body rigidly against the door to avoid hitting the subway pillars and signal boxes.

Parker Going Strong

(Special to The Times.) NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—No recent political event has emphasized more pointedly the extraordinary trend to President Wilson of progressive and independent voters than the present speaking tour in the east of John M. Parker, progressive nominee for vice president, which has developed into an open and vigorous campaign in advocacy of the president's re-election.

Candidate Parker began his campaign by merely condemning the betrayal of the progressive party at Chicago and attacking Mr. Hughes' candidacy, but he is now speaking primarily for the election of President Wilson.

Knock Tuberculosis

With an appeal to Tacoomans to aid in the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis league for another season, Tacoma women Tuesday are continuing their campaign to raise funds for stamping out the white plague in this city. A number of new memberships were obtained in the downtown stores Monday.

Mrs. Herman Watson is in charge of the campaign Tuesday. She and other women are to be found in the postoffice and department stores. Membership cost $1 a year, but any sum will be received.

Irish Rebel Coming

Cornelius Lehane, the famous Irish labor leader, orator and rebel, will speak on "The Irish Revolution" at 8 o'clock Saturday night, Oct. 21, in Eagles' hall. He will endeavor to show that the Irish revolution, which he helped to organize, although it did not result in a free nation, was a blessing to Ireland, since it saved her from conscription, keeping 300,000 Irishmen out of the war. Lehane is known as an eloquent speaker.

Challenged to Debate

(Special to The Times.) NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The women's bureau of the democratic national committee today challenged the women's committee of the national Hughes alliance to an open debate in New York on or after Oct. 30.

1916 Taxes Smaller?

County Assessor Cameron has figured it out that taxpayers of Tacoma and Pierce county will have to pay $116,795.70 less next year than they did this year, although the tax rates for 1916 show an increase. He reports that the lopping off of $8,551,657 in the assessed valuation of the county has decreased the amount of taxes to be collected $35,070.31.

Motorships In Demand

(United Press Lensed Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 17.—Shipping men here received word today that the Columbia river type of motorship is finding favor on the Atlantic coast. It was learned that Gaston, Williams & Wigmore of New York had contracted with the Grays Harbor Shipbuilding Co. of Aberdeen, Wash., for a vessel similar to the City of Portland, and that the same firm had just purchased a motorship on the ways at Grays Harbor for $225,000.

Real Novelty Is Headliner At Pantages

A really novel vaudeville act has come to town.

The three Rigoletto brothers, headliners on the new Pantages program, have brought to Tacoma one of the cleverest variety acts that has ever shown here. They do a little of everything, yet the stunts are so unusual that they win wild applause. There is a little demonstration of mysticism, some instrumental music, a juggling stunt, and a finale of poses to demonstrate physical development. The act is versatile, and popular.

Ned Nestor and his Sweethearts have a pleasing musical comedy.

The Three Bartos do their gymnastic stunts in a new manner, and draw spontaneous approval from the audiences.

Lester is a ventriloquist with a new sort of act. Crawford and Broderick have a witty skit. James Gordon, the tramp singer, has a good baritone voice.

OBEDY THREE YEARS MORE (United Press Lensed Wire) ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 16.—The proposal that words "obey" and "serve" in woman's portion of the Episcopal marriage ceremony be stricken from the ritual was referred back this afternoon to the commission of the book of common prayer for three more years.

(United Press Lensed Wire) WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 16.—Canadian Pacific trainmen heads met today to canvass a strike vote affecting all operating employes of their line. Indications favor a strike, it is reported.

The case was set for hearing Thursday. The girls were shot to death. The father said one had killed the other and then taken her own life.

No case has ever stirred Florida as has that of the Fudge children. Their bodies were found in the home on the edge of the city, late in the evening of June 27, both victims of a .22-caliber rifle, which was found on the premises.

The body of the younger girl was still warm, but the other child had been dead several hours, apparently.

Her body was found in a closet 30 feet from where her younger sister lay. Bruises indicated Teunie had made a struggle for life.

The family came to this city from Nashville, Tenn., a year ago following the sudden death of Mrs. Fudge. Her life had been insured with her husband as the beneficiary and part of the evidence against him in the case of his children will be policies for them in an industrial insurance company. Fudge has been in business straits for several months.
