—Capt. Mann of the str. Evangel did not come up on his steamer last night but remained in Seattle, where his younger brother, Charles is seriously ill. The young man was working in a saw-mill and was on Thursday stricken with paralysis on one side of his body. This has later spread until now his whole body is affected and he is expected to die at any time.

Knows a Snap When he Sees it.

The Daniel Biegan property which was sold at auction, on the 23d, was bought by L. B. Carter for $847.00. This property lies on Rocky Bay, near Roche Harbor, over one-half of which is A No. 1 land. Carter says he don't want any more land but knows a snap when he sees it.

"Perhaps you would not think so, but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Cyrus Edson. "It is such a simple, thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. There are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is, when you have one, get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it!" Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take how Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 50 cent bottles for sale by Druggists.

MORE ABOUT THE BUCKEYE.

The wreck of the steamer Buckeye has been towed to Fairhaven. The cabin is entirely gone and the tug pulled out the upper part of her stem, but the hull and machinery are intact. We understand that Mr. Newhall will sponsor and rebuild the wreck and make a good seaworthy craft of her.

It seems useless and unnecessary to try to attach blame for the accident to anyone. Perhaps Capt. Hahn was indiscreet in not stopping at Anacortes until the storm had abated, but one thing seems certain, and that is, that when the crash came he was as cool as the average captain is expected to be, and those who survive the wreck owe their lives to his prompt action.

The body of Kautzman, the man who was washed off the raft and drowned was found on the beach at John Bennett's, place near Fort Bellingham, last Thursday afternoon, by two little boys named Mitchell and Geer, and was taken possession of by the coroner. The body showed several bad cuts, which had been inflicted by the glass in his attempt to crawl through the cabin window. The coroner found $35 in gold in little sacks pinned to his undershirt, and some small change. His watch had stopped at 4:08. He was neatly dressed, and wore a diamond pin in his shirt front. His watch was a fine gold instrument. Mr. Kautzman was landlord of the Wilson House in Anacortes and a liquor dealer, and was going to Whatcom to pay the county taxes on Elk street property, and go into the liquor business. He was 55 years old, and leaves a wife and two grown sons in Anacortes. He belonged to the Odd Fellows, A. O. U. W., Sons of Herman, Knights of Pythias, and other societies. He carried life insurance to the amount of $8,000.

TALES OF THE SURVIVORS.

Tony Vogt, a stock buyer, of this island, who escaped in the boat, was taking care of his cattle in the bow of the boat when the heavy seas commenced to strike the steamer. The waves washed over the top of the doors and drenched him, and he began to realize it was time to go. He launched a skiff bow first, which was engulfed by the waves and lost, and then helped out away the dingy, to which all rushed. Asher and Bennet saw that the boat would not carry all of them and so they climbed out and took to a raft. Kautzman had succeeded in wriggling out of the window, badly cut and bloody, and had taken possession of the life raft with the mate, Capt. Bowden. Messrs Asher and Bennet boarded a raft, which had been hastily constructed out of pieces of the cabin; both of the rafts were tied to the steamer. This was a most terrible time. The woman had been forced into the boat and was frantic upon being separated from her husband, who was covered with blood, and was a hideous sight. The passengers and some of the crew were screaming, and it seemed that the whole party would be swallowed up by the waves, which came roaring in and tossed the wreck, rafts and dingy up in the air and then engulfed them in the seething brine. The boat pulled out and disappeared in the waves. Those who were not rowing bailed out the water. Will D. Jenkins at one time lost a rowlock, but very fortunately it fell inside the boat, or the voyage would have ended at once. Vogt states that they were using shoes, hats and hands to keep the water out of the boat. When the great rollers came roaring at them, and heaving over them like a mountain, he was apprehensive that he was about to have to swim, and then there made up his mind if the boat swamped to ride the cow, which was swimming after them, to shore. The boat as they approached shore was capsized by a huge wave and the people were driven pell mell upon the rocks, bruising and laming them.

Vogt carried the woman two miles to shelter. Captain Hahn hastened to Fairhaven six miles away, through the brush, on the run, secured the tug Boyden, and the men on the rafts are indebted for their lives to his promptness. The tug rescued Asher, Bennett and Bowden as they were ready to drop into the water from cold and exhaustion. They were so benumbed that they could not move and had to be lifted aboard the tug.

INCIDENTS OF THE WRECK

Mate Bowden says that Kautzman died in his arms not more than two minutes before the tug arrived. Bowden rescued him at considerable risk to his own life, but he could not keep the body. Asher and Bennet were on the life raft, of which there was but one; Bowden stood up on the house of the steamer and Kautzman lay beside it and refused to avail himself of a safe position as Mr. Bowden urged him to do.

There were, according to Capt. Bowden, but three cows and but two calves aboard the steamer.

Tony Vogt lost $140 worth of stock and produce. Mr. Vogt appeared to be well satisfied with saving his own life, and says that the "ranchers" will raise more cattle but they cannot raise more Vogts."

Mr. Will D. Jenkins, one of the passengers who succeeded in reaching the shore in the skiff, says: "Life on the ocean wave, and a home on the rolling deep" is very pretty in song—when on the shore.

Investigations into the causes which led to the deplorable accident, were held in Seattle yesterday, but we have not as yet learned the result.

PORT STANLEY NEWS.

Everybody is busy putting in their spring gardens.

A meeting is called, for Thursday evening, at the schoolhouse, to discuss and take steps toward organizing a "Labor Exchange."

Mr. Dickerson has a crew of men getting out piles to build fish traps at Point Roberts.

Frank P. Baum is busy packing up, preparatory to moving to Burlington, Skagit county, where he will publish a populist paper.

S. N. Gustin and family expect to move to Seattle in the near future.

The Port Stanley store is doing a fine business this spring.

Rev. W. H. Black preached a very interesting sermon, at the Port Stanley M. E. church, last Sunday.

Rev. W. H. Black and family will move into Frank P. Baum's house, at Port Stanley, when the latter moves out.

TRICKS THAT ARE VAIN.

A "Double Back Somersault" That Proves to be a Boomerang.

Circus tricks are not more venturesome than are some of the acrobatic distortions of truth that the Royal Baking Powder Company has been lately exploiting on this coast. An article was recently published in this paper aimed at the Price Baking Powder Company, of Chicago. It has been found, on investigation, full of error and false statements. John Boyd Thatcher and the judge of awards on baking powder, it was stated, had written to the Price Company claiming that its advertisements of a World's Fair award were "incorrect." This statement is found to be without the least semblance of truth.

All ammonia powders were rigidly barred from the Fair by the positive order of Prof. Wiley, judge of awards on baking powders. The Royal did not exhibit at the Fair. Was it barred because it contained ammonia?

It is an indisputable fact that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder carried off the highest honors at the World's Fair and later the Special Gold Medal at the San Francisco Mid-Winter Fair.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper, a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anything. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it," he says, "and have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to all persons similarly afflicted. It is for sale by all Druggists.

FOR WOMAN'S WEAR.

BLACK velvet collars with ermine edging are popular.

ALSATIAN bow effects in short plumes are among the novelty hat trimmings.

LITTLE pompon trimmings standing upright over the forehead are much liked for stylish young women.

A SEALSKIN cape made in full ruffle fashion with a longer cape of ermine is new and stylish, and expensive as well.

A GENUINE old-fashioned poke bonnet has a trimming of loops of ribbon at the side with plumes standing high up over the crown. It is tied under the chin with wide ribbons.

AN exceedingly stylish hat is made of satin brocade with velvet. It is in leaf-brown shades and is trimmed with jet, plumes and a dash of cardinal such as one sees in autumn foliage.

HAIR-DRESSING is a puzzle as well as a fine art. The disgusting lump that has for so long protruded from the knot of hair at the back of the head has fallen, let us hope, into oblivion. In its place we have soft loops and coils, the figure eight, a modified Psyche knot, and a butterfly arrangement just over the crown of the head.

FOR SALE CHEAP.
