We Owe the Hat to Asia.

We owe the hat to Asia, for it was in that country that the art of felting wool was first known, and from the most remote periods the art was carried on by the orientals. In India, China, Burma and Siam hats are made of straw, of rattan, of bamboo, of pith, of the leaf of the Tallport palm and of a large variety of grasses. The Japanese made their hats of paper. The modern hat can be traced back to the petasurs worn by the ancient Romans when on a journey, and hats with brims were also used by the earlier Greeks.

It was not until after the Roman conquest that the use of hats began in England. A "hatte of biever," about the middle of the twelfth century, was worn by one of the nobles of the land. Fraissort describes hats and plumes which were worn at Edward's court in 1340, when the Garter order was instituted. The merchant in Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" had "on his head a Flaunderish beaver hat," and from that period onward there is frequent mention of "felt hattes."

WATER FOR STOCK.

A First Class Tankhouse and Its Advantages the Year Round.

On about every farm there is an outdoor watering trough that supplies water for the stock both summer and winter. In hot weather it is necessary to protect the trough in order to keep the water cool and wholesome, and in winter to keep it from freezing, says a Michigan correspondent in the Ohio Farmer. The accompanying photograph shows a building for this purpose, and it can be built at a very small expense. The shelter was designed to cover a long tank, which seems to be a general favorite with all classes of farmers.

The building is 12 feet long, studding 6 1/2 feet high. The distance from the ground to gable is seven feet. The roof is an ordinary gable roof, though only one-half is shown in the photograph. Two sets of openings, each 30 by 36 inches, are built into the structure, through which the stock may reach the water. Two of these are shown in the cut. This arrangement has the advantage of allowing stock from two different yards to use the same tank. The openings are arranged with drop doors on the inside. These are up in place and do not show in the cut. It will be noted, however, that a small rope is attached to the partition between the two openings, which holds the traps in place and also raises and lowers them without difficulty. These are of great importance and should not be omitted from any such structure. By a careful use of these doors one is able to pack the tank and keep the packing in good condition without much effort.

The width of the building is five feet, which does very well for a three foot tank. This gives ample room for packing. Obviously tanks of various widths must have houses built according to their dimensions, but care should be taken that there is sufficient room for Thorough packing and yet no danger that the stock will not be able to reach the water without difficulty. The house has been four years in continual use, and I have yet to see the weather so cold as to freeze the water so that cattle could not drink.

A Hog Scalding Trough.

The cut is presented by a Rural New Yorker correspondent as representing a scene on an Indiana farm at butchering time. He says: In the foreground is shown an improvement over the old method of using a barrel and heating the water in kettles and with hot stones. This pan saves much hard work in lifting, and the hogs are scalded better, as the water can be kept at the right temperature. The pan has a sheet iron bottom and ends and is placed over a small trench in which a fire is built to heat the water in the scalding. The sides and ends are made flaring, and the dimensions of the pan are as follows, outside measurements: Bottom, 33 inches wide and 5 feet 8 inches long; ends, 23 inches wide at bottom and 30 inches at top; sides, 24 inches deep, 5 feet 8 inches long at bottom and 6 feet 3 inches at top. The bottom and ends are one piece and nailed directly to the two inch pine sides. This pan cost $4 and has been in use every winter by nearly all our near neighbors for ten years. Try one.

Alfalfa Culture in Brief.

Plow deep early in spring and fit the land thoroughly. Sow fifteen pounds of alfalfa to the acre and roll well after seeding. Some prefer light seeding of oats with alfalfa. Cut when coming into bloom. Never let go to seed or your stand is "a goner."

SHERIFF'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue of an order of sale issued out of the Superior Court of the state of Washington, for the county of San Juan, and to me directed and delivered, for a judgment of foreclosure rendered in said Court on the 7th day of July A. D. 1903, in favor of Winfield K. Smith, plaintiff, and against Sten K. Larson and Annie Larson, his wife; and Eliza Harriet Jane Daly and Philip Daly, her husband, defendants, for the sum of $280.84 with interest at the rate of 10 per cent from its date, until paid, and $31.15 costs of suit, I have levied upon the following described real estate, to-wit:
Lot one (1) Section fourteen (14), and Lot two (2) Section fifteen (15), in Township thirty-four (34) North, Range two (2) West, W. M., containing 32.40 acres; situate, lying and being in San Juan County, State of Washington.
Notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the 8th day of August, A. D. 1903, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the Court House door, in Friday Harbor, in said county of San Juan, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said Sten K. Larson and Annie Larson, his wife; and Eliza Harriet Jane Daly and Philip Daly, her husband, defendants, in and to the above described real estate, to the highest and best bidder, to satisfy said execution and all costs.
Given under my hand this 7th day of July A. D. 1903.
W. H. McCrary, Sheriff of San Juan County, Washington.

JOHN REX THOMPSON, Manager

One Out of Thousands

Here a man writes that he has after years of suffering from catarrh of the nose and throat at last begun to experience the delight of perfect freedom from colds and throat trouble. He states that he has been treating himself by the Mackenzie "Method" for two months and that he hasn't the slightest doubt but that two more will see him once again a well man.

He says that no one who has not had his head continually stopped up and his throat most of the time raw and sore, and hearing gradually growing worse, can appreciate the boon which this Mackenzie treatment has been to him.

He is one out of the thousands who return similar testimony of the effectiveness of the "Method." And yet this "Method" is simple, can be applied by one's self in a few minutes each day. It is not a salt water douche nor a blood purifier. Catarrh is a germ disease and it is necessary to destroy the germ whether they be in the nose or the blood or elsewhere before the cure is accomplished. A sarsaparilla removes merely the waste matter from the blood; it is not germicidal and therefore cannot cure catarrh. A salt water douche or other douches for the nasal passage cannot cure, because the catarrhal inflammation in the great majority of cases extends to the minute capillary tubes back of the nose which cannot be reached by douches.

Are you interested to learn something of the Mackenzie treatment? Full information on request.
