

The Macmillan Company has in active preparation "Light and Water: A Study of Reflection and Color in River, Lake and Sea," by Sir Montagu Pollock, Bart. This is described as a book of some value to the art student and of interest to the general reader.

Louisa Parr, the English novelist, whose death is noted, will be remembered longest probably by her story, "Dorothy Fox," originally published in 1870 and brought out in new form by the American publishers, J. B. Lippincott Company, two years ago.

Eden Phillpotts has returned to the Devonshire, which has helped him so much in the past, for the scenes of his latest story. It is called "The Farm and the Dagger," and the events it relates are supposed to date from the period just before the battle of Waterloo.

A prize is awaiting some liberal collector in a London book shop. It consists of the actual volumes in which George Meredith corrected his own works when the edition de luxe of them was published a few years ago. He made many alterations in the text and some excisions.

An immense amount of research has preceded the publication of "French and English Furniture," which McClure, Phillips & Co. are bringing out. The author is Esther Singleton, who is already well known by her book, "The Furniture of Our Forefathers," and other similar works.

"Sally, Mrs. Tubbs," by Margaret Sidney, a cheerful little story about an angular and energetic spinster, one Sally Plunkett, whose great desire in life is to get married. "I ain't goin' to be an old maid, an' I will be if I strike fifty unmaried," she says, and at the last moment, having passed forty-nine, she succeeds in catching 'Bijah Tubbs, who is not more than half as big as she, but who will bring her the proud privilege of having "relict" on her tomb when she dies. What with little 'Bijah's horror of the matrimonial tie, and Sally's exultant delight in it and in her husband, the two furnish much amusement for their neighbors, and for the summer boarders at the big hotel near by. However, Sally is very good to 'Bijah, and supports him in great comfort by doing laundry work for the summer boarders.

Distress After Eating

Nausea between meals, belching, vomiting, flatulence, fits of nervous headache, pain in the stomach, are all symptoms of dyspepsia, and the longer it is neglected the harder it is to cure it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Radically and permanently cure it—strengthen and tone the stomach and other digestive organs for the natural performance of their functions.

Accept no substitute for Hood's. "I had dyspepsia twenty-five years and took different medicines but got no help until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Have taken four bottles of this medicine and can now eat almost anything, sleep well, have no cramps in my stomach, no burning and no distress." Mrs. WILLIAM G. BARRETT, 14 Olney St., Providence, R. I.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

A Valuable Gift.

Will Carleton, the poet and lecturer, was lecturing in a western city several years ago, when, on leaving the platform, he was accosted by a pleasant shabby looking old woman.

"Mr. Carleton," she said, "I want to ask a great favor. Will you give me the handkerchief you carried while you lectured this evening?"

"Why, what on earth do you want that for?"

"I am very poor, Mr. Carleton," she said, "and if you give me that handkerchief I think I can live on it a year."

Mr. Carleton stared. "A year! You shall certainly have it," and the old woman retired with the handkerchief, profusely thanking him.

Later Mr. Carleton learned that she had embroidered his name on it, and "ruffed" it to so good effect that she cleared several hundred dollars, enough to live on for a year.

Was Not Afraid of His Job.

Dean Hurlburt in his characteristically dry fashion told the following story at the overflow meeting at the Harvard union yesterday:

A little boy who had a good idea of his artistic ability was found by one of his father's friends at work drawing a picture.

"What are you drawing?" he asked the boy.

"I am drawing a picture of God," replied the boy, hardly looking up from his work.

"Why, you cannot draw a picture of God," said his friend. "No one draws a picture of God, because they do not know what he looks like."

"I know it," replied the youthful artist, "but they will when I get through."—Boston Evening Record.

Taste and Touch in Fishes.

The sense of touch is highly developed in many fishes, and doubtless enables them to communicate. The sense of taste, located all over the skin in some fishes, in the fins in others, and the sense of smell, strongly developed in some forms of submarine life, also must be aids to communication. These queer locations of the sense of taste have recently been very carefully studied.—St. Nicholas.

The Value of Absence.

When Thomas Valentine Cooper was chairman of the Republican State committee in Pennsylvania he had considerable difficulty in managing a certain candidate for Congress, who was a miserably talker, but thought that he was gifted with the eloquence of Demosthenes.

There was one township in the county that seemed doubtful, and the candidate was anxious to go there and air his oratory.

"Mr. Chairman," he said to Cooper, "I should like to go down to that township on Saturday night and make a speech. You know the vote will be close there. What do you say?"

"No," replied Cooper, with great emphasis on the little word, "we want to carry that township. Stay away from there."

He stayed away, and was elected.

Could Get No Rest.

Freeborn, Minn., Oct. 17.—(Special)—Mr. R. E. Goward, a well known man here is rejoicing in the relief from suffering he had obtained through using Dodd's Kidney Pills. His experience is well worth repeating as it should point the road to health to many another in a similar condition.

"I had an aggravating case of Kidney Trouble," says Mr. Goward, "that gave me no rest day or night but using a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills put new life in me and I feel like a new man."

"I am happy to state that I have received great and wonderful benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills. I would heartily recommend all sufferers from Kidney Trouble to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a fair trial as I have every reason to believe it would never be regretted." Dodd's Kidney Pills make you feel like a new man or woman because they cure the Kidneys. Cured kidneys mean pure blood and pure blood means bounding health and energy in every part of the body.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. American men of letters continue to gravitate eastward. Booth Tarkington, the Indiana novelist, who has been nearly a year in Europe, spending most of the time in Rome and Paris, declares his purpose to live in New York for a year or more and give his time to studying and writing stories of political life. This probably means that he will stay there permanently and it will be interesting to observe the effect. It varies widely with different people; Howells and Bret Harte, for example.

Moncure Conway's autobiography should be one of the most remarkable books of the season. He is 80 years of age and thirty years of his life were spent in London. He is Virginian by birth, connected by family ties with the Washingtons and other historic Virginians. His book will present a rare and intimate picture of life in the South in his boyhood in the '40's and '50's of the last century. It will present also the matter of the author's conversations with Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Lowell, Garrison, Tennyson, Disraeli, Carlyle, Browning, Gladstone, Burne Jones and many other men of distinction.

Hamlin Garland describes himself as a novelist, dramatist, and farmer. Writing to a friend recently of his farm at West Salem, Wis., he says: "My life here goes on like the hands on a town clock. I write three hours in the morning, and work in the garden, do carpentering or build fences in the afternoon, go to bed at nine, and rise at half-past six the next day, to take up the same routine. . . . I sold twenty-five dollars' worth of strawberries and forty dollars' worth of early potatoes—but that sounds too much like boasting. . . . I've got the dog-gonedest patch of hubbard squashes!"

One of the literary periodicals squints a trifle toward sensation in an announcement that "it will be news to the reading public that Russia has a counterpart to the shrine of Lourdes" in the Sarov spring on the site of the hut of St. Seraphim, and promises the story of the canonization of the saint a year ago, when the whole royal family took part in the ceremony. The magazine's announcer is mistaken. It is not "news," unless, perhaps, to a few. The story was told in print some time ago of how a hermit of a century or so ago was really one of the czars, who, suspected, justly or unjustly, of having joined in the murder of his uncle, abdicated the throne and lived ever after as a "holy hermit." "The reading public" has been told all about the growth of the absurd myth.

In this period of Lewis and Clark celebrations the appearance of a fine library reprint of Gass's Journal is especially pertinent. Sergeant Patrick Gass was the dominant figure among the rank and file in the celebrated expedition across the continent, and although an entirely unlettered man, his diary, brought out in the first years of the nineteenth century, was one of the most valuable contributions to the literature of the subject. It has, however, been for many years unavailable. The volume is edited, with an introduction, by Dr. James K. Hosmer, and has an analytical index and fac-similes of the quaint original illustrations. The same house will also issue a "Short History of Oregon," compiled by Sidona B. Johnson, which will cover the early discoveries, the Lewis and Clark explorations, settlement, government, Indian wars, and progress.

DREAD OF HUMANITY

I am compelled by a sense of gratitude to tell you the great good your remedy has done me in case of Contagious Blood Poison. Among other symptoms I was severely afflicted with Rheumatism, and got almost past going. The disease got a firm hold upon my system; my blood was thoroughly poisoned with the virus. I lost in weight, was run down, had sore throat, eruptions, spots, and other evidences of the disease. I was truly in a bad shape when I began the use of S. S. S., but the persistent use of it brought me out of my trouble safe and sound, and I have the courage to publicly testify to the virtues of your great blood remedy, S. S. S., and to recommend it to all blood-poison sufferers, sincerely believing if it is taken according to directions, and given a fair trial, it will thoroughly eliminate every particle of the virus.
