The state is making a strong effort to have agriculture taught in the rural schools and offers very substantial prizes for vegetables and flowers grown by children under twenty, whether in school or out. The children of East Sound are entering most heartily into the movement. A local fair will be held one day in October, probably on the school ground, which is looking very up-to-date with the playground apparatus given by the Mothers' club and the Village Improvement club. Much interest is being shown in this fair and prizes so far are being offered by the Madrona club, Village Improvement club, Templin's Fair Co. and several private individuals. The things to be shown are carrots, potatoes, mangels, onions and grains, and dahlias, asters, sweet peas and pansies. The prize winning articles at the local fair will be sent to the county fair and thence to the state fair. However, before being eligible for the state fair a club would have to be formed, of the children and others interested, to be under a supervisor appointed by Mr. Flint state inspector. Each entry would have to be accompanied by a paper telling exactly how the work was done and what everything cost. Each boy and girl under twelve may have their plowing done for them but must do everything else themselves. Over twelve must do their own plowing. Mr. Flint will be glad to visit East Sound and organize, if enough interest is shown. Miss Mann, teacher of the East Sound school will be glad to answer questions of those interested.
