NERVOUS ATTACKS.
"I suffered with nervous attacks and headaches. Then my liver got out of order and it seemed as though my whole system was upset. I commenced using Dr. Miles' Nervine and also took Dr. Miles' Liver Pills and now I feel perfectly well in every way. My bowels also are in good shape now."

MRS. AUGUSTA KEISER,
1149 Portland Ave.,
Rochester, N. Y.

With the largest crops in the history of the country, the largest amount of money in circulation and the greatest percentage of employed labor in history, the return of general prosperity in the United States is only a matter of good planning and judicious management, according to the Old National bank, in its December review of general business conditions. A marked increase in the cut and shipment of western and yellow pine over a year ago is a significant feature of the review.

"In every section of the United States the people are talking prosperity. Far-seeing business men in the north, south, east and west are preparing for boom times." This is the word brought back to Spokane by John C. Pritz, local sales agent of the National Cash Register Company, who recently returned from attending a three-day prosperity convention of the company's 800 American salesmen in Dayton, Ohio.

A New York city dispatch to the Review says: "Merchants here say Americans have more money to spend for Christmas this year than in any holiday season since 1906. The big stores are preparing for a record trade and wholesale houses are unable to fill orders in many lines. This is attributed to a rush of buyers from other cities to replenish depleted stocks. L. S. Pelz, secretary of the Wholesale and Retail Merchants' Association, said today that the merchants of New York have never known better times.

J. M. Hannaford, president of the Northern Pacific, said in Spokane last week:

"There is positively no reason, unless it be a personal or purely local reason, why any man, woman or child in the United States should shout 'hard times.' I am not a politician—I'm a railroad—but I can see no reason why the republican party has any complaint to find with the present administration nor could I see any reason to complain should the republican party come into power again. The party does not make or break a country and the quicker we come to realize it the better off we will be. As for the railroad, we are quite elated over the increase in business. After a tour of the lines we find that everywhere everybody is enjoying prosperity in some form."

The republican press, more especially that of the eastern states, which enjoyed the protection of their manufacturers and the use of cheap imported labor under the republican tariff, find the pill of present prosperity hard to swallow. The "solid industrial policies of the republican party" caused its defeat, and the party's unbroken record for adherence to that policy for the benefit of a few industries and a small proportion of the population, and at the expense of the larger portion, is so well known that the opportunity for the re-establishment of a republican tariff is remote. The republican party has hoped for hard times; has talked hard times; has prophesied hard times, and now seeks to explain good times in such a manner as to make party capital. As it can not be done, those who reckon upon a return of the conditions which caused the republicans to lose power are reckoning without their former host of voters.—Colfax Commoner.

Congressman C. C. Dill, writing from the national capital, says: "When I came to Washington about Nov. 1, Mr. Bryan was apparently the only man of importance here who was voicing opposition to the preparedness plan which means the spending of $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 for increases of the army and navy. A few days later Mr. Kitchin, the majority leader of the House, announced his opposition. Champ Clark, the speaker, told the president that he was for a "reasonable" increase in the army and navy, and most of the congressmen and senators who offered to support a program for greater defense gave out statements qualifying their support in various ways. In many instances they do not hesitate to say that their constituents are writing them opposing any great increases.

"About this time some of the newspaper men here who represent the big dailies in the various large cities of the country began to question whether the program would go through. The president then announced that he would make this a non-partisan question, and that he would ask the republican leaders to confer with him. Mr. Mann, the republican leader of the House, on his arrival in Washington, stated he would accept the president's invitation to talk over the preparedness program, but he would not "take orders from the White House." His further statement that the republicans will act as they think best regardless of the administration, is taken to mean that the president must take what he can get in the way of support for preparedness from the minority.

"I know from talking with various members of congress now here that the fight against the preparedness plan will be made by turning the enemy's flank, to use a military term, as well as by frontal attacks. They propose to direct attention to the subject of expenditures and are already securing much publicity along this line. The two questions they put forward are: Who is to pay the bills? Why should any one profit by war preparations?"

December 6-12 is "health week" of the Washington Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. The circular issued by the association is of such value to the public that it is here printed in full:

"What are your health assets and liabilities and how do your body accounts balance? Did you ever ask yourself that question? You would not think of running your business without some accounts. Why run your body without keeping some accounts. Why run your body without getting at least a yearly balance to show if there are any losses or gains?"

"If you have an automobile, bicycle, plough or any other machine, you look it over once in a while to see if there are any parts that are wearing out or need repair. If you have a fine horse, pig, cow or even a hen, you wouldn't think of neglecting it. You give it regular inspections to see if it is keeping up to the standard. Do you have your body inspected at regular intervals to see if there are any leaks or breaks in the human machine? Which is worth more, your automobile, your cow, or your body?"

"Careful investigations have shown that the physically perfect man is almost impossible to find. Almost every one, who has reached the age of 30, has some impairment or defect of his body. It may be such a minor defect as a decayed tooth, or a slight digestive disturbance. Or it may be trouble with the kidneys that will develop into Bright's Disease if it is not attended to promptly. Out of 2,000 men and women examined, 70 per cent were found to have impairments of a more or less serious nature, while all of the remaining 30 per cent had some defects of a minor character. Are you sure you are physically perfect? If you are not, you had better arrange for a careful medical examination. Little defects or impairments, if neglected, may cause untold suffering and loss. Discover them in time by having your body inspected.

"If you have a regular family physician, arrange with him for a thorough overhauling of your body. This inspection, which should be conducted without clothing, should consist at least of the following: Height, weight, chest and abdominal measurements and a survey of the general bodily condition. Examination of eyes, ears, nose, throat, mouth, teeth, tongue, skin, glands, lungs, heart, circulation, stomach, liver, and other abdominal organs. Examination for evidences of rupture, varicose veins, faulty posture, flat-foot, spinal curvature, deformities and asymmetries. Tests of the vision and hearing. Tests of the brain and nervous system for paresis, locomotor ataxia and other central nervous affections or nervous instability. Chemical and microscopic examination of the urine. Blood pressure tests.

"If you have no family physician, or wish to go to a different one, the local anti-tuberculosis society in your community will give you names of some good doctors, or you may write to The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 east 22d street, New York. If careful examination by your family doctor reveals some impairment that demands special attention, it will pay you to have a consultation with a specialist. In any case, insist that whoever examines you, covers the ground indicated in this circular. No matter how well you may feel, you need a careful inventory to show the way every part of your body machinery is working.

"On Dec. 8, a special effort will be made by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and its affiliated organizations to interest every one possible in the subject of at least one medical examination a year. Everybody will be doing it on that day. This is a good time for you to start. If you can't be examined on Dec. 8, however, make arrangements for another date.

"Do not imagine because you feel perfectly well you need no examination. It will be worth the cost of examination for you to know positively just where your health account stands. Out of thousands who have been examined and found to be impaired, only 10 per cent imagined there was anything wrong with them; the remaining 90 per cent supposed themselves "perfectly well." Now is the time for you to attend to this taking stock of your physical assets.

"You can get a thorough physical examination including all of the things mentioned in this circular and many other features for not more than $5 anywhere in the United States. In many communities you can get such an examination as low as $2.50 or even less. If an inspection of your body reveals a little break that can be repaired for a dollar or two, which is cheaper, to let that little break continue until it becomes chronic tuberculosis, cancer or Bright's Disease, which will cost hundreds of dollars to treat and which may never be cured—or to stop it at its very beginning? The time to prevent disease from sapping your vitality is before it gets a foothold. The best way to discover disease early is to have a periodic overhauling of your body.

"The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis believes in periodic physical examination both for the sick and the well; for the for-
