Five hundred was played, after which dainty refreshments were served. Miss Alice Conner gave an appropriate reading, after which Delbert Closson announced the engagement of the two couples. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Haney were chaperons during the evening.

One of the best attended Pomona meetings ever held in Stevens county was held in Colville Tuesday of this week. State Master Bouck was present, also every local Pomona officer, except the secretary. Some very important legislative suggestions were discussed. Through the urgent invitation of the Colville chamber of commerce the next meeting of Pomona will be held in Colville on the last Friday in February. It is hoped at this meeting every orange in the county will be represented, as this is election year and it is desired that the farmers line up and make their wishes known.

Officials of the Spokane, Valley & Northern railroad claim to have broken a world's record in the construction of their line running northwest from the Great Northern line at Valley to the magnesite fields. The first engine went on the tracks last week. The grade has been put through in 120 days from the time work was started. As many as 700 men have been employed upon it. The equipment will be a single 10-car train for the present. The line is finished and the rails laid to the first quarry, a distance of six miles, and train service is to be initiated immediately. The line cost $500,000 and taps a section of the magnesite fields.

Burns Co., the heaviest meat contractors in Canada, is here for a few weeks' visit with his son Carl, who resides on the homestead on Mill creek. Mr. Dehaven states that the extreme cold winter weather of the north country was too hard to withstand for a long period of time and he was obliged to escape into a milder climate. The mercury registered 52 degrees below zero when he left Edmonton three weeks ago.

Beginning last Saturday and continuing until March 13, the meatless program for hotels, restaurants and private families will be discontinued in the Pacific coast states, according to instructions received at the office of the federal food administrator from Herbert Hoover. A wire came from Mr. Hoover, and later a telegram was received from Charles Hebbard, who is now in Washington, D. C., as follows: "The 60-day holiday includes mutton, and changes no muttons Tuesday and meatless meals for the coast states temporarily to porkless, and continuing porkless Saturday." The coast states referred to are Washington, Oregon, Idaho, California, Nevada and Arizona. A telegram from the administrator states that if the holiday in the meatless program results in any unjustifiable increase in the price of mutton and veal the holiday will be canceled forthwith.

"You Always Pay."

"You always pay, you know," said a forger who was captured recently after years of liberty as a fugitive from justice.

Sure you do. Whether you violate man's law or nature's law, which is another name for God's law, you always have to pay, and the full price, too. Some pay, as this man did, in dodging and slinking through the world like a hunted beast, his mind worried, his face gradually taking on a furtive look, knowing always that somewhere ahead lay the steel jawed trap all set and ready.

Some pay with broken health, others with broken hearts; some surrender friends and love, some give all in life worth living for; some cast their conscience to be gnawed by the wolves of remorse, some not only pay their own share in full, but shift part of the burden to their children and their children's children, even to the third and fourth generation, for the debt must be paid to the last farthing.—Kansas City Star.

Have You a Dodge Miniature?

There are today a very large number of homes in America where the most treasured possession is a small old fashioned miniature, painted some time between the years 1828 and 1870, most likely, and which bears in tiny, unostentatious lettering the name of the artist, "J. Dodge." If the miniature be that of a bona fide ancestor and not that of the bought variety its possession is better than a D. A. R. pin, for in practically every instance it is all the proof necessary that the family ancestor was somebody. For the artist who painted these pictures did the most masterly work, and his patrons represented the statesmen and leaders of their time. Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, Andrew Johnson, Aaron Burr—men famous throughout the nation—sat to the painter whose art was devoted to the tiny miniature portraits on ivory.—Exchange.

Henry C. Frick on Success.

"The secret of my success?" said Henry C. Frick. "There is no secret about success. Success simply calls for hard work, devotion to your business at all times, day and night. I was very poor, and my education was limited, but I worked very hard and always sought opportunities.

"To win in the battle of life a man needs, in addition to whatever ability he possesses, courage, tenacity and deliberation. He must learn never to lose his head.

"But, above all, hard work is the thing. For six years, from 1889 to 1895, when I first took hold of the Carnegie steel business, I did not have a day's vacation. I reached the office every morning between 7 and 8 and did not leave until 6. My example had an influence upon the others. Carnegie often remarked to me, 'You do get work out of those men.' They worked because they saw that I—was then the chairman of the company—worked."—B. C. Forbes in Leslie's.

The Monroe Doctrine.

President Monroe in his seventh annual message (Dec. 2, 1823) laid down the principle of what has since been known as the "Monroe doctrine," thus: "We owe it to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those (great European) powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere, but with the governments who have declared their independence and maintained it and whose independence we have not only considered and on just principles acknowledged we would not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

Austria's Royal Family.

The Hapsburgs, or Habsburgs, of the royal house of Austria derive their name from the castle of Habichtsburg, or Hawk castle, in the Swiss canton of Aargau. In the twelfth century the family became one of the most powerful in Swabia. Rudolf III, was elected emperor of Austria in the following century. While thus extending their possessions and acquiring influence, the Hapsburgs lost their original family possessions, which were gradually absorbed by the cantons. Some thirty-five years ago the Austrians proposed to purchase the castle of Hapsburg and give it as a wedding gift to the crown prince of Austria, but the people of Aargau refused to hear of the sale.

The Original Macaroni.

Macaroni, which is now being strongly recommended as a cheap and sustaining food, is not at all what its name implies, for maccheroni, as Italians spell it, means a mixture, and at first was one, the ingredients being butter, cheese and flour. But today macaroni is the name for the familiar tubes which are compounded of hard Italian wheat and water alone. It was therefore from the original meaning of the word that macaroni poetry, in which Latin is blended with a vernacular, derived its name.—London Chronicle.

Shed Their Shoes.

On entering a Japanese moving picture theater shoes and clogs are removed, attendants hanging them on pegs in the wall. Thus the pegged wall becomes an adding machine for the manager of the theater. If he ever has any doubt as to the honesty of the box office he simply takes a census of the clogs on the lobby wall and compares the total with the number of tickets turned in, of course allowing two clogs for each ticket.

A Strange Beast.

The most primitive order of mammals, the monotremes, are confined to Australia. There is the platypus, a strange beast which lays eggs like a turtle, but suckles its young, has horny pads for teeth and a bill like the duck. Its front feet are webbed, and both back and front feet have claws. Little wonder that he has received many names or that his scientific designation is Ornithorhynchus paradoxus.—National Geographic Magazine.

Lead Pencils.

The lead pencil has a history extending over several hundred years, for it is claimed that a manuscript of Theophilus, attributed to the thirteenth century, shows evidence of having been ruled with a black lead pencil, and an article of Conrad Gesner of Zurich in the sixteenth century distinctly mentions an article for writing made of wood and a piece of lead.

Power of Radium.

Professor William Crookes, the noted English physicist, has calculated that if the total energy in the small quantity of radium which could be placed on the tip of the index finger was obtainable by an instantaneous disintegration of its atoms it would be sufficient to raise the whole English navy as high as Mount Etna (altitude 10,755 feet).

With a Kind Word Now and Then.

"Do you understand the whole duty of a man?" "I think I have gone a long way toward solving it. I always hand my wife my pay envelope."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A man can do twice as much work as he wants to—if he wants to.—Youth's Companion.

Suffrage in Norway.

Among the most important laws enacted by Norway since women have had the vote are the two maternity insurance laws of 1909 and 1915 and the divorce law of 1910.

"Since the women in Norway have got the vote," says Ella Anker in Jus Suffragii, "they have turned their chief attention to their rights and duties as wives and mothers. Education and economic independence are the basis of woman's freedom, but her greatest work and happiness will be as wife and mother. It is an astonishing fact that in all these centuries, while men have taught us that woman's place is in the home, they have neglected to prepare us for the chief duties of our home life."

Norwegian women have also given particular strength to the work for "rational housekeeping" by the establishment of a state high school for the education of teachers for the elementary housekeeping schools, to a campaign against consumption and to the support of the peace movement.

Eiffel's Tower.

The most famous tower since that of Babel is the Eiffel tower in Paris, a monument to the engineering genius of Gustave Eiffel. The tower of Babel was reared in the hope that it might afford a passage to heaven, but the builders, we are told in Genesis, were felled by their language being confounded.

Gustave Eiffel had no such ambition in rearing the highest edifice the world has ever seen. It is a tower dedicated to science. Its rearing was one of the greatest engineering feats of modern times and was a result of experiments undertaken to prove the greatest limit to which metallic piers in viaducts could be safely pushed. It is now the world's most celebrated wireless telegraph station.

Eiffel tower is 1,000 feet in height and is constructed of iron lattice work, 7,300 tons of iron being used in its construction. A system of elevators carries visitors to the top.

Uncle Sam's Uniforms.

An act of congress, approved March 1, 1911, entitled "An act to protect the dignity and honor of the uniform of the United States," provides "that hereafter no proprietor, manager or employee of a theater or other public place of entertainment or amusement in the District of Columbia or in any territory, the district of Alaska or insular possessions of the United States shall make or cause to be made any discrimination against any person lawfully wearing the uniform of the army, navy, revenue cutter service or marine corps of the United States because of that uniform, and any person making or causing to be made such discrimination shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $500."

A Curiosity of Sound.

If when riding in a balloon at a height, say, of 2,000 feet a charge of gunpowder be fired electrically 100 feet below the car, the report, though really as loud as a cannon, sounds no more than a pistol shot, possibly partly owing to the greater rarity of the air, but chiefly because the sound, having no background to reflect it, simply spends itself in the air. Then, always and under all conditions of atmosphere, there ensues absolute silence until the time for the echo back from earth has fully elapsed, when a deafening outburst of thunder rises from below, rolling on often for more than half a minute.

She Meant Well.

The late Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the rigid apostle of temperance, while on a week end visit made the acquaintance of a sharp young lady of seven, to whom on leaving he said: "Now, my dear, we have been talking some time. I am sure you have no idea who I am." "Oh, yes, I have," the little missy replied. "You are the celebrated drunkard."—London Graphic.

Father's Opinion.

"What is political economy, dad?" "To be perfectly candid, my son, I can't tell you. Sometimes I think there isn't any such thing."—Philadelphia Bulletin.
