COLVILLE WINS FROM CHEWELAH IN BASEBALL

The Colville and Chewelah baseball teams met on the Colville ball field on Sunday, June 6, and the usual exciting contest between the two teams resulted. Chewelah secured three runs in the second inning, and no further scores were made on either side until the eighth inning. The Colville boys were not putting up a good article of baseball and seemed unable to get a start, and it looked as though Colville was going to submit to a neat trimming from the Chewelah aggregation. In the seventh inning the Colville fans decided that it was about time for something exciting to happen, and they proceeded to pull off a rooting rally that was the feature of the game.

In the last half of the seventh Colville had three men on bases, with no outs, and Chewelah retired our boys without a score, and the Chewelah fans figured that there was nothing more to it. But the Colville boosters decided that the game was not over until the ninth inning, and rooted harder than ever the last of the eighth, with the result that Colville again filled the bases with no one out, but it seemed impossible to get a man over the home plate. Joe Rogers won the honors of the day when at this point he knocked out a clean single and scored two men, and Grover Graham followed shortly after with another much like it and brought in two more men, giving Colville four runs and the game, the final score being four to three in favor of Colville.

The playing of the Colville boys up to the eighth inning is not a fair sample of what they can do, as they have shown up very well in all the other games thus far, and it seemed to be an off day for all until the eighth inning rolled around. Glen Snoddy pitched for Colville and towards the end of the game had the Chewelah batters entirely under his control, and showed much of his old time form. Butts and Wernli also showed up well for Colville. Hattrup and Peone pitched for Chewelah, but Hattrup retired in the eighth after the fireworks started, and was relieved by Peone. Wylie Graham and Ed Raftis were the star performers for the Chewelah team, both doing very good fielding on short-stop and third base.

About three hundred people witnessed the game, nearly a hundred coming up from Chewelah. Colville goes to Chewelah on July 4th, and Chewelah comes to Colville on July 5th, the day of the big celebration.

WANT LOCATION OF THE SANITARIUM TO BE CHANGED

A hearing was given Colville property owners and councilmen Tuesday morning by the county commissioners regarding the location of the county tuberculosis hospital, objection having been made by neighbors to the presence of this institution so close to their homes, in north Colville. Inasmuch as the hospital is being closed, and the commissioners have already been making plans for removal of patients, no action was taken by the board. The Stevens county tuberculosis sanitarium was established by this county under the direction of Dr. I. S. Clark, and was located east of the Colville General hospital. This was one of the first institutions of the kind in eastern Washington, and has proved a wonderful success for the county, several indigents having been cured there and returned to work and the support of their families resulting in a big financial saving to the county. At present there is a question whether to continue the institution, or have patients kept at other institutions outside the county, and it is probable that the method which proves the most economical will be used hereafter. It does not seem feasible to keep tubercular patients at the county farm, and there is not sufficient fund now to erect a hospital on the grounds east of the city, the old fair grounds, which are now owned by the county and which will eventually be used for the county farm.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR FOR THE COLVILLE EXAMINER

Miss Mary Lucas is the new associate editor of the Examiner, assuming her duties this week. For the last five years she has been at the head of the English department of the Chewelah public schools, and during the last year was principal of the schools. Her education was at the University of Minnesota and at Radcliffe. Her journalism training was at the University of Washington. Miss Lucas will assume a large part of the local work of the Examiner.

BANKS ARE FOSTERING THE PUREBRED STOCK INDUSTRY

The Bank of Colville and the First National Bank of Chewelah are expecting a carload of purebred Holstein cows in a few days. These cattle were bought for them by James N. Price, agricultural agent of Yakima county, who at the same time purchased for the people of his own territory two carloads of purebred Guernseys. The Holsteins will be distributed under the supervision of H. J. Plumb, county agriculturalist of Stevens county. In order that every man may have a chance at every cow, the cattle will be sold at auction. The following ranchers have applied for the privilege of purchasing them: Rolla Fisher, Addy; E. C. LeCornu, Bluecreek; L. A. Lemon, J. O. Snyder, and J. A. Windle of Valley; G. E. Laird, Boyds; Oliver Leiser, Kettle Falls; John Swan, Meyers Falls; J. S. Willis, Addy, and Amer Faust, Bluecreek. In addition to these, two boys, members of the Bank of Colville Dairy Club, have applied for heifers. They are Carl Mottler and Orville Montgomery, the last named a brother to Walter Montgomery, who was drowned May 23, at Starvation lake. The cattle will be unloaded at Chewelah and will be sold there.

The Bank of Colville Dairy Club is a busy and enthusiastic organization. The following youngsters are proud owners of purebred stock which they were enabled to purchase through George W. Peddyoord, president of the Bank of Colville, who accepted their unsecured notes for the purchase price. In fact Mr. Peddyoord seems to be quite as enthusiastic as the boys and girls themselves. Earl Reber of Bossburg, Helen Huguenin of Arden, Leo Hewett of Rice, William Hutsiniller of Colville, Ethel Cosner of Addy, Warner Hudleson of Colville, have Jersey heifers. Lewis Burden of Colville owns a Redpoll. Orville Montgomery and Earl Mottler await the arrival of the purebred Holsteins mentioned elsewhere. One tragedy has marred the happiness of the club members. Marvin Clark's beautiful Jersey heifer died, leaving her owner a bitterly disappointed boy. But Marvin is game. He says he is going to work in the harvest field and pay the money he owes the bank, and then he is going to get another heifer. However, Mr. Peddyoord appreciates sand in a boy, and he will undoubtedly see to it that Marvin gets that heifer soon.

Mrs. L. L. Rice, who has been visiting in the home of C. T. Winslow in Spokane, returned home Monday evening. Miss Grace Winslow accompanied her and will remain for a visit of several weeks. Mrs. Rice spent a day with her daughter Jessie at Cheney. She reports that the normal school has a registration of more than 600 and that 300 more are expected. The dormitories are full to overflowing, the beds on hand being supplemented by cots and army blankets.

In about a month the county auditor will commence to receive filings of candidates for county office. That is, he will receive them if they are accompanied by the sufficient number of dollars—but with the present dollar so depreciated in value, there should be no cause for a shortage of filings.

Primary election will be held along in September, when the golden harvest days are here—for farmers and for vote seekers. What the harvest will be in either direction depends on a lot of things. And then, again, there will be another election along about two months after primary election. This second election is for the purpose of settling the results of the first election, according to the official decrees of the legislatures which have infested this state in years past. As soon as the taxpayers get enough money ahead, it may be desirable to hold a third election along in January, when the farmers have nothing to do but count their money—and wonder how much they still owe. This third election could then settle all the dissatisfactions that arise in the other two.

Anyway, the county auditor doesn't care anything about these secondary matters. What he wants is a lot of filings, for the county commissioners say that the general fund is a little too general this year to be specific in as many cases as they would like, and that the elasticity of the dollar is not yet sufficient to make it spread over all the calls for it. Anybody can file for anything, practically. From state legislator down through county judge even to precinct committeeman there is a whole range of jobs open to residents of Stevens county. The pay is not over much, but then think of the pleasure of looking through the courthouse windows—from the inside!

For the state legislature, it is said that Representatives Albert I. Kulzer of Chewelah and Al Weatherman of Addy will file on the democratic ticket if the voters want them. Also Atty. J. M. Glasgow of Hunters has been mentioned as a possible candidate on the republican ticket. The nonpartisans may decide to name Mr. Meyers of Clayton for one of their legislative candidates.

Judge D. H. Carey will be a candidate for reelection as county judge. His service has given satisfaction, and no opposition has been heard thus far.

County Clerk Butler has served four years, and can not file again. Miss Eloise VanSlatte of Chewelah has announced her candidacy on the republican ticket. Some of the friends of Emery Tremblay have urged him to make the race on that ticket. A. B. Sansburn has been mentioned as a possible candidate on the democratic ticket. But up to date Miss Van Slatte is the only avowed candidate.

For assessor, the names of Chester Wiley and James Richardson have been mentioned for the republican nomination, and Ralph Gilbert for the democratic nomination. Wiley has seen some service in the county treasurer's office. Richardson has served several times as field deputy assessor. Gilbert is now office deputy under Assessor Gillings, is a returned service man, one of four sons of I. J. Gilbert of Colville, all four boys having been in the service.

No successor has been thus far named for Miss Sarilda McKown, treasurer, unless she decided to succeed herself. But in the case of the county engineer, C. A. Heberling can not do this, for he has served four years.

Auditor Will C. Spedden will be a candidate for reelection, as will Sheriff W. H. Graham. Both have given excellent satisfaction according to general reports, and no opposition is found.

Henry Hughes, commissioner of the 1st district, has served his full time—and he is thankful for it, for he will not have to run again. His successor will have the matter of "which route?" to face when he goes after the votes of the Columbia river folk, a lively contest being expected over this feature of the commissioner's office. J. H. Newhouse, commissioner of the 3rd district, will probably not be a candidate for reelection, on account of his wife's ill health.

W. O. Cummings, county school superintendent, has only held office since last September, and he will file for reelection. His exceptional qualifications for this work, coupled with the fact that his political affiliations are not particularly aggressive, may lead to the same condition as existed last election—no opposition. This may be true of Atty. O. W. Noble, county prosecutor, there being no sign up to date of any other attorney with aspirations for the office. Two years ago there were no opposing candidates for Cummings or Noble.

It is rumored that the nonpartisans—of whom there are close to 800 in Stevens county—will enter the republican primary and take charge of the results. Should this happen, a thorough mixture of old-party affiliations may be seen in the result, as the nonpartisans are recruited from all of the old parties, and care not what a member's previous affiliations may have been, so long as he stands by the league's program. J. S. Finger, county organizer, is spending his entire time over the county securing memberships, and has a Ford car to transport his propaganda. So far as the county ticket is concerned, the league can either hold a nominating convention of its own, or enter any primary it sees fit, but the plan throughout the state has been to enter the republican primary, capture it bodily, and leave the republicans to hunt for what the little boy couldn't find. There is considerable interesting speculation on this possibility, and another month will bring considerably more information.

On the basis of past results, Stevens county can not be classed in any political column. The voters have been independent—too much so to suit a lot of our former candidates—and men have been elected on republican and democratic tickets. The straight party vote two years ago was less than a 200 republican plural—
