NO TRACE OF PARKER

Young Forger is Still at Large.

JOE DAY TELLS THE STORY

He Did Not Think the Man Would Try to Escape and Went to Sleep.

Up to a late hour this afternoon no trace of Forger Parker, who escaped from Detective Joe Day at Umatilla, yesterday, while en route from Helena to Portland, had been found. The officers of Umatilla county are scouring the country for the missing fugitive.

To a reporter for the Portland Telegram Detective Day had the following to say about the escape:

"Parker never once hinted that he was unwilling to return to Portland, and as I found him walking freely about the streets of Helena when I got there, I thought he did not care to escape. Then when we reached Spokane, he walked about with me, had ample opportunity to get away, but did not attempt to. When I wanted to go to sleep, therefore, I did not hesitate, for I had no fear of his making a break. Therefore I retired last night at 9 o'clock.

"I first put Parker to bed, after stripping him and placing the leg-irons on him. Then I paid the porter, who agreed to sit up all night and watch Parker. I went to sleep, and when I was called at 7 o'clock this morning was informed that my prisoner had escaped. I demanded an explanation from the porter, and he said that he went to bed also at 10 o'clock, leaving Parker in his berth.

"I am told by a man named Cohen that he saw Parker on the train a trifle before 3 o'clock this morning, and just before we got to Umatilla. At that place the train waited more than an hour, and I guess there was where my man got away. I figure he must have slipped the irons off his feet, and that he must have had an extra suit of clothes in his grip for the purpose of an escape. I guess he is free to get away, as far as the shackles and clothing are concerned. I think he will either strike off into the country, or that he caught the northbound train which passed us at Umatilla. He had sufficient money to take the train for a short distance, and may have done so."
