LIKE FOOTBALL GAME.

Padded Matadors Battle With Upholstered Bulls in Feather-bed Mix-up.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 9.—A bull fight with the attachments of a comic opera thrown in was held at Santa Monica yesterday afternoon. The action was there, but of gore there was none, for the bulls were clad in football armor, until they were twice their natural size. The matadors were similarly attired and when one hampered by his padding was unable to escape the charge of a bull, the impact resembled a collision between two feather beds.

The contest was on the order of a limited-round pugilistic event, in that the decision was made on points. The judges in every instance decided in favor of the bulls, which means in Spain that the matador commits suicide, as he goes into the ring to slay or be slain. Up to a late hour the defeated matadors were pleading manana or other dilatory phrases for their failure to end their lives to escape the disgrace.

The most amusing scene was enacted when the judges acted their decisions. With one accord the two dozen matadors flung their arms in the air, swore Spanish and shouted Mexican defiance at the decision.

Originally the intention was to hold a genuine bull fight with plenty of bloodshed, but George Englehart of Mexico City was placed under heavy bonds to keep the peace, and he insisted that none of the bulls be killed or only constructively killed as they do in military maneuvers.

DEFIANT TWENTY YEARS.

Success to Death and Drought After Long Resistance of Diplomacy.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 9.—After twenty years of defiance of the Canadian government, Chief Little Bear and his band of 300 renegade Crees, appalled at the number of deaths among their children and horses and inability to secure food as the result of the droughts prevailing in northern Montana, have surrendered.

Chief Little Bear and his band fled to Montana at the close of the Riel rebellion. Neither arms nor diplomacy could conquer them, but they succumbed to drought, and before the end of this month practically all of the tribe in Montana will be on the way to Onion Lake, Can., their native land, there to remain under orders of the commissioner of Indian affairs at Ottawa.

Many of the tribe are now in Great Falls on the way to Havre, where the tribe will assemble prior to beginning the march to Canada.

The Crees were deported to Canada several years ago by United States troops, but Canada could not hold them and in a few weeks they returned to Montana and have since been homeless wanderers.

Georgia State Fair Opens.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 9.—The Georgia state fair opened at Piedmont park today with a larger attendance than ever before on the opening day. It is by far the largest and most interesting fair ever held here and promises exceptional success. Many large new buildings have been erected since last year and the old buildings have been thoroughly renovated. There is a new administration building and a large auditorium, where most of the large meetings and contests will be held. The agricultural exhibit is large and of excellent quality and the industrial exhibits were never more interesting and important. The live stock exhibit has attracted many exhibitors this year, as the list of prizes is unusually large.

The fair will last until October 21. On the day before the closing, it is expected, President Roosevelt will come here as the guest of the city and will address the crowds on the fair grounds. During the ten days of the fair there will be many special days and exhibit features of great interest. Many prominent speakers from different parts of the state are expected to deliver addresses on the fair grounds during the fair. Extensive preparations for the reception and entertainment of the president have been made.

Physical Beauty Contest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The physical culture exhibition under the direction of Bernard MacFadden, the well known physical culturist, opens today at Madison Square garden. The most interesting feature is the physical beauty contest for the $1000 beauty prize, offered to the most perfectly formed woman and man. About twenty-five man and women representing various sections of the country are entered for the competition and an interesting exhibition is expected. Among the most prominent rivals for the beauty prize are Miss A. Trenory of Chicago, Miss Emily Newkirk of California, Miss Stimson, of Boston, and Capt. Petteste of Chicago.
