RACE PREJUDICE.

The race problem has been a stumbling block to nations. It is easy to decry the folly of race prejudices. But we are not all philosophers. And it is too harsh to blame only the Californians for their dislike of aliens different in race. The Greeks and Romans, the Hebrews and Hindus, the Chinese and Japanese, even the Teutons and the Anglo-Saxons, have during their history often shown a disposition to regard themselves as the only chosen sons of God, and to place other races under the ban of "barbarians" or "inferiors." Nor do I ignore the indisputable fact of an inequality existing among races, as there is such an inequality among human beings of the same race. Injustice comes only when the color of the skin is made the sole criterion of inferiority.—Dr. Toyokichi Iyemaga, Lecturer at University of Chicago.

DUTY.

I slept and dreamed that life was beauty.
I woke and found that life was duty.
Was the dream, then, a shadowy lie?
Toll on, sad heart, courageously,
And thou shalt find the dream to be
A noonday light and truth to thee.
—Ellen Sturgis Hooper.

Marine Intelligence.

A steamboat captain who has spent fifty years with the Hudson River Day line is responsible for the following: "A lot of passengers who had arrived in Albany by train came aboard early one morning," he says. "The boat was crowded, and many of them stretched themselves out on deck to sleep until sailing time. We hadn't got far out of Albany when a much dismayed man came up to me. "I've lost my shoes," says he. "How'd you do that?" says I. "I put 'em in a cupboard," says he. "Cupboard?" says I. "Yes," says he. "When I come on the boat I went to the door, so I naturally takes my shoes off. So I seen a cupboard, and I put 'em inside. Now the shoes ain't thar." "Show me the cupboard," says I. "The man led me to the starboard paddlewheel box, which had been left open as usual during the night to permit inspection. "I put the shoes right in thar on one of them shelves," says my man from up state. "You don't need to be told what happened, for the shelves were the paddle blades, and the very first revolution of the shaft had dumped the passenger's footgear into the Hudson."—New York Post.

Safety First.

Colonel E. Polk Johnson of Louisville, who fought for the Confederacy, read something in the dispatches from the front the other day that reminded him very much of what happened when he was serving in the western army. "I remember it was a wet, cold, rainy night in the middle of winter," said the veteran. "When a long, lean chap in my regiment was ordered to go on picket duty. He thought the situation over for a minute, and then he turned to the sergeant who had brought the message. 'You go right straight back what you come from,' he drawled, 'and tell the cap'n I jest natchally can't do it. I got a letter from Gid'ral Bragg this mornin', and he said good men was gittin' mighty scarce in this here army and for me to take good care of myself.'"—Argonaut.

Classic and popular songs, negro melodies, darkie mimicry, camp-meeting, home, cabin and river songs of slavery days, those that bring tears to the eyes, interspersed with more lively tunes that induce the feet to mark time, will follow each other in rapid succession at the concert to be given by the California Jubilee Quartet Thursday evening, Sept. 23, at Jamieson's Opera House under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church. This quartet of colored vocalists give a most varied program, the quality and finish of which calls forth the highest praise wherever they appear. As special features they offer a very clever impersonator, a man who can change right in the middle of a piece from baritone to lyric soprano and a pianist who is one of the most talented musicians among the colored people. Mr. Stewart has a number of difficult selections for the left hand only on his repertoire. Come out and enjoy a good, wholesome high-class evening's entertainment.

Don't blame your children for poor records at school if they have eyestrain that is not corrected by the right glasses. Let Woll fit the glasses that will make their school work better and easier. 205 W. Holly St. Bellingham.
