Answered.
A skeptic who was badgering a simple minded old man about the miracle of Balaam's ass finally said, "How is it possible for an ass to talk like a man?" "Well," replied the honest old believer, with meaning emphasis, "I don't see why it ain't as easy for an ass to talk like a man as it is for a man to talk like an ass."

Witty Retort.
Dr. Cyrus Northrop, president emeritus of the University of Minnesota, eighty-two years of age and full of honors, is proudest of the fact that he once worsted Chauncey M. Depew in repartee. Introduced by Depew as a "young cyclone from the west" at a notable dinner in the east, Dr. Northrop set the table roaring by saying when he rose to speak that he was proud to receive such recognition from the "world's greatest authority on wind."—Detroit Free Press.

Tough Turkey.
Mark Twain when he worked in Nevada on the Virginia City Enterprise inserted in the news a good many boarding house jokes. In revenge the humorist's sensitive fellow boarders in Virginia City decided to put up a game on him. They enlisted the landlady's help, and at the Thanksgiving dinner at the boarding house Mark Twain, by a dexterous piece

"WHAT MAKES YOU THINK SO?"
of sleight of hand, was served apparently direct from the fowl with a turkey leg of painted wood. The humorist sawed away solemnly at the wooden leg for some time. Then he said to the landlady, with a smile: "You've changed your poultry dealer, haven't you, ma'am?" "Why, no, Mr. Clemens," she replied. "What makes you think so?" "This turkey," he answered, giving the wooden drumstick a little whack with his knife, "is about the tenderest morsel I've struck in this house for some months."

A Caustic Retort.
An Englishman of somewhat questionable reputation, who was criticizing the American way of spelling, once turned to Maurice Barrymore, the actor, and said: "I'll leave it to Mr. Barrymore. Is it right to leave out the 'u' in such words as harbor, neighbor, honor, candor, etc.?" "Well, about harbor and neighbor I am not sure," replied Barrymore, "but when it comes to honor and candor I leave you out."

SWEARING IN JAPANESE.

It Rarely Happens, but When It Does It Is Something Appalling.

The Jap is always polite, but once in a while he slips from grace, and when he does he is up against it, for there are no swear words in the Japanese language.

When a Japanese meets you he bows three times and takes off his hat, but does not shake hands. When he greets you his first concern is about your ancestors and next about your stomach. It would be almost an open insult for one Japanese to meet another without asking him how his stomach fared. On the third bow he asks, "This morning how is it with your honorable insides?"

As you come up on your third bow you answer to the effect that the place mentioned is doing as well as could be expected and in turn ask him what even he has had from the front. Then he lifts his hat again and says, "Your delightful head this morning, I hope it have no commotion."

When you tell him that you are pleased to report that it feels well this morning he asks about a few generations of honorable ancestors, and then you are free to take up the weather.

Even though they are elaborately polite, once in a while one Japanese will get mad at another. Their anger kindles slowly at first, finally fanning into a blaze that knows no staying. But even though there is a torrent of emotion seething in his soul, there are no words to give it vent. It keeps surging harder and harder until he throws aside all restraint and gives up all idea of decency by putting into one phrase all his bitterness and snapping squarely into the other man's astonished face the worst thing that can be said in the whole language. "Your stomach is not on straight!"

This is the final insult. Nothing more can be added; he has cast the glove. There is nothing left for him to do but to give his enemy a cutting look, turn on his heel and haughtily clap, clap, away on his wooden shoes.—Homer Croly in Leslie's Weekly.

Your Goal.
Desire your goal; desire it so keenly that you are willing to work for its attainment; more than that, desire the work that is to carry you on the way.—William Ganson Rose.

An Embarrassing Question.
Mrs. Monroe was carefully explaining to her small daughter Margaret what she must do that evening. Company would be there for dinner, and Margaret was going to be allowed the privilege of sitting at the table. She listened very attentively and faithfully.

"Put her dainty finger deep into the jelly." During the first part of the meal she never spoke, but remained quiet and thoughtful, but it seemed a long time to her before the dessert came. Finally a large dish was placed near her of which the contents looked most appetizing. For some time she gazed at it, and when no longer able to resist the temptation she reached over and put her dainty finger deep into the jelly and cream, then licked her finger and continued to smack her lips with great satisfaction. Before the mortified mother could say any thing Margaret remarked:

"Say, mamma, is this the jelly which the cat licked the cream off of and you said it didn't matter, there was more cream?"

W. R. C. NOTES

The W. R. C. regular meeting was held Saturday with a small attendance. Considerable business was discussed. It was voted to meet at the hall Wednesday and tack comforts for Mrs. Quimley. Several were reported on the sick list our president not very well but able to meet with us, Mrs. Kelsey and husband, Mrs. Cavender, Mrs. Ethel Parish, Mrs. McSorley, Mrs. Bay, Mrs. Biddell, Comrade Randall and Comrade Brooks. Mrs. Coleman of Wiser Lake was taken in to the order by initiation. We would urge upon all members to be more punctual in attendance, we have plenty of members and there is no reason why we should not have a full meeting.

HERD RECORD SHEETS—Printed on good Manila board. Place to record the milk of 20 cows, twice a day, for one month. Printed on both sides. For sale at The Tribune office, 5 cents each or 25 for $1. This is the standard barn record sheet used in all first class dairies.

Let's Fill Up Your Tank

THE quality of gasoline you use has a lot to do with the number of miles your car gives per gallon. It also determines the number of times you have engine or carburetor troubles.

The gasoline we sell you increases your mileage and reduces trouble to the minimum. Our price is no more than you would pay for an inferior grade.

Make it a point to drive this way when your "gas" is low and let's fill up your tank.

Or perhaps some of our stock of Goodrich Safety Tread Tires and Auto Accessories will interest you.
