POULTRY ASSOCIATION TO INCREASE STOCK?

Members To Vote on Raising Total to $250,000.00 To Care for Grain and Poultry Projects

The Washington Cooperative Egg and Poultry Association stockholders will vote next Tuesday at Seattle on the question of raising the capital stock of the Association from $100,000 to $250,000, in order to finance the feed, poultry dressing and storage projects.

The decision of the stockholders will be of importance to Lynden, as this city has been selected as the site of a big poultry dressing plant, and grains are now being supplied to the members from the local station.

The carloads of eggs that are being shipped East from Lynden now are being held in storage in New York, and local poultrymen will have a share in the profits of this venture.

J. L. Craib, secretary of the association, this week issued the following statement in regard to the proposed increase of stock:

"When the capital stock of the Association was increased to $100,000 last April, it was not anticipated at that time that the Association would actively engage in the fattening and preparation of dressed poultry for the Eastern markets, neither was it contemplated that the Association would undertake the supplying of grain to its members so extensively as is now thought necessary.

"For this reason, we find our present capital stock insufficient to allow us to carry on the poultry and grain departments, so the membership is being asked to vote on an increase of the capital stock to $250,000.00.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

R. B. Le Cocq delivered an interesting and instructive talk Wednesday noon on "Guides to the Purchase of Property."

We have again arranged another Lyceum course for next year. The course will be composed of four numbers, all of which are provided with fine talent. One of the numbers will be a Shakespearean performance which has in past years been worthy of large New York and Chicago audiences. The rest of the numbers are said to be as good; so that no doubt is left but that next year's Lyceum course will prove successful. It will cost $500, but it is expected that this will be easily raised.

The Sophomore program was a delightful affair, as it portrayed school life in the primary grades. Simultaneously, stories were told, songs were sung and an essay was read on St. Patrick by Veri Fry.

A large number of students are enthusiastically turning out for baseball. As the first game is scheduled with the strong Ferndale nine on April 1, it is obvious that perpetual and sound practice is the only medium by which success and victory can possibly come to us. The weather, fortunately, is allowing for the practice, and Mr. Fisher and Mr. Rocky are hard at work coaching and advising those who wish to make a position.

WHATCOM IGNORES LYNDEN'S CHALLENGE

Bellingham School Claims Championship of Western Washington; Hasn't Won County Title Yet

The Whatcom High School basketball team, which is laying claim to a Western Washington championship, doesn't care to take any chances with this title by meeting the Lynden five, the season's winners in Whatcom County.

Coach Fred Rockey of Lynden issued a challenge last week to the Whatcom team for a two game series to decide the honors right here at home. This the Bellingham school refused.

Whatcom played one game with Blaine on the Bellingham floor and won that by a narrow margin. Blaine was the only county team on the Bellingham list this season. Both Meridian and Lynden defeated Blaine.

At present, Whatcom is busy arranging a series with Yakima, Eastern Washington tournament winners.

The Sunday American-Reville this week said: "Whatcom has sufficient grounds, the team's backers believe, to claim the Western Washington title without losing any of the Crimson modesty."
