HOUSE TYPIFIES SOLID COMFORT

Design That Appeals to Those Looking for Conservative

PLENTY OF LIGHT AND AIR

Two-Story, Seven-Room House With Attractive Stucco Exterior Over Hollow Tile—Large, Broad Front Porch Screened In.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

In building a home today the prospective owner has to take two important factors into consideration, cost and comfort. We all have different ideas of what these should be and that is why houses are built along such a wide variety of lines. To some the western bungalow, petite and individual, is very appealing; to others, the story-and-a-half dwelling is just the thing, but there are still a great many who prefer the conservative roomy, unpretentious type that personifies solid and substantial comfort.

To them the two-story house is an absolute necessity with its customary four bedrooms on the second floor. This house is very often built rectangular shaped with either hip or gable roof. Inside the floor-plan arrangement is practically the same. For those who prefer the gable roof type, the house shown here will possess considerable interest. It is one of those substantial, solid buildings that radiate a feeling of roominess and complete comfort. While giving an external impression of bigness it is by no means very large as the dimensions reveal. It is 28 feet wide and 34 feet long.

The exterior treatment is quite attractive, being a rough finish stucco over hollow tile walls. The basement foundation is solid concrete as are the front steps and porch platform. Stucco lends itself very readily to garden decorations such as vines and flowers and an artistic piece of lattice or trellis work at advantageous points adds considerably to the charming appearance of the home.

The front porch, broad and spacious as it is, is most inviting. Part of it has been screened in to serve as a sun porch or sleeping porch. The other part is open and leads the way to the front door and reception hall.

At the left of the reception hall is a wide open doorway into the living room which is 16 feet 6 inches by 17 feet 6 inches. It has a triple window on the porch side and two small windows on the outside wall to furnish light. There is also a large brick fireplace with supplemental wall bookcases on each side.

The dining room, just in back of the living room and connected with it by another double open doorway, is about the same size. It has windows on two sides and a built-in buffet at the rear. The kitchen is located at one side. It is small in comparison to the other rooms, but contains all that the housewife needs to carry on her work efficiently and quickly.

Going upstairs we find the sleeping rooms and bath. Four bedrooms are grouped about a central hall. Of these rooms the two front bedrooms are the largest, being 16 feet 6 inches by 11 feet 6 inches each. In one of the front bedrooms the fireplace has been built just above the main fireplace in the living room below. This makes this room a very cozy retreat. It can be converted into a library or den without much trouble.

The two rear bedrooms are not as large as those just described, but are ample for the needs of a family and well lighted and ventilated. It is important to build in enough window space in the modern home. The old idea was to keep as much air out as possible in sleeping rooms. Consequently very little window space was provided for in these rooms. However medical science has shown that the healthiest home is the one that affords the most fresh air. For that reason bedrooms should be thoroughly ventilated.

There is also a high attic in this house. In case extra room is needed for sleeping quarters or the children want a large and pleasant play room this attic space can be used. All that is needed is a few yards of wall-board and a few hours' work. Side dormers and windows in front and rear afford plenty of light.

This is the type of home that will appeal to the majority of families. It is devoid of freak and frill and for that reason more or less economical in cost, for special designs always call for extra expense. At the same time it is pleasing in appearance and built to last.

It is adopted for use in the large city, suburb or small town.

All on One Bait.

A fish story that wins for Saranac Lake the gold-rimmed earmuffs for the first and the "biggest" to appear with the warm days and the turning of thoughts to rod and tackle. The scene of the story is placed on Lake Champlain, near Westport. "A chap who must be the owner of the original gold horseshoe got a bite that made his back teeth rattle and shook the jewels out of his watch. After a knockdown and drag-out fight he landed a big pickerel. Upon dressing it, he found the pickerel contained a pike. The pike had surrounded a good-sized perch, which in turn, was found to contain an ice fish. All this on one bait."

His Version.
One of the banks richest clients had died and the employees were discussing him. "He began to amass his fortune when he was a young man," sagely remarked the young clerk who was inclined to be very thrifty. "I often have heard him say that he lived on a farm and that while the other young fellows in his neighborhood were out having a good time he stayed at home and hunted eggs."
"Yes," agreed the one who was inclined to be a spendthrift, "and because he hunted so diligently for those eggs all his boys ever have to do now is just to go out away from home and chase the chickens."
