PROFESSOR PREDICTS PROSPEROUS. WINTER

Prosperity will be the order of things in business this winter, is the statement of Howard T. Lewis, professor of business administration at the University of Washington.

Two definite indications of coming prosperity, Lewis declares, are that the Christmas trade will be approximately 15 per cent over that of last year; and there is no unemployment to speak of anywhere in America. Rather a shortage of labor is becoming apparent, he believes.

"There are danger signals in three directions," Lewis says, "which deserve a little caution. The chief is the car shortage, the The chief is the car shortage, the second is the constantly increasing shortage of unskilled labor, and the third is the danger of inflated credit."

Lewis believes that the trans-Lewis believes that the transportation problem will be doubly serious this year because the peak of business comes immediately after the settlement of the rail strike, when cars and locomotives are in need of repairs. The Christmas rush will come at the same time that coal which is always given priority, and dealways given priority, and de-layed shipments of crops will have to be moved. A double load will be placed on decreased facilities.

In the Middle West and New England especially will the labor shortage be felt, Lewis declares. He says that this shortage is partly accounted for by the fact that last year the United States lost 67,000 laborers because of the new immigration laws. This figure takes into account the number of immigrants entering the country last year.

"Bankers have an enormous amount of gold in reserve," Lewis says, "and they want to put it to work. In the scramble for business the tendency will be to make credit too easy, and this will lead to a dangerous inflation of credit."

"But on the whole," he concludes, "it looks as the real prosperity were assured. Lack of unemployment means increased spending power, and a large Christmas business shows a surplus of free money."

2. There is a time when every cancer can be cured, for it exists cancer can be cured, for it exists in what is known to scientific men as "precancer." 3. Cancer is first a lump or sore that "can be felt with the fingers or seen with the eye," or gives certain definite warnings.

If we knew how to interpret these warnings, cancer could be

4. Nine cases out of ten do not cause pain in the early stages. This is unfortunite.

5. Cancer starts as the result of long continued irritation. If irritation is removed, cancer will

6. Cancer develops at the edge of a scar—where the scar and normal tissues meet. If the scar is removed, the cancer will not develop.

7. Certain definite symptoms precede every cancer, just as surely as wind clouds precede the rain storm. The time is coming when these symptoms will be heeded.

8. One hundred thousand people in the United States are annually afflicted with some form of cancer. This is on the authority of the Public Health Service.

9. One woman in every eight, who is over forty years of age, dies of cancer. Three times as many women as men die with cancer between thirty-five and forty-five years of age. From that time on, the ratio is more nearly equal.

10. Every person over thirty-five years of age who is not sure about a lump, sore or unnatural discharge should consult a competent physician and demand a thorough examination. If the first doctor consulted cannot give a rational opinion, ask for a consultation.

11. Procrastination has caused the loss of many valuable lives. 12. Any doctor who tells you that he has a sure cure for can-cer is a fraud. There is no such a thing as a cancer serum or any remedy that will cure cancer by being injected into the veins or rubbed on the skin.
