Zeno's Paradox.
Many persons will recall the famous paradox of Zeno by which he sought to prove that all motion is impossible. "A body," he argued, "must move either in a place where it is or in a place where it is not. Now, a body in the place where it is stationary and cannot be in motion, nor, obviously, can it be in motion in the place where it is not. Therefore it cannot move at all."
Bodies do move, however, and that is a sufficient answer to the ingenious philosopher.
Had a Better Story.
"Did you see the account of that flash of lightning that burned the hair from a boy's head without otherwise hurting him?"
"I did," answered the cheerful liar. "and I was pained to note the incompleteness of the story. Now, I happen to know of a case that is really remarkable. The lightning entered a barber's shop and not only undertook the task of singeing a man's hair, but it ran up the proper amount on the cash register." - Exchange.
Heads Turned Red by Eating.
Mocking birds are great epicures in their way, feeding on oranges, the berries of the palmetto and those of the china tree, apples, pears, cherries, peaches, blackberries and other small fruits. On the island of Key West they eat so freely the bright red prickly pears that grow on a kind of cactus that their bills, heads and throats become dyed as if with vermilion.
A Suggestion.
Mrs. De Blinks-No, sir, you cannot have my daughter with my consent. I detest you, and I wish I could think of some way to make you miserable.
Mr. Hicks-Well, then, why not become my mother-in-law?
Bicycles are generally considered a very modern invention, but some of the Egyptian obelisks, it is said, bear figures mounted on two wheeled vehicles resembling the old velocipedes.
Just as you are pleased at finding faults you are displeased at finding perfection. - Lavater.
Blown to Atoms.
The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure Constipation and Sick Headache. Only 25c at The Elk Drug Store, F. J. Stone, Prop.

The New Woman's Gossip

BY... ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER

A SUCCESSFUL young business woman is Miss Amy Campbell of Cincinnati. Her success seems almost phenomenal, yet beyond a doubt she has earned it all. Miss Campbell began life as a stenographer and typewriter. She had the advantage of a good education and familiarity with social usages. She also had that which when it is backed by genuine merit goes further than anything else in determining the success of a business career, a serene, unflinching confidence in herself and her own power to accomplish her aims. After feeling her way awhile, Miss Campbell established a school of stenography on her own account. It prospered. Her next move was to place stenographers in the hotels of the city, where they could be had when travelers needed them. These hotel stenographers are women, and Miss Campbell pays them regular wages. The money for the shorthand and typewriting she herself collects, so as to be sure of it. Other women have established schools of stenography many a time before, but Miss Campbell has somehow the business talent and shrewdness that can make everything she undertakes pay. She owns a handsome home in a beautiful hill suburb of Cincinnati and keeps a number of horses, a carriage and a tandem. She is strong, athletic and healthy and a lover of outdoor sports, owning dogs as well as horses. One is glad to note, too, that her forceful, independent character is no drawback, rather an aid, to the enviable social standing she has won for herself.
It is no use talking or beating about the bush or denying the fact—the woman of average means who is the mother of a great gang of children is worn out and bowed and old twenty years before her time.
A late newspaper dispatch relates one of the strangest, most tragic incidents on record. A boy who had been out gunning was bringing in his game-bag to show it exultingly to his young lady sister, his loaded gun still in his hands. In running forward he caught his foot in a long rip in the carpet, pitched forward and fell. As he struck the floor the gun was discharged, killing his beloved sister. There is a tremendous moral in this sad story—in truth, there are two of them. One is concerning the leaving of holes in a carpet, the other concerning handling loaded guns in houses.

In the range region of western Nebraska lives Annie Pantenburg. She is manager of a ranch of 3,000 acres, having upon it 800 cattle. Annie is only sixteen, yet it is told of her that she knows every live stock brand in western Nebraska and southern Wyoming. She makes all the live stock sales on the ranch. Her father is dead, and this splendid, strong, wholesome girl continues his business.
Mrs. M. A. S. Monagon of Lincoln, Neb., is a manager of political campaigns and lecture tours. She had entire control of the orators and speeches during the campaign of Hon. L. O. Jones for governor of Nebraska. She also manages and lays off the routes of travel for Mr. John G. Woolley and other lecturers. To get Mrs. Monagon for a manager means success for the speaker who has anything in himself.
Miss Charlotte Cipriani, an American girl of Italian descent and a graduate from Chicago university, has received the degree of doctor of letters from the University of Paris.
The true position in regard to long skirts seems to be this: In the house, where no walking is required, they are graceful and artistic; on the street they are a filthy abomination.
One trial of a city resident's life is staying all night at a farmhouse in winter. Farm people's hearts are as large as their well filled barns, but their houses, alas, are as cold! Ladies on farms, why, oh, why, do you not have furnaces, with a register for every room, put under your houses and bathrooms, with abundant hot and cold water supply put into them? Have the work done carefully, so it will be just right. It will not cost a very great sum, and the shivers will no longer run down the spine of your city cousin when he receives your invitation to Christmas dinner. You, yourselves, are just the salt of the earth, and you deserve comfortable houses for your own sakes.
Miss E. Ransom has been for sixteen years the highly valued and respected station agent of a railroad at Canandaigua, N. Y.
The socialists of Belgium in national convention have declared in favor of suffrage for woman, but say she must wait until manhood suffrage has first been secured. "After me is manners for you."
