

Second Act, Second Scene, "Quincy Adams Sawyer."

SCHOOL NEWS DEPARTMENT.

High School Notes.

Last Friday afternoon the C. H. S. football team was defeated by the Cheney Normal by a score of 15 to 0. The game was hard fought, and, despite the score, the showing of the local team was very good. The superior advantage in the long halves. The Colfax boys were able for the most part to keep the ball in Cheney's territory, but in the last few minutes of each half touch-downs were made by their opponents. Meaney's kicking was the best ever seen on the local field. Punts were well handled by both teams. The most exciting point in the game came when Cheney with a first down, one foot from the goal line, was unable to gain an inch. When Meaney picked up a ball passed low for a punt and ran 30 yards down the field a touch-down for the home team seemed probable; but while circling the full back defense he was tackled from behind. Meaney also kicked two beautiful drop kicks, each of which barely failed to pass over the bars. Hargrave, Stapleton, Hunton and Thompson played strong defense games, while Meaney was all over the field piling the interference and tackling hard and sure. Mansfield and Kneale, two new men, showed up well. All the boys won much praise for their plucky struggle against their heavy opponents.

Keep in View Good Roads.

No question is of more vital importance to a farming community than good roads. The roads built by the Romans made Rome great, some of them in perfect condition and in use to this day. And while the conditions existing then and now are different, steam and electricity taking the place of horses as motive power, still the use of good roads is as apparent in our day as during the glory of the Roman Empire. While steam does the bulk of our hauling few people stop to contemplate the immense sums expended each year by the railways in repairing their roadbeds, which is imperative to enable them to transact business.

But the lay community, in the improvement of county roads, as a rule is far behind in this regard, paying little heed to the example set by the Romans. The usual amount of work is done each season and the road supervisor probably does the best he can with the means at his disposal and the territory he has to cover, but it is apparent to the most casual observer that our road-building is too frequently a makeshift, lacking the stamp of permanency and solidity that should characterize the work.

At the recent meeting of the Good Roads Association, held in North Yakima, several suggestions were made that will stand investigation. J. C. Lawrence, of the state railway commission, stated that eastern Washington was favorably located for material in the making of good roads, inasmuch as the "Coeur d'Alene" furnished immense quantities of tailings, only a detriment to the mining interests, and that arrangements could undoubtedly be made with the railway companies to carry this material free of charge to where it is required for use. This is a matter that should be taken in hand by each business community and those in authority, as the work once inaugurated would result in roads of a permanent nature.

The association also put itself on record as being in favor of the employment of convicts and jail birds on the public highways, a suggestion that is not new, but one that is slow of full fruition. The legislature will be asked to pass a law providing for such employment. Convicts should not pass their time in idleness. It is idleness that breeds criminals. Road work in no way interferes with the employment of the honest workman, and it has possibilities that will never be entirely surmounted. Our country is so vast and the ramifications so great that good road building will always be an issue. Let convicts be employed on the public highways.

In no county in the state is the subject of road building of greater interest than in Whitman. The statement is made that the cost of hauling wheat in this county to the railroads from the farms is $1,250,000 per year, a sum that almost staggers belief; but the long lines of four-horse and six-horse teams that are seen on the roads during the hauling season attest to the fact that time and money is involved to a greater extent than is generally supposed. Good roads, therefore, are a necessity to make this hauling cheap and easy.

The gentlemen elected from this county to the legislature can grapple with no more important question to their constituents than the building of roads. Whether it be the employment of convict labor or the embodying of features employed and found effective elsewhere the matter is worthy of serious consideration.

Large and Well Improved Farm For Rent For a Long Term.

The undersigned has decided to quit farming on his own account and has divided his farm (Lubia farm) containing 5000 acres of agricultural land into three farms. Two of which have recently been leased, one of them containing 100 and the other 1400 acres of land. There remains the home place, containing about 2500 acres of good wheat and barley land, one-half of which is summer fallowed and a portion of it is seeded to winter wheat. The improvements are and is suitably subdivided for farming conveniently. The improvements consist of a large stone barn, containing about 2500 bushels of grain, a 2000 bushel grain elevator, a bunk house, barns for 72 head of horses, 200 calves, a carriage and harness room, blacksmith shop, sheep pens, implements and machinery, a grain warehouse 40x125 feet. Water supply is excellent, pure water pipes from springs, in addition to good wells. Distance for hauling grain to my warehouse on the O. R. & N. (Lubia mills) is from 2 1/2 to 3 miles, all easy down grade. It is desired to lease this farm, either to a company cooperative of farmers, or to one farmer of experience and means and possessing a family with a large working force to assist him. It is desired to summer fallow annually one-half of the land and seed most of it in the early spring to good wheat. Assistance will be given in grain delivered sacked, but the owner would furnish sacks for his share of the crop. Retiring entirely from farming, considerable stock, agricultural implements and machinery are for sale at very reasonable prices, but the farm owner is leased to a desirable party, having his own stock and implements, even if he should decline to purchase from me, as successful first-class farming is principally desired. Assistance would be furnished the renter if desired by furnishing him with seed and feed to be paid from the next crop, also giving time and easy terms of payments for any stock, implements or machinery required and purchased from me. Those desiring to lease should possess the proper qualifications—experience, working force, sufficient means for the enterprise and good references. DR. M. PIETRYCKI, Dayton, Wash.
