A PORTABLE FENCE.

A Contrivance That is Convenient, Useful and Substantial.

To make a portable fence that is substantial as well my practice is to take a bale of forty-eight inch poultry wire netting, says Dr. J. A. Whitman of Beaufort, S. C. Use anything that will make a stake sufficiently strong to hold it up. Then with an iron bar make holes about eight feet apart around the lot you wish to inclose.

Now put in the stakes, driving them down a little to make them firm; then take a fourpenny nail and drive it into the stakes on the side you are going to put on the netting as high as your netting is wide or so the netting will rest upon the ground.

Now commence at one corner and unroll your netting around to the starting point. If it does not take the whole roll, leave it on the roll. Next commence and hang up the netting on the nails that are partly driven in, stretching it as you hang it up. Then take common plastering laths and nail over the netting on the stakes with two or three fourpenny nails, leaving the heads out just enough to draw with a hammer when you want to take the fence down.

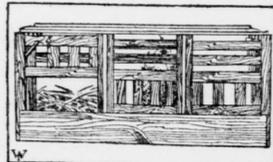

If you have a surplus of netting, roll up the surplus and fasten it to the last stake with a string or piece of wire. If one roll is not enough, proceed with the second roll just the same way.

When you get through with its use, all you have to do is to draw the nails from the laths and posts, lay down the netting, roll up, pull the stakes and lay them away for another time.

I never cut a roll of netting unless for a permanent fence. Let any poultryman try this fence, and he will never want for a permanent fence.

A Handy Trap Nest.

The trap nest illustrated is so simple that very little description is necessary. It is more simple than any the writer has ever seen a description of, says a writer in Poultry Keeper. It has a runway in which the door slides up and down. The slats above the door are placed just back of the runway. The door has a catch of metal or hard wood fastened with a screw loosely enough so that it drops readily when released. It rests in a tiny notch cut with a jackknife by the side of the runway.

When the hen enters the nest she raises the door slightly and releases the catch, and the door drops. There is a bar just above the door when the door is raised so that a hen cannot spring the catch if she gets on top of the nest.

The nests may be made singly or in sets of two, three or more and may be made larger or smaller, according to the breed one keeps.

Poultry and Poultry Food Prices.

Poultry food of all kinds has steadily advanced in price for the past three or four years, but that is no reason for killing off your stock at this season of the year, feeling you cannot afford to keep and feed the same at the present prices of food, says American Poultry Advocate. You will find that the prices of market poultry and eggs have advanced in the same proportion, and the profit in keeping poultry is greater than ever before, notwithstanding this additional food expense.

It is a Good Umbrella.

It was a sound, substantial umbrella, with a cheery wood stick. We found it hanging on a peg in the corner of our room in the hotel at Bruges (writes "P."). Such an umbrella could belong to none but an Englishman, and it at once occurred to us that it had been left behind by some former passing visitor. The umbrella was particularly interesting to me because I had foolishly come away from England without one. I eyed that umbrella as a small boy eyes a forbidden orchard. The next morning threatened rain, and I could not resist taking the umbrella tentatively from its peg, unrolling it and displaying its comfortable tent-like proportions. I put it back on the peg with a sigh and nobly went unprotected. During the stay in Bruges my eyes and thoughts returned to the umbrella with strong fascination, and on the morning of leaving the temptation was still more acute. The angels of light and darkness struggled within me, but the good one triumphed, and we went to the station without the umbrella. We left our luggage in the hotel to be brought to us at the station by the boots. The Brussels train came in, but our luggage was missing. We took our seats, and at the last moment the boots rushed up, compensating for want of English by a large smile, and dragged our bags—and the umbrella. He threw it in to us, and the train departed. It is a good umbrella.—Manchester Guardian.

The Way to Succeed.

Here is a bit of advice that will go as far as any that was ever paid for: The only way to succeed is to be successful. Doesn't sound very profound, does it? It isn't. It's about as simple as anything that has ever been printed, and at first sight it may appear idiotic. But there is a lot in it. The man who succeeds is the man who brings to a successful termination every minute undertaking of every day's activity. The successful man's life is made up of a myriad of successes. If you let one little item of your day's work get by you without satisfying yourself that you have done your best on it you are preparing for a failure. A million treatises on how to be successful will not help you.

The trouble with too many of us is that we are so busy trying to see a great success in the future that we can't see the chances for little successes under our noses. Heaven is not reached at a single bound, and neither is success. The only way to succeed is to be successful. It is worth thinking over.—St. Paul News.

The Original Tobogganer.

The otter was the original tobogganer and his slide the first of its kind deliberately chosen. Whence came his information? I know not. Turn if you can the leaves of nature's wonderful volume back to the opening chapters of animal life for information upon this and countless other curious traits. Maybe the primal otter saw a cube of ice break from its parent glacier and go sliding down a polished path to the sea. He may have then tried the feat himself under the notion that such sliding was rare good fun for otters. Quien sabe? Wherever the otter may have obtained his idea of sliding, he has neither lost it nor improved upon it. He slides as his forbears did for love of sliding, but he does not altogether depend upon snow and ice. During summer earth slides serve well enough, and these will surely be found on the banks of streams frequented by otters.—Outing.

Loaded Ivory.

An Ivory dealer uttered a cry of rage. "Done again!" he said. "Done out of $50!" And he laid aside one of the tusks from the great heap that he had been examining. "It is ballasted with lead," he said. "That is a common Kongo trick. The native when he gets a good big tusk of eighty pounds or so melts up ten or fifteen pounds of lead and pours it down into the tusk's hollow. He fills it, so to speak, as a dentist fills a tooth.

"We dealers know the dodge, and every tusk is gone over carefully for a lead filling. My new trader, though, is rather careless, and this is the second filled tusk that has been worked off on him in the last quarter."

"The dealer's frown vanished, and he smiled. "Of course the trader and not I will have to stand the loss," he said.—Minneapolis Journal.

Old Age is Selfish.

A lady residing in a quiet village in Suffolk used to take an interest in a very aged couple who were spinning out the last thread of life in "Darby and Joan" fashion, seated on either side of their fireplace. She often paid them a visit to cheer them up. The old man had been ailing, and at last a day came when the visitor found only one chair occupied. Darby was not in his usual place.

"Where is your husband?" "Well, mum, he be gone at last." "Oh, I'm so sorry! That is very sad for you," said the lady, seeking to find words of consolation.

"Yes, mum, it be sad," replied the old woman, "but, then, you see, he were fearfully in the way of the oven."—Pearson's Weekly.

The old remedies are the best. Hickory Bark Cough Remedy has been in use for over one hundred years by the old Dutch Dunkards of Pennsylvania, and is still in use by all the old families of West-ern Pennsylvania. It is absolutely pure; made from the bark of the white or shell bark hickory tree. The bark is shipped from the east, and manufactured in Salem, Oregon. For sale by W. J. Hamilton and all dealers.

Can't be Separated

Some Colfax People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers. You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Mrs. G. E. Tonning, living at 513 A St. West, Moscow, Idaho, says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for almost a year before I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills. At that time my back was the chief source of trouble, being very painful and ached almost continually. I could not bend over without suffering from sharp shooting pains through my kidneys and at times I was so lame that I could not attend to my household duties. My head also ached and I felt miserable in every way. I was very much relieved by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and they proved so satisfactory to me in every way that I was glad to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

NOTICE.

In the superior court of the state of Washington, in and for the county of Whitman. Portland and Seattle Railway Company, a corporation, petitioner, vs. Alonzo O. Wells and Wells, his wife, claimants.

The State of Washington and the Portland and Seattle Railway Company, a corporation, to said Alonzo O. Wells and Wells, his wife, claimants named in the above entitled proceedings:

You and each of you are hereby notified that the above named petitioner, Portland and Seattle Railway Company, a corporation, will on the 15th day of February, 1908, at the hour of 2 o'clock P. M. of said day, or as soon thereafter as petition can be heard before the Honorable S. J. Chadwick, judge of said court, at the court house at Colfax, Whitman county, Washington, present to the above named court, a petition for the condemnation and appropriation of a right of way over and across the following strip of parcel of land situated in said county of Whitman, and more particularly described as follows: to-wit:

A strip of land one hundred (100) feet in width, being fifty (50) feet in width on either side of the center line of the Portland and Seattle Railway, as the same is now located, staked out and to be constructed upon, over and across the northwest quarter (NW 1/4) of section fourteen (14), township twenty (20), north of range thirty-nine (39) E., W. M., also an additional strip of land fifty (50) feet in width on either side of and contiguous to the above described one hundred (100) foot strip beginning opposite a point in the said located center line of the Portland and Seattle Railway, twenty-two hundred seventy-six and five-tenths (2276 5/10) feet measured in a southwesterly direction along said located center line from its intersection of the north line of said section fourteen (14) and extending in a southwesterly direction eight hundred (800) feet.

Said one hundred foot strip and said additional strip containing eight and ninety-two hundredths (8 92/100) acres more or less.

Said located center line being more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the north line of section fourteen (14), township twenty (20), north of range thirty-nine (39) E., W. M., also an additional strip of land fifty (50) feet in width of the northwest corner thereof, thence in a southwesterly direction on the arc of a 9 degree 30 minute curve to the right, tangent to which said initial point makes a southwest angle of 36 degrees 22 minutes with said north line of section 14 a distance of three hundred and seven and nine-tenths (377 9/10) feet subtending an angle of 1 degree 47 minutes to a point of tangency, thence in a southwesterly direction on a tangent a distance of 312 feet, more or less to a point in the south line of said northwest quarter (NW 1/4) section fourteen (14), township twenty (20), north of range thirty-nine (39) E., W. M.

That the object of said petition is to condemn said strip of land for the construction and operation of a line of railroad across said lands, Washington, to the town of Paseo in the county of Franklin, and state of Washington, and said petitioner will ask that said right of way be condemned and that the compensation to be paid therefor be ascertained and determined by a jury, and if a jury be waived, by the court or the judge thereof, as by law provided.
