

WEARING OF THE HAIR.

Classical Effects In Place of Waved Effects and "Rats."

The hairdressers have given woman-kind their orders, and there are few marcel waved effects seen; instead the hair is brought down at the sides of the head and slightly waved and brought into a classical knot at the back. In most instances there appears to be a reaching out for classical effects so far as the contour of the head will permit. Far less false hair is to be used and no "rats" at all. Some faces look best when the hair is divided in the middle and the parting left so that the forehead is exposed, while the temples and ears are covered.

The object seems to be to adapt the best and most becoming of the various styles of the last century to each wearer. There are some who wear the hair puffed out widely at the sides, and in the back is an old-fashioned twist such as our grandmothers wore. Each person can try the different arrangements until she gets the right one, and then she can dress her hair in the most becoming manner and feel that she is in the fashion. Puffs are out of date with the new styles, and long braids are in. Few women have long hair, and so braids must be provided, but "rats" or artificial means of lifting the hair are passe.

Hats are still a vexed and vexing question. The so-called peach baskets have had their day. The American women discovered these ugly creations were first offered to the Parisian women, who flatly refused them, and then the immense quantity on hand was shipped to this haven of foolish things. We are a sort of dumping ground for all the mistaken experiments from abroad. Now it is rare to see one of those superlatively ugly shapes. Sailor hats are often seen with linen suits and are neat and natty, especially for quite young ladies.

The mushroom shape has one thing to recommend it—it shades the face, and this is well for those who tan and sunburn easily. I saw a mushroom hat of burnt straw with a band and flat bow of scarlet velvet ribbon for sole trimming. Velvet ribbon and velvet in bias bands make a rich trimming, better suited, however, for fall than midsummer. In fact, there seems to me to be no end to the varieties of shapes. Turbans with close or wide brimmed effects are pretty and becoming to most women. The trimming of a hat may be anything or even nothing save some sort of band or bow made of the same kind of straw. Plaid ribbons are seen on some hats. Polka dots, where the spots are big as quarters, are on others. There are hats with wide brims and others with high crowns and narrow brims, but where are the "Morrow Widow" and the peach basket? Echo answers, "Where?" One may mention the feathers now most in vogue, and they are really all of the made variety, many being of skillfully manipulated ostrich plumes. There are many long and scanty fluted ostrich plumes, and these are so cleverly cut, scraped and split that they sell for aigrets or the plumes of the bird of paradise. Some look as though cut from a duster that has outlived its usefulness.

When doctors disagree how is the lay person to know which is right? The foreign and a very few American fashion journals show us pictures of ladies in such very scanty raiment that one begins to wonder how one is going to look in such garb, and then the same seeker after knowledge goes to the best stores in this city and finds scarcely a suspicion of this scantiness in the real garments. They mostly have plaits in some places to relieve the scant appearance, or there are tules and many different arrangements of garniture, all of which look well and do not look a bit like the pictures. We hear so much about the empire that we come to believe it, but the reality is far from being indelicate, indecent or objectionable in any way. There may be a few women of fine figures who do not care what is said of them so long as they make a sensation. Fortunately the mass of American women are not of that mind. All the summer dresses are plaited and full in the skirts.

OLIVE HARPER.

Missouri Girls' Titled Husbands.

St. Louis has more aristocratic families in proportion to its population than any other city in the United States. Its old inhabitants were the millionaires of the country west of the Mississippi up to the civil war. Twenty-four daughters of these old families married titled husbands and are associated with the most aristocratic families of Europe. It is a singular fact that in this number every woman is considered a beauty. These women are the daughters of the following well known families of St. Louis: Gratiot, Harney, Taylor, Dillon, Scullin, Garesche, Corneau, Beaume, Kingsbury, Allen, Britton, Kershaw, Clemens, Dameron, Busch, Eads, Woodbridge, Frost, Blew, Foss, January and Nicholson. Three of these, the Frosts, are from one family.

KEY TO SOCIAL SUCCESS.

Sweet Smile, Simple Dress and Unaffected Manner.

Many women make the mistake of not being cheerful and genial. Except in story books the proud and haughty princess makes a hit with no one.

There is a great demand at present for sweet simplicity, and the woman who wants to win socially pretends she has this quality if she really does not possess it. She dresses without much ornamentation, but of course that does not mean that her gowns are not costly. She affects simple language, and she pretends to admire the simple life.

Of course there is no telling how long this will last, but at present it's very much the thing.

Probably the woman who holds her own socially is unaffected because the one who doesn't is so full of airs.

The latter, indeed, couldn't exist if she were not posing in some way for the purpose of dazzling some one. She would feel at the mercy of the whole world if she acted naturally. She believes in finesse, as they say in bridge. A straight game is unknown to her.

The pity of it is that she dazzles no one but herself and deceives no one else.

People are amused to see her elaborate plottings and plannings when the truth is so perfectly obvious.

But there is no one so obstinate as a woman of this type. You could talk to her for a week without convincing her that truth and common sense are the best policies.

The woman who is frank and straightforward is sure to have a host of friends. People like to be with her, she is such a relief from the managing politic lady.

A sweet smile wins always. There is nothing more attractive.

All the supercilious airs, all the clever sallies and the artful glances do not weigh in the balance against a single glance of sympathy and kindness.

The girl or woman who wants to be sought after and loved need only smile at the world right from her heart, and the world will sure smile back at her.

SPITTING NUISANCE.

Hawking and Spitting Is Caused by Catarrh Germs.

If the local authorities want to stop the disgusting habit of spitting mucous on the sidewalks, they had better instruct the people as to the best method of killing the catarrh germs and curing catarrh.

You can easily tell by reading the symptoms below whether you have catarrh or not:

Offensive breath, frequent sneezing, discharge from nose, stoppage of the nose, huskiness of the voice, tickling in throat, droppings in throat, a cough, loss of strength, variable pain in chest, loss of strength, variable appetite, spasms of coughing, low spirit, at times, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, loss of vital force.

V. T. McCroskey has a sensible remedy (money back if it fails) for catarrh, Hyomei, which is a vaporized air so antiseptic that when it is breathed over the inflamed and germ-infested membrane, it kills all germ life and cures catarrh.

The price, including hard rubber inhaler, is only $1, and money back if it doesn't cure. Extra bottles, 50 cents.

"I have tried almost every catarrh cure on the market without benefit. Have been using Hyomei for one week and feel like a new man already."—Wm. V. Gode, Newark, Ohio, June 21, 1909.
