PULLMAN, WASHINGTON, SATURDAY, JAN. 22, 1898.

NUMBER 14

THE NEWS OF THE CITY.

Record of Happenings of a Week in Pullman.

What People are Doing and how They are Doing it.

The jingling sleigh bells have mingled their merry music with the shouts and laughter of happy young people at almost all hours of the day or night the past week, but today is matron's day, and an even dozen of the wives of an even dozen of the city's business and professional men are speeding over the frosted highways, enjoying a real old-fashioned sleigh ride. Mrs. F. E. Hawley's hostess, her guests being Mesdames Roberts, W. L. White, Tannatt, Zender, Harvey, Abbott, C. A. White, Fletcher, A. White, Lyon and Lane. Twelve anxious husbands vainly entered their tearful pleas for the privilege of acting as chaperone on the momentous occasion, but the ladies cast all precedent aside, and go unchaperoned. They will visit Moscow and other points of interest, and to make it more realistic will probably investigate the depth and solidity of the biggest snow bank along the road.

Numerous changes in location of business are now being contemplated. L. J. Lindley will remove his hardware stock either to the Mercantile building or the room recently occupied by the Commercial company; Faris Bros. will enlarge their store to occupy both their present quarters and the room to be vacated by Lindley. Changes are also likely to be made by Henry Chambers & Co. and Blackman Bros. & Co. who contemplate swapping locations.

After you have thoroughly enjoyed "Damon and Pythias" on Monday evening, January 24th, take your lady to supper in the store room of Chambers-Price Co., where a delightful supper will be ready waiting for you, prepared by some of the ladies of our city. Oysters in all styles will be served and modest prices prevail.

C. L. Day, formerly a resident of Pullman, but of late engaged in mining operations at Pierce City, was here last week en route for the gold fields of the Klondike, via the Skagway trail. He expects to remain in the north three years. His family will remove to Pullman, and make this their home during his absence.

The minstrel show Monday night drew the crowd usual at such entertainments. George's operatic minstrels give a very fair show for the kind, but of course there is a sameness about minstrel's that takes much of the interest from all after the first production witnessed.

Chas. Bull, who is running an up-to-date tin shop in the building at the corner of Alder and Paradise streets, has a nice and complete stock of goods in his line. When it comes to tinning and plumbing Charlie asks odds of no one. He is master of his trade.

The regular services will be conducted at the Christian church on Sunday, by Mr. Barrows. Bible school at 10 a. m.; sermon at 11; Junior C. E. at 3 p. m.; Senior C. E. at 6:30 p. m. Sermon at 7:30.

There's more clothing destroyed by poor soap than by actual wear. "Hoe Cake" soap contains no free alkali and will not injure the finest lace. Try it and notice the difference in quality.

W. J. Windus has resigned his position with the College Boarding Co., and purchased the interests of G. H. Pilcher, of Harvey & Pilcher, in the insurance, real estate and loaning business.

A sleigh load of young people visited the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Hubbard, Wednesday evening, and were royally entertained by the host and hostess.

Landlord Davis, of the Palace, went to Pendleton, Oregon, Sunday, where he was called as a witness in a case in court.

Hoe Cake soap contains no free alkali and no worthless filling. BRAGG.

For a first-class job of tinning, plumbing, etc., see Chas. Bull.

Don't ruin your eyes, but get spectacles of Dr. White.

J. W. Cavanaugh, of Juliaetta, was here Thursday.

Go to Chas. Bull for good tin-ware. Spectacles at Dr. White's.

A. L. Ransom, of Moscow, was in the city Sunday.

Air-tight stoves, drums, elbows, dampers, etc. Chas. Bull.

Repair your old tin, copper and granite ware. Chas. Bull can repair it, and repair it right.

A sleighing party from Colfax and two from Moscow took supper at the Palace Saturday evening.

Ralph Bull, who is now connected with the Pullman Produce Company, is in Wardner and other points this week reaching out for business for the firm, which already has a very extensive trade.

Mr. G. H. Pilcher, who has been associated with Attorney Harvey as manager of their real estate and insurance department, will shortly join a party organized in Colfax which starts for the gold fields of Alaska about the 15th of February. Mr. Pilcher has by his warm hearted good nature and courteous manner made many friends here who, while regretting his departure from Pullman, wish him a successful journey and an abundant reward for the hardships of the undertaking.

E. S. Harding, who recently sold his interest in the What Cheer, has purchased a ranch near Pullman, and will soon settle down to the solid, if not very romantic occupation of plow jogging. It has been slyly hinted that Mr. Harding has subscribed for an eastern publication bearing the suggestive name of Heart and Hand, but this report we are confident is a libel, since with the advantages of a ranch and good bank account combined with good looks, pleasant manners and cultured tenor voice, Cupid will find a heart and hand for him near home.—Florence Miner.

On Friday evening of last week Fred Hull hired a team and cutter at Bach's livery stable, and with agreeable company started out to enjoy the excellent sleighing. A way out from town the team concluded to take charge of the excursion, and the occupants of the cutter were dumped by the roadside, the horses starting out on their own accord. They returned to Pullman, took a run around the various streets, and finally tried to enter the First National Bank through the glass in the door, but only succeeded in spoiling a $25 plate glass. The cutter was also somewhat damaged, and the young couple whose sleigh ride had been so rudely broken into, enjoyed a pleasant moonlight walk into town.

Tuesday was a bad day for coyotes on Union Flat, and seven of them came to an abrupt end in their chicken-stealing career. A grand coyote round-up was billed for Tuesday, and one hundred men gathered at the Chas. Hill place, on the flat, and at 10:30 the round-up commenced. When the circle of men had been reduced to a few hundred yards in extent, the fun commenced, and coyotes were seen darting hither and thither, and the gunners kept up a lively fusillade. Seven dead coyotes was the result of the day's sport, but various others are walking lead mines, having been made the recipients of numerous loads of shot. After the round-up a big dinner was served at the Hill farm, the ladies having supplied bountifully of all the good things to eat.

The Council Met.

Mayor White and Councilmen Henry, Gaddis, Ruply and Kerr were present last night to conduct the business of the city. A batch of bills was allowed, and the finance committee reported favorably on the annual reports of treasurer and clerk.

The much talked of contest between the city and college was discussed, and Councilmen Gaddis, Henry and Ruply were appointed as a committee to confer with the regents in regard to it.

The city attorney was instructed to report at the next meeting on the validity of certain of the city's ordinances, the legality of a number of them being questioned. He was also instructed to report concerning the status of the delinquent street grade assessments. The bond of Wilford Allen, as police judge was approved. The clerk was instructed to notify H. E. Merriman that the council desired a report on the police court business of 1897, he having failed to make his annual report.

H. J. Jackson presented a proposition, agreeing to install 16-candle power lights on the streets, and charge the city therefor at the rate of $1 per month. The proposition was referred to the proper committee, to be reported upon at next meeting.

THAT "GOOD OLD QUAKER"

The "Quaker Doctor" Gets a "Head" Put on Him.

Leaves Town in a Hurry with his Aggregation.

For the past two weeks Pullman has been "entertained" by a traveling combination calling themselves the "Quaker doctors." They have given nightly shows in Reaney's hall, the object of this calling together of the multitude being to sell a lot of concoctions known as the Quaker remedies. The show part of the proceeding was furnished by a number of musicians and comedians, but the major portion of the program consisted of lengthy dissertations by a long haired individual who extolled the merits of the various quaker remedies, and referred time and again to the "good old quaker doctor" who was with the aggregation, and whose part of the program it was to give free advice, and sell at enormous rates certain "sure cures." The game was a good one, and the quakers' pocket books were filling rapidly, and on Wednesday they were to go to Moscow to reap a harvest of the gullible. But Tuesday they decided on short notice to close their engagement in the Palouse country, and the remaining dates were cancelled without notice to the public. On the morning of that day a lady, who was being treated by the "quakers," reported to her husband that she had been insulted by the "old doctor" while in consultation with him at his office at the hotel, and the husband was naturally much wrought up over the matter. Accompanied by a number of his friends he visited the "doctor," and when the consultation was over the "doctor" was laid up for repairs—his head had served the purpose of an up-to-date striking bag, and was gaily decorated with red and white. The "quakers" were also notified to be out of town before the shades of another night had fallen.

They left, and left in a hurry, too, not even waiting for a train to bear them from the city, but were driven in a sleigh to Colfax, where they took the train for parts far removed from reach of the angry Palouseites. It will take the old "quaker's" head some time to come back to its original rotundity, and it is to be hoped that he will have learned a lesson, for he may not escape so easily at the hands of the next enraged husband.

The Glee Club Concert.

The concert given by the college glee club on Friday evening, January 14th, was a decided success. In spite of the inclement weather and the difficulty of climbing the college hill through the drifted snow, more than 250 people were present. The stage was beautifully decorated with the club colors, yellow and blue, which hung in festoons in front of the stage, and the letters "G C" suspended below, while at the rear of the rostrum was hung the large national flag belonging to the college. During the evening the audience was favored with two excellent selections by the Sappho Quartette. The first was "Robin Adair," composed by Dudley Buck, and the second "Legends," by Moehring. Both selections met with loud applause and hearty encores. The assistance rendered by the Quartette was highly appreciated by the individual members of the glee club. Of the club songs, "Romeo and Juliet" was perhaps the most amusing. The Latin song, "Silvarumque Flumina," written for the club by Prof. Barry, "Until the Dawn," and "Evening song" were well received and deserve special mention. By special request of the audience, Prof. Darrow sang a ballad entitled "You," which was also well received. The club has made great improvement since last year, and now holds a prominent place among the student organizations here. The glee club has come to stay, and under the able direction of Prof. Darrow is bound to become one of the most important features of the college, as well as a means of culture and training for its members.

The club has arranged for concerts at the following places: Colfax, Feb. 17; Walla Walla, Feb. 18; Waitsburg, Feb. 19. The Sappho Quartette has kindly consented to accompany the club to Colfax, and assist in the concert there.

Boys Witness Minstrels.

Monday night a number of lads wanted to see the minstrel performance, but not having the necessary price of admission hit upon a plan that bid fair to give the entire kid population free entrance to the auditorium. They obtained a long ladder, which was placed against the building, reaching to a window in the gallery. The window was raised, and the gallery rapidly filled. But at last the management discovered the game, and a couple of boys who had just entered by the window route were grasped forcibly by the collar, and hustled down stairs and out into the street, being escorted by Mr. George, the manager of the show. This did not end the matter, however, and George soon found himself under arrest, charged with assault and battery, it being claimed that he had treated one of the boys, Ed. Grimes, rather too roughly in ejecting him from the auditorium. After the show George was brought before Justice Merriman, and the case was continued till the next morning. At the time set for trial Tuesday George was on hand, but the prosecuting witness was not, and the case was dismissed, George going with his company to Colfax where they were to show that night. Later in the day Grimes concluded that he would prosecute the case, and Constable Hill went to Colfax with a warrant to bring the minstrel manager to this city for trial. But although he hunted the special minstrel car through and through he could not find his man, and the warrant was brought back to Pullman unserved. George had probably gotten wind of the new warrant, and so kept discreetly out of sight.

"Under the Dome."

"Under the Dome," which comes to the auditorium, Saturday evening, January 29th, is the latest from the pen of Lincoln J. Carter, an adept at concocting plays to please the masses and an absolute master in creating new and previously unthoughtof effects. His previous plays have all been sensational melodramas. In "Under the Dome" he has risen to a higher plane, and is said to have turned out a really meritorious comedy drama, absolutely free from cheap sensational lines. It has been splendidly mounted. The hurricane scenes, terminating with the wreck of the Trenton in the harbor of Apia and the ferry boat trip from Jersey City to New York are said to be by far the most strikingly perfect scenic aids in use on the American stage. The hurricane scenes are sure to strike a popular chord, as the memory of the heroic action of the men of the Trenton in assembling on deck at what seemed to them to be in all probability their last moment of life, to hear the band thunder forth the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner," is still fresh in the hearts of all true Americans. Other scenes of the play show the capitol at Washington during a night illumination, several familiar Washington localities and a view of the beautiful coral reef harbor at Apia before the storm.

Rebekahs Celebrate.

In consequence of the fine sleighing, Goldenrod Rebekah lodge had a large attendance at their meeting last Saturday evening, January 15th, several sleigh loads of Rebekahs coming from Verona lodge, of Colfax, and Star lodge of Moscow, about sixty visitors being present. Four new members were initiated into the mysteries of the degree, and Miss Mina Frye, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Idaho, assisted in the installation of the following officers for the new term: Emma L. Hubbard, N. G.; Amelia E. Bryant, V. G.; Elva M. Lanning, R. Sec.; Adda M. Reed, F. Sec.; Bertha A. Pierce, Treas. After a bountiful supper the meeting adjourned, everyone voting the evening a pleasant success.
