

JACK EARLY BACK FROM PHILIPPINES

Graduate of State College Visits Old Haunts After Five Years in Philippine Islands.

"Jack" Early, a graduate of the State College with the class of 1904, is visiting old friends in Pullman after an absence of seven years, five of which have been spent in the Philippine Islands. Mr. Early is employed by the government as governor of one of the provinces of the islands, and is now enjoying his first vacation of any length since he left Pullman. He will return to his work about the first of the year.

Mr. Early has become prominent in government circles in the Philippine Islands, his biggest "stunt" being to teach the native the art of brick making. He speaks two native languages out of a possible thirty that are spoken in the islands. Mr. Early went to the islands in 1906, two years after he had graduated from the State College in economics, and this is his first trip home. He has visited China, Italy, Turkey and London, England, on the trip over. When asked what he thought of the old place, Mr. Early said:

"Friday evening last I reached Pullman, about five hours after the Oregon game was history—thanks to strikers and strikebreakers on the Harriman system, and Saturday morning I started up College hill to see what time and man had done while I had been gone—a matter of some seven years.

"I found that man had been busy indeed, but that the old long boy with the scythe had left few of his destructive gashes—old College hall has fallen and the greenhouse, after effective footwork, has taken refuge behind a new brick structure, where it stands panting and wheezing, but defiant—but aside from these the constructor has the best of it at all points.

"Entering the grounds, I passed through a fine arch, near a place where a barbed wire fence used to protect my class from the village cattle, and on passing through the arch I found a fine cement walk, lined on either side by concrete lamp posts, surmounted by real lamps, a contrast to the shoemaker's friend, the old gravel walk up and down which we used to promenade, imagining in our innocence we were on the Champs Elysees. In the Ad. building I met Mr. Barnard, an old friend and classmate, and he kindly guided my feet over the new ways and in and out of new buildings, through the fine auditorium—a building which dominates the campus—with its nicely arranged library and stack rooms and the apparently complete equipment for the rapid transaction of business. Here I thought of our ever good natured Miss Saxton, hugging her charcoal burner in the attic of the Ad. building, in an attempt to ward off pneumonia while she transacted the business of the day, and marveled that the paths of advancing generations are made so easy. College hall, a fine new building, is another new one, and looking across the campus, another little stranger, Van Doren hall, snuggles down as complacently as a suffragette. As we walked toward the old athletic field I noted a number of fenced areas and wondered, "Have they the temerity to grow chickens on such a scale near the "dorm," but coming closer I saw tennis court after tennis court. As I helped make the first court on the campus ten years ago and still remember how we were watched by peering, curious or expectant eyes in our every movement of work and play, I knew again "that the world do move."

"I have not yet had time to see the college at work, but no doubt I will see as great advances in inside work as I have seen in outside improvement, all of which I am storing up as a treat for myself."

Will Try to Repeat

Tomorrow on Rogers Field the second team of the W. S. C. football squad will line up against the second string men of the U. of L., and try to duplicate the victory of the regulars. The game promises to be fast and furious, for both institutions have plenty of good players who are not quite fast enough to make the first team, but can put up a gilded quality of football. These second eleven men are the ones who are entitled to all kinds of credit and encouragement. They get the hard knocks without the glory, and by their patriotism make it possible to turn out the finished varsity teams. The Idaho men will try desperately to diminish the bad taste of the defeat of their first team and the W. S. C. boys are equally determined to dish out a second dose of the same. All who attend will see a real football game for the moderate price of 50 cents.

Vesper Services for Sunday Afternoon, November 5th

The following program will be rendered at the Vesper services at the college auditorium Sunday afternoon: Overture, "Lulu." Communion No. 2. E. Batiste Prelude and Fugue C Minor. J. S. Bach Tarentella. R. Frieul Larghetto. L. Spohr Largo. Handel-Lemare Overture, "Poet and Peasant." Von Suppe Doxology.

This program contains a majority of famous pieces, Nos. 1, 3, 6 and 7 being known to all interested in music, whether thru the medium of organ or orchestra. The technical difficulty of "Lulu" is lost sight of in the beautiful themes and their manner of treatment by the composer. A noble work it is, full of contrast and color. Bach makes great demand upon the pedal technique of the performer and in this particular piece this feature is most noticeable. The prelude opens with a pedal passage, the Angue grows in power till the full resources of the organ are employed, and although it is not so lengthy as some of his compositions, it is none the less enjoyable on that account.

It is Dr. Evan's intention during the series of vesper services to offer to the public representative recitals from all the greatest composers of organ music, so that some idea may be gained as to their several styles. This should prove very interesting and educational and at the same time create a better understanding of the more intellectual side of pipe organ music. Bach and Gullarant recitals will come, interspersed with miscellaneous selections from Italian, French, German, English and Scandinavian composers. Likewise the best composers of this country will receive attention.

"Starving to Death."

Who is it? Where is he? Who can help him and how? This is the subject of the sermon at the Baptist church Sunday night. Be sure to hear it. Only the ordinary offering will be taken. All other services of the day will be as usual. Everyone cordially invited. Come. At the evening service, the orchestra makes its first appearance this year.

St. James Church

PRESIDENT BRYAN VISITS IN FRANCE

Illness of Miss Lila Delayed Trip Two Weeks. Family Visits at National Capital.

President and Mrs. Bryan and two daughters, Lila and Gertrude, left New York on Tuesday, the 24th inst., on the steamer Ryndam, of the Holland-American line. The objective point of the vessel was Rotterdam, Germany, though there was a possibility of landing at Boulogne, France, from which point President Bryan expected to proceed directly to London for a stay of several weeks.

Due to a nine days' illness of Miss Lila Bryan, the date of sailing was postponed for nearly two weeks, during which time the president and family were the guests of Professor and Mrs. W. J. Spillman, the former several years ago being head of the agricultural department of this college.

ONE LONE GOAL WINS FOR OREGON

(Continued from First Page.) An exchange of punts, a series of line bucks and end runs, the local team found themselves directly in front of the goal posts on Oregon's 25-yard line. Coulter attempted a place kick, but the kick was blocked, Oregon recovering the ball on their own 45 yard line. W. S. C.'s other chance to score came in that grilling third quarter, when after a fumbled punt, by Main, Suver fell on the ball out of bounds on Oregon's 15 yard line. Coulter made 3 yards and Tyler 2 yards on end runs, placing the ball on Oregon's 10 yard line, with 5 yards to go, third down. On tackles back, Laird was given the ball, but Oregon in a wonderful stand, placed every ounce of their strength in their effort and held, the ball changing hands. Latourette then kicked out of danger. In both these plays, the team seriously missed the services of Milt Moerer, the great little drop-kicker, who was out of the game with a broken thumb. With "Moe's" ability at drop-kicking, it really looks as though the score would have been tied had he the opportunity of booting the ball over the crossbar.

Oregon was really surprised at the strength of the local team, and the fact that they were so completely outplayed in the entire first half is attributed to a mite of overconfidence on the part of the visitors, who really expected to trounce the State College team by at least 2 touchdowns. After making his brilliant run, Captain Main instructed his men to play safe, and Oregon's game, and rightly so, in the last quarter was merely one of defense, never taking a chance when the ball was in the danger zone, Latourette always punting out of danger.

With Kienholz not in shape to even enter the game, as was shown by his retiring in place of Walsh after 5 minutes of play, Moerer out entirely, Laird, Tyrer and Fishback crippled, it is undoubtedly true that the playing of the game with Idaho lost us the game with Oregon.

Tom Tyrer, despite his crippled condition, when all is said and done, was the bright particular star of the entire game's play, with Main's performance reckoned in the bargain. Tyrer's work in carrying the ball was phenomenal, his 30-yard fighting run in the first quarter, immediately followed by a 20-yard gain, being as spectacular as Main's lucky get-away in the third quarter. At almost every stage of the game, Tommy made good yardage when given the ball. It can easily be said of him that he was the most consistent ground gainer on the local team. And Tom's tackling was just as phenomenal as his offensive play and his advancing the ball.

Latourette, kicking for Oregon, and Coulter, doing the punting for the State College, vied with each other in the second and fourth quarters particularly, with honors practically even. Latourette showed better judgment in placing his punts to the side of the field, and was perhaps more speedy in getting the oval away from his toe. Coulter, however, made every attempt good, his team mates holding off the opponents until Coulter got away with his punt. The ends and tackles of both teams did excellent work in getting down on punts, Fishback and Laird perhaps excelling their opponents in this phase of the contest. Tyrer and Pynn, as long as he lasted, were fast also in getting down on the ball.

Joe Harter, in his quiet unassuming way, played a real "all-northwest" game, his tackling, and his defensive as well as offensive work shining forth in great glory. Little "Heintz" deserves a great deal of credit for the scrappy game he played at quarter. Scrap he did, and never should he be blamed for not catching Main on that dash for the State College goal line, for a field runner of Main's ability, with only one man to get by, would probably go around any man in the northwest, if this man were the only obstacle between himself and the coveted goal. Latourette's work both on punting and carrying the ball was rather a disappointment to those who have seen the "phenom" play in other games. He has lost none of his dodging or cunning, but one source of great satisfaction is that he did not get away for one single spectacular run.

Clark found a big hole in Oregon's line during the first half, but could not pounce it during the third quarter and that he played of the fourth. Penick, who went in for Clark, hit the line like a cannon ball, and looks more than ever like a varsity back field man. Eddie Kienholz, who played such a brilliant game at Moscow, in the Idaho game, had to be taken out with his injured ankle before he got under way. Shorty Harter played like a demon, his defensive play being especially worthy of mention. Gaddis, too, showed real varsity stuff after he went in for George Pynn, who, with his bum shoulder, couldn't stand the fierce attack. Pynn, as long as he stayed in the game, played star ball.

NOTICE

The laws under which the banks of Pullman are operated require that the books of the bank be written up and correctly balanced at the close of each day's business, so as to show the exact condition of the bank at the end of each day's work.

It is necessary for the bank's office force to start this work at 3 o'clock p. m. in order to get it finished before bed-time.

Heretofore it has been the custom of the banks of Pullman to balance the day's business at 3 o'clock p. m. and afterwards admit customers to the lobby of the bank, transact business, and carry these transactions over into next day's business. It has been ruled by the Bank Examiners that this is not in accord with the above mentioned provision of law.

Therefore it is hereby agreed by and between the banks of Pullman that on and after November 1st, 1911, we will confine our business transactions strictly to the office hours provided in our by-laws, and will admit no one to the bank before the hour of 9 o'clock a. m. nor after the hour of 3 o'clock p. m.
