

SUMMER SESSION COURSES OUTLINED

Special Opportunities Offered for Work in Biology, Music, Art and Dramatics

Botany and Zoology and Field Excursions

Plants and animals live out of doors. They do not grow in bottles of alcohol on laboratory shelves. This is the key note to the work of these departments in the summer session. Pullman has a peculiarly favorable location for the study of north-west conditions. It lies in the midst of the bunch grass region, at an altitude of 2,400 feet. Just to the south is the arid Snake river canyon, very nearly 2000 feet deep, and with a climate resembling that of Arizona. Here under irrigation are great commercial orchards. To the northeast are the Thatuna hills, whose chief summit, Cedar mountain, rises to the height of 5,000 feet. They are covered with pine, fir and cedar forests. Their north slope, while snow lingers until after mid-summer, presents a boreal fauna and flora differing widely from the southern exposure. Week end excursions are run to these various regions, affording an insight in to the effects on living organisms brought about by sunshine, altitude and shade, humidity and drouth. These excursions are open to all members of the summer session, and afford a relaxation from class work, and an opportunity for field study. The departments possess ample tentage and camp equipment so that parties may remain several days. The average expense of these trips does not exceed $1.00.

Music, Art and Dramatics

To those who may wish to study music, opportunities are offered in piano, pipe organ, voice and composition. There are sixteen pianos and in the auditorium a pipe organ which has twenty-six stops, three manuals and the latest devices for coupling. The organ should demand consideration, as these instruments are being installed very commonly, and the demand for competent performers cannot be supplied. Dr. Ernst A. Evans will offer the courses in piano and organ. He will also give several recitals during the session. A sight-singing course offers thorough drill in the fundamentals of sight-singing in preparation for teachers' examination. In art Mr. Jacobson will give (1) a Teachers' course, for public school teachers, (2) a course in Constructive Design, (3) Free Hand Drawing, which are all free of charge. He will also give private lessons in painting, sketching, etc. In dramatics, a course of lectures will be offered discussing plays, and another course in story telling. One or two short plays will be presented.

Other Departments

The following courses are offered: In Chemistry; General Experimental Chemistry and Qualitative Analysis; In Economics, Economic Theory and Economic Problems; in Education, six collegiate courses; in English, there will be five collegiate courses offered and three elementary courses; in History, the Federal Constitution, State Government, Teachers' Course and two elementary courses; in Latin, Classical Art and Classical Mythology, each illustrated with slides, a Teachers' course and courses in preparatory Latin; in Mathematics there will be five collegiate courses and three elementary courses; in Modern Languages, Beginning German, Conversational German, Methods course, Beginning French, Second Year French, Beginning Spanish, Norwegian, and Swedish; in Physiology, two courses; in Photography, a beginning course. There will be special lectures by eminent educators.

The work in Home Economics, Agriculture, Manual Art, including Metal Work and Mechanical Drawing, has been announced in previous issues. Particular attention is directed towards the review of courses for grade examination in U. S. History, Grammar, Theory and Art, English Literature, State Manual, Physiology, Geography and Physical Geography, Arithmetic, Music, Algebra and Physics.

Dr. Alvin E. Evans, director of the 1912 Summer Session, reports that it will undoubtedly be the best in the history of the State College.

As The Herald goes to press news was received that Max Hinrichs was kicked in the head by a horse this morning and is probably fatally injured.

Sons of Veterans Organize
Pullman now has a fully organized camp of Sons of Veterans. The camp was organized Tuesday night with 49 charter members. The organization was perfected by Department Commander Moran of Snohomish, assisted by other visitors to Pullman for the G. A. R. encampment. The officers of the new camp are: Dr. E. T. Pate, commander; B. F. Campbell, senior vice; Karl P. Allen, junior vice; Ira Clark, secretary; Harry Austin, treasurer; William Porter, chaplain; Dr. A. A. Rounds, patriotic instructor; A. M. Rodeen, color sergeant; Alva Greaves, musician; Elvie Harter, guide; C. L. Jain, M. D. Henry and Roy Durbin, executive committee.

A handsome silk flag was presented to the camp by the ladies of Seattle G. A. R., who are attending the state encampment.

THE CONFEDERATE FLAG.

How the Design Was Finally Adopted by the South.

R. T. Beauregard of New Orleans gives the following account of the design of the Confederate flag:

"During the battle of Manassas General Beauregard had observed the difficulty of distinguishing our own from the enemy's colors and in order to prevent all errors in the future had determined to adopt in his army a battle flag distinct in color and design. He at first sought to procure a change in the Confederate flag itself, and Colonel W. P. Miles, then chairman of the house military committee, had caused, at his request, a report to be presented to that effect, but with no result. In a conference between the then three senior officers at Fairfax Court House in September out of four designs for a battleflag one presented by General Beauregard was adopted. It was a red field with a diagonal blue cross, the latter edged with white and bearing white stars. To render it more portable it was made square instead of oblong by order of General Johnston.

"This beautiful design, by a strange coincidence, had been previously devised by Colonel Miles and recommended for the Confederate flag to congress, then in session at Montgomery in March, 1861. It had also been proposed by Mr. Edward C. Hancock, at the request of Colonel James B. Walton, at New Orleans in the month of April. It had been offered by Colonel Miles to General Beauregard in substitution for one nearly similar in emblem and pattern, but different in the distribution of colors, suggested to him by General Beauregard when the latter was seeking to procure a change in the Confederate flag. And it was now proposed anew to the general by Colonel Walton, who had Mr. Hancock's design.

"Thus it will be seen that the design of the Confederate battleflag was conceived and drawn long before a Union soldier had tried his skill in water colors on an original which was not and could never have reached the hands of the general's lamented daughter. She was a little girl who was in Louisiana during the whole of our unfortunate war and was seen by her father only at its close."

Fighting by the Day.

At the siege of Lexington, Mo., in the civil war an old Texan, dressed in buckskin and armed with a long rifle, used to go up to the works every morning about 7 o'clock, carrying his dinner in a tin pail. Taking a good position, he hauled away at the Federals until noon, then rested an hour and ate his dinner. He resumed operations until 6 p. m., when he returned home to supper and a night's sleep. The next day a little before 7 saw him, dinner and rifle in hand, trudging up street to begin again his regular day's work, and in this style he continued until the surrender.

F. P. Egan, formerly an attorney of Palouse, but now a resident of Portland, Oregon, was in Pullman last week and negotiated the sale of 320 acres of the Doran place, west of Pullman, to W. D. McCabe for $21,800. Mr. Egan still owns two sections of Whitman county land and says that he may return to make his home here.

Wm. Chambers expects to start next Sunday on a trip to his old home in Scotland. He will be away for a couple of months.

Roy and Jasper LaFollette returned Saturday from Washington, D. C., where they have been staying with their parents. They say that it seems good to get away from the humid heat of the national capital.

Any resident of Pullman having furnished rooms or rooms suitable for light housekeeping to rent to students attending the summer school are requested to phone particulars to Registrar Barnard of the College.

A very light vote was cast at the special election last Monday and the proposition of adding a third story to the present high school building was defeated by a vote of 30 against to eight for.

On Friday evening over 50 of the friends and neighbors of Walter Glaspey gathered at his home. The party had a two-fold object in view—to surprise Mr. Glaspey, it being near his birthday anniversary, and to create an interest in the Enterprise Sunday School which was recently organized. An impromptu literary and musical program was given, opened by a song, followed by an address by the Rev. Mr. Mare of Albion. Two numbers especially appreciated were songs rendered by a men's quartet of the Christian Endeavor Society of the U. B. church of Albion.

Peculiar Accident

Peter VanDyken, an employee on the Burnham ranch north of Pullman, suffered a very unusual and painful injury Wednesday of this week, when he had the scalp torn from the entire back part of his head. Mr. VanDyken had loaded some empty barrels into a wagon and was hauling them away. Owing to the fact that the wagon was filled with barrels the driver stood in one of them while driving. The wagon struck a stone in the road and the barrel was tipped out of it, the driver going over the with the barrel. He struck the ground on his head and before he could crawl out of the way one of the wheels of the wagon had run across the back part of his head, peeling the scalp off and leaving the skull exposed.

Mr. Van Dyken is not seriously injured and was able to come to town Thursday for further treatment.

D. Millgard of Colfax, was a Pullman visitor Thursday of this week.

Miss Ruby Newton of Colfax is visiting Pullman friends this week.

Mayor and J. F. Tift of Colfax came up to Pullman Wednesday to attend the ball game between Colfax and Pullman.

Miss Edna McCroskey of Colfax is visiting at the home of Frank Lavin this week.

UNKNOWN GRAVES.

But, ah, the graves which no man knows,
Uncounted graves which never can be found,
Graves of the precious "missing" where no sound
Of tender weeping will be heard,
No loving step of kindred! Oh, how flows
And yearns our thought of them!
More holy ground
Of graves than this, we say, is that
Whose bound
Is secret till eternity disclose
Its sign.

But nature knows no wilderness,
There are no missing in her numbered ways,
In her great heart is no forgetfulness,
Each grave she keeps she will adorn, caress
We cannot lay such wreaths as summer lays,
And all her days are decoration days.

THE VETERANS.

By DENIS A. MC CARTHY.
Every year they're marching slower;
Every year they're stooping lower;
Every year the hitting music stirs the hearts of older men;
Every year the flags above them
Seem to bend and bless and love them
As if grieving for the future when they'll never march again.

Every year that day draws nearer,
Every year the truth is clearer,
That the men who saved the nation from the severing southern sword
Soon must pass away forever
From the scene of their endeavor,
Soon must answer to the roll call of the angel of the Lord.

Every year with dwindling number,
Loyal still to those that slumber,
Forth they march to where already many
Have found peace at last,
And they place the fairest blossoms
O'er the silent, mold'ring bosoms
Of the valiant friends and comrades of the battles of the past.

Every year grow dimmer, duller,
Tattered flag and faded color,
Every year the hands that bear them find
A harder task to do,
And the eyes that only brightened
When the blaze of battle lightened,
Like the tattered flags they follow are
Grown dim and faded too.

Every year we see them marching,
Every year we watch them passing,
Scarcely pausing in our hurry after pleasure, after gain,
But the battle flags above them
Seem to bend and bless and love them,
And through all the hitting music sounds
An undertone of pain.

BOOSTERS DEFEAT COLFAX IN INTERESTING GAME

Moss Pitched Fine Game and Was Given First Class Support

In a well pitched and interesting game of baseball on the local diamond Wednesday the Pullman Boosters decisively defeated the Colfax Cardinals by a score of 8 to 4. The Boosters put up the best game they have played this season and both their hitting and fielding was exceptionally good. The game started with a rush on the part of the Boosters and they literally hit the ball like fiends. Hamblen succumbed in the sixth and Mauser, who played with the Spokane Indians in Northwest league early this season, replaced him, but even the ex-Indian was unable to stop the hard-hitting Boosters and they scored three hits and three runs the second time he faced them.

Moss, the consistent young pitcher for Pullman, put up a splendid game and out-pitched both of his opponents. When at bat, Moss kept up the record he has made this season by getting two hits and two runs in three times up. Garlock, in right field, and Foran, in center, played star games, the latter picking up three hot drives from his knees while running at full speed. Garlock fielded perfectly, accepted every chance without an error, and in addition got two two-base hits and two runs out of four times at bat. Among the Cardinals he was termed "Hans Wagner" when he came to bat.

The entire Pullman team played excellent ball and every one contributed to the string of plays that won the game.

A comparison of the work of pitchers in the game is interesting. Hamblen allowed six hits, struck out two and walked one. Mauser struck out three, allowed three hits and walked two. Moss struck out seven, allowed six hits and walked but two. Mosier, Rock and Casad made a pretty double play. Gaddis umpired a good game.

HAPPY WOMEN

Good Reason for It

Wouldn't any woman be happy, After years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary troubles, She finds relief and cure? No reason why any Pullman reader

Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. W. H. Hammond, 501 Paradise St., Pullman, Wash., says: "About two years ago my kidneys began to trouble me. There was a dull, nagging pain across the small of my back and the least exertion tired me. I did not have much ambition and I often noticed that the kidney secretions were unnatural. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I was led to try them and the contents of the first box brought such great relief that I continued their use until completely cured. I shall always speak a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills."
