MAHOMET'S EXAMPLE

The mountain would not come to Mahomet so Mahomet went to the mountain. Voters in country precincts should follow his example. The registration books can not be brought to their homes, so they should go to the home of the registration books.

Many voters had an idea that registration officers could take the books from farm to farm, but such procedure would be clearly illegal, as has been pointed out in an opinion rendered by L. L. Thompson, assistant attorney general, in reply to an inquiry from Prosecuting Attorney Burgunder. The opinion holds that the statute is mandatory in requiring voters to appear in person at the residence of the precinct registration officer appointed by the county commissioners and says, in part:

"We regard the keeping of these books at the place designated by the notice of registration as a very vital part of the registration machinery."

It is a certainty that no resident of the state can vote unless registered. It is also a certainty that no resident of a country precinct can register, without going to the place where the precinct registration books are kept. These are conditions, not theories, and it makes no difference whether you like them or not. If you don't like them, the only effective way of showing your disapproval is to comply with them and thus qualify yourselves to help elect legislative candidates who will vote to repeal the law requiring registration in country precincts.

DR. BRYAN'S CANDIDACY

Three weeks ago we published an editorial on "Our Congressional Representation," pointing out the limitations of our present congressional delegation and the urgency of having someone in the national capital who possesses superior qualities of leadership. As we then said:

"What we need is some leader who can interpret to the nation the new Northwest with its great economic and human resources, its efforts to develop a genuinely democratic government, its strategic geographical position in the commercial and military destiny of the country, its unique social and intellectual atmosphere."

Since that was written Dr. E. A. Bryan, former president of the State College of Washington, has announced his candidacy for nomination to the U. S. senate. It seems to us that Dr. Bryan fills quite completely the specifications of leadership required which we then set forth. Dr. Bryan is a man of rare endowments. A masterful executive, a man with well trained mind, with ripe experience, yet with powers in full vigor, with a most comprehensive knowledge of the people, resources and needs of our state and with the proper perspective of national and international relationships into which this state must fit, Dr. Bryan is to our mind, the man who ought to be chosen senator from this state.

Those who are genuinely interested in this state's securing adequate representation in Washington, in our sending to the capital a man who will quickly take rank among the nation's foremost statesmen because of his intellectual force, his personal strength, and his fine character, ought to unite in the support of Dr. Bryan.—Washington State Journal.

The placing of the military department of the State College in the distinguished class by the war department was a high honor, which has never before been conferred on any Northwestern institution and on but one in the west, the University of California. It is a splendid tribute to the efficiency and ability of Commandant Osterman, that W. S. C. has won an honor hitherto held almost exclusively by a few institutions where military training is emphasized as the important feature of their curriculum.

The get-together picnic held last Tuesday by the people of Colfax and Pullman went a long way toward demonstrating that it is a lot better and pleasanter for the residents of the two cities to break bread together than to break each other's heads.

To the ordinary citizen it looks very much as though Colonel Roosevelt, having used the progressive national convention as a weapon in a vain attempt to scare the republican national convention into nominating him for president, is now preparing to throw his weapon on the scrap heap.
