

TRACK TEAM LEAVES FOR SEATTLE MEET

Pacific Coast Conference Track Meet to Be Held May 31—Team Leaves Thursday

The big meet of the year, the one that is to decide the Pacific Coast championship, is to be held next Saturday, May 31, at Seattle.

Teams representing all the schools in the conference will be there. This includes the two California schools, Stanford and U. of California, the U. of Washington, U. of Oregon, the Oregon Agricultural College, and Washington State College.

It would be folly for anyone to predict a victory for any school, unless it would be California, and even then they would be predicting something that could only be guesstated.

California naturally is expected to have the best team. They have an enrollment five times as great as almost any team in the north. They turn out for track all winter and have five months training back of them, while the northern schools can only expect to get from four to six weeks training.

On the other hand, the records and the time made by the schools in the Northwest have been just as good or better than the time made by the southern schools in their meets.

Washington State can not be sure of any walkaways as she has been in the two-mile and pole vault heretofore, as California and Stanford both have exceptionally good distance men as well as a man who is vaulting over 12 feet.

It is expected that there will be several records broken in the meet, as there are several men in the different teams who hold the present records and if they are pressed very hard they will either break their records or the man winning from them will break it.

There is no doubt, with men like Smith, Phillips, Ratchford and Jenne in the race, that Washington State won't be on the bottom. Howell has just as good records as the California men in the low hurdles and stands a good chance in them.

The men making the trip are Captain Phillips, "Jit" Smith and Ratchford, in the distances; Parker, and Calder in the quarter and relay; Sutton, in the relay and sprints; Howell in the hurdles; Jenne, in the jumps and pole vault; and either King, McCroskey or Baker in the weights.

TEMPLE OF AGRICULTURE

The business men of the nation, including bankers, merchants, manufacturers, and transportation men, have representatives in Washington at this time presenting their ideas and their programs on the problems of reconstruction. In fact, they have gone so far as to create a peace industries board which shall bear the same relationship to peace-time reconstruction that the war industries board bore to the war-time period of destruction. To be more specific, the peace industries board is entrusted with the question of fixing prices on American products by agreement. It has announced recently a 10 per cent reduction in the price of steel and the next day stock advanced $4.25 per hundred on the steel market. They have already announced that they are soon to take up the question of determining prices on food products with a view to lowering the cost of living.

Labor has its representatives in the capitol of the nation and they are knocking on the doors of the house and senate to ask for more humane conditions for labor. They also have their representative on the ground at the peace conference. They have been able to put a clause in the constitution of the league of nations creating an international bureau of labor to function with the secretary general under the constitution of the league of nations. But where, oh where, do the farmers come in? I might say they have not come in. I am wondering if they are going to make an attempt to come in.

Organizations representing the farmers of the United States propose to build in the national capital a Temple of Agriculture which is to become the national headquarters for the farmers of America and in which we invite all of the farmers of the United States to become interested to the extent of subscribing a few dollars for their own interest and for the welfare of the farmers in their particular state. We are proposing a federation of the various farm organizations in order that we may present a united front and a united program to congress and to the various departments that have to do with agricultural interests.

The farmers of the nation have been asked to subscribe to all kinds of schemes, but usually it is the other fellow's scheme. They have been asked to invest in all kinds of business ventures but usually the other fellow figured out the basis of representation and the voice that farmers should have in controlling the thing they put up for. But we are asking that you put up some money for your own organization in your own state and in which you can have a voice as to who shall be your representative in this great move and who will act on behalf of the farmers in matters of legislation and protection.

Soon congress will be in extra session and soon the mill is to start to grind our our laws on the great questions affecting the economic interests of the nation. Business is here, labor is here, in an organized way. Will the farmers come? If they do, they will have to come quickly.

Collegiate Distinction Worn to Morning Classes in Accordance With Custom of Larger Institutions

Feeling that the senior class of Washington State should follow the lead and custom of older institutions of higher learning, the members of the class of '19 appeared in class rooms for the first time on Monday, May 26, wearing the collegiate cap and gown.

Because of the fact that strangers from better known institutions than Washington State repeatedly questioned as to why the seniors did not appear on the campus, because of the realization that senior classes elsewhere do so appear—and because of the general sentiment favoring the bringing of regulation college customs to Washington State, the members of the class of '19 voted to appear in caps and gowns during each morning session of classes, from May 26 until the end of the college year.

Bert Williams Voices His Regrets

"Bring Back Those Wonderful Days," moans Bert Williams to the tune of a laugh a line. Quarter dinners, waterless milk, juicy steaks, janitors who gave heat, eggs at ten a dozen, and the days before the world went dry are among his regrets. Coupled with "Oh! Lawdy," also by Bert. A-2718-85c

"Mammy O'Mine"—a Dixie Mother Song

This touching ballad sung by the Sterling Trio is a worthy successor to "Don't Cry, Little Girl, Don't Cry" by the same composer. All mothers are perfect to their sons, and the biggest boys often long for them the hardest. Coupled with "By the Camp Fire." A-2718-85c

"I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles—as Medley Wait"
