

DIAMOND MEDAL FOR GREATEST HERO

Will Decorate Soldier Whose Record Proves Him Most Entitled to the Honor

Pullman is going to make a bid for the diamond distinguished service medal offered by the state of Washington to the man whose service record shows him to be most entitled to the honor. George H. Gannon, commander of Maynard-Price post of the American Legion, has received a communication from state officials asking that all service men of the community who distinguished themselves in action communicate all the facts to State Adjutant Harvey J. Moss, at Olympia, so that they may be considered when the selection is made. The officials do not have access to the war department records and the information furnished by the individual will be the means of selecting the most worthy soldier. The local post of the American Legion will endeavor to interest all Pullman men who are entitled to consideration and see that no soldier who covered himself with glory through individual heroism is overlooked.

The people are asked to co-operate in this matter and bring to the attention of the legion post any case of individual heroism that comes to their attention. There are a number of men in this community who are entitled to consideration and it is hoped that all of these cases will be brought to the attention of the proper persons.

Hard Fought and Exciting Football Game Results in Scoreless Tie at Moscow Last Friday

The Pullman high school football team went to Moscow, Ida., last Friday and played a scoreless tie at the fair grounds with Moscow high. The teams were evenly matched in weight and playing ability and while both were able to make yardage frequently neither had the punch to put the ball over the goal line.

Most of the game was played in the middle of the field where the ground was muddy and the footing poor. Both sides punted frequently and Moscow completed several forward passes for short gains. In the second quarter Pullman tried a drop kick but the ball fell short, and was caught by a Moscow player, who ran it back 39 yards before he was tackled. Toward the end of the game Pullman had worked the ball dangerously near Moscow's line and had made nine yards in three downs. The head linesman called four downs instead of three and spoiled Pullman's last chance to score.

Moscow was within striking distance of Pullman's goal two or three times but lacked the punch to put the ball over. In the first half Moscow gained 55 yards from scrimmage and Pullman 59. In the second half Pullman played a punting game and carried the ball but 93 yards to 136 yards for their opponents.

In the fourth quarter Crow, Pullman's captain and center, wrenched his back, but pluckily finished the game. About 50 high school rooters accompanied the team but failed to show their usual pep and enthusiasm.

FARMERS ASKED TO ASSIST CENSUS OFFICIALS

What is a farm? Seems a foolish question to ask, doesn't it? Almost anyone can tell off-hand just what a farm is and knows one when he sees it.

But do you happen to know the interpretation Uncle Sam places on the word "farm" for census purposes? No? Then read how his bureau of the census defines the word:

"A farm for census purposes is all the land which is directly farmed by one person conducting agricultural operations, either by his own labor or with the assistance of members of his household or hired employees."

In further explanation of this definition the census bureau points out that the term "agricultural operation" is used as a general term referring to the work of growing crops, producing other agricultural products and raising domestic animals, poultry or bees.

From this definition it will be seen that a farm may consist of a single tract of land or of a number of separate and distinct tracts. And these several tracts may be held under different tenures as, for instance, when one tract is owned by the farmer and another is rented by him. Thus if a man who owns 100 acres, rents an additional ten acres from some one else and operates both the 100 acres and the 10 acres, then his "farm" includes both tracts of land comprising 110 acres.

By the same token when a landowner has one or more tenants, renters, croppers or managers, each different tract of land operated by any such tenant, renter, cropper or manager is considered a separate and distinct farm by the census bureau. Or, to give an example, if a man owning 120 acres of land rents 40 acres to a tenant and farms the remaining 80 acres himself, his farm is the 80 acres which he operates, not the 120 acres which he owns, while the 40-acre tract which he rents to a tenant comprises a separate farm to be reported in the name of the tenant.

Another question to be determined is how important does an agricultural enterprise have to be in order to secure recognition in the census as a farm? A small vegetable garden or a chicken yard accommodating a few busy hens will not be allowed to qualify as a "farm" in the census no matter with what pardonable pride and satisfaction the proprietor may view his agricultural enterprise.

But if the garden or chicken yard expands until it covers not less than three acres of ground, or until it requires for its care the continuous services of at least one person, or yields products annually to the value of $250 or more, it comes within the census definition of a farm and will be recognized as such and counted. The agricultural schedule contains many questions regarding farm values, expenses and live stock as well as the acreage and quantity of crops raised in the year 1919. Census bureau officials are urging farmers everywhere to prepare for the census enumerator by looking over their books and records so that accurate answers may be furnished to questions.

In this connection the bureau of the census emphasizes the fact that the information furnished to census takers is absolutely confidential, made so by act of congress, and that under no circumstances can any such information be used as a basis for taxation.

"Co-operation between farmers and the census officials next January is more necessary and vital than ever before," declares Director of the Census Sam. L. Rogers. "The farmer played in it and will continue to play in the rehabilitation of Europe serve to make the agriculture section of the fourteenth decennial census the most important in the nation's history. Absolute accuracy and completeness in the census returns is the goal toward which every citizen should strive."

drove CLEMENCEAU TO FIELD

Former Paris Cab Driver, Now in America, Tells of French Premier's Dueling Days.

Running a chicken ranch near Tacoma, Wash., is a man named Nicholas Thien, who, in his younger days was cab driver to Clemenceau, and who has accompanied the French premier to many a combat on the "field of honor."

"No one in any country," he remarked the other day, standing among his chickens, "has fought so many duels as M'sieu Clemenceau. They came from what he wrote in his paper. But he was so strong. He always won. No adversary could hold a sword against him."

"It was against the law, of course," added the old Frenchman seventy-two now, in a whisper, "so we always slipped out of the city for these fights."

M'sieu Thien's cab stand used to be in front of L'Intransigeant, Clemenceau's paper. Almost nightly, he says, the present premier would come out of his office and hail cab 8088.

"He got the name 'Tiger,'" M. Thien explains, "because he was always the boss, like the big striped cat is the boss of all animals."

"Ah, my friend, those were the happy days! Of course I will not insult my chickens. They are good ones," as chickens go. But it is a tame life here. I dream often of the old days when M'sieu Clemenceau would hail me long about two o'clock in the morning and we'd be off."

KEPT SHOES AS ORNAMENTS

American Footgear Considered by Unfortunate Serbian Woman as Altogether Too Beautiful to Wear.

Anything that will keep the feet from the ground is considered a shoe in Serbia.

In the remote rural districts of the country it is said that many of the people live and die without owning a pair of shoes. In the bitterest weather they travel through mud and snow without adequate foot covering. They consider themselves fortunate if they can secure old gunny sacks or heavy cloth, which they tie about their feet with twine in winter.

The first American-made shoes that were distributed by the American Red Cross created a tremendous stir among the people of the distant villages. One old woman who had never owned a pair before took the shoes that had been given to her to her home and put them on a shelf above the fireplace. She was as pleased as a child to own them, but nothing could induce her to wear them. She said that she intended to save them for fetes, or perhaps for her burial. They were "much too beautiful to be worn," she said.

Gem's Romantic History.

Truly romantic is the story of the Braganza diamond, a stone of 1,600 carats, and "as large as a goose's egg," which, for more than a century, has been the proudest possession of the Portuguese crown. This amazing stone, which Mr. Streeter, the great authority on gems, has valued at $58,000,000, was picked up by three Brazilian outlaws in the half-dried bed of the Abate river, in the province of Minas Geraes.

The outlaws took the stone to the nearest village priest, who obtained access for them to the governor, into whose possession it was given. The diamond, the largest and finest hitherto found, was dispatched to Lisbon, with the result that the three outlaws received the royal pardon and a rich reward, while the padre to whose friendly offices they owed their good fortune was given high preferment in the church.

Flower Gardens of Holland.

It was only after the fall of Constantinople in 1453 that Holland became a gay land of flowers as it now is. Many Dutchmen went to the East during the years of the great crusades, and those of them who loved beautiful things brought seeds with them. When these were planted in the rich soil of Holland such wonderful flowers appeared as had never before been seen in that country. The people became wildly enthusiastic over the new colors and scents and foliage brought to them from the East, and in Holland there sprang up a great love for gardening.

Orchid Hard to Secure.

Nearly all the orchids found in Burma can be grown with a little care and attention in private gardens. There is one exception, a sweet-smelling species called tazin by the Burmese, and which is usually brought to market in Christmas week in Rangoon. It only seems to flower in the most malarious and least frequented localities, and at a time of the year which is the tigers' mating season, and when they are most dangerous to human beings. It is in great demand by Burmese and sells for its weight in silver.

What Mother Wanted.

I heard a knock at my door the other morning and on answering it found my neighbor's small son.

"Mother wants to borrow your lemon—lemon—" I at once knew he wanted my lemon squeezer, but he always finds some way to express himself I did not offer to help him out.

Again he started and, with suggestive motions of his hands, said: "Mother wants your lemon—O, I know now—your lemon hugger."—Exchange.
