Ceremony Performed at Home of Bride's Parents in Presence of Thirty Friends

A pretty wedding occurred Tuesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Emerson when their daughter, Lenore J. Emerson, became the bride of Carl G. Johnson, an employe of the Miller Jewelry store. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Law of the Methodist church in the presence of about 30 relatives and friends of the young people. Both the young people are well known in Pullman and have scores of friends who extend well wishes. Little interest was manifested in the special election until late afternoon, when some opposition developed, because of a misunderstanding of the intentions of the board, and the friends of the measure hurried to the polls to vote the added maintenance funds. The money derived from the five mill tax will be required to pay teachers' salaries and other expenses of the district which have increased considerably the past few years, in keeping with present day conditions.

MRS. FRANK FORMAN ANSWERS LAST CALL

Beloved Matron Succumbs After Four Weeks Illness—Leaves Husband and Two Little Daughters

Mrs. Frank Forman, aged 27 years, nine months and 24 days, succumbed to heart disease, with complications, at the Northwest sanitarium last Saturday, after suffering for four weeks from the malady. Funeral services were held from the Catholic church Monday morning, in charge of Father Carl Philipp, and interment was in the City cemetery. The services were largely attended and the floral tributes were profuse and beautiful, attesting the high esteem in which Mrs. Forman was held by her many Pullman friends. Members of the K. of C. of Colfax served as pall bearers.

Marie Krepova was born at Prostejov, Moravia, November 27, 1892. In 1913 she came to America to become the bride of Frank Forman, who had previously worked for her father in the old country, but had come to America three years before and had located in Pullman, where he followed his trade as a tailor.

Through her sunny disposition and kindly characteristics Mrs. Forman soon cultivated a wide acquaintance and endeared herself to the entire community. Quiet and unassuming, a lover of home and a devoted wife, her cup of happiness was filled to overflowing when the two little daughters, Marie, aged six, and Frances, aged four, came to bless the home. Four weeks ago she was stricken with the malady which claimed her life, and for several days before her death her life was despaired of. Friday evening, however, she appeared to rally, and after spending a restful night seemed to be on the road to recovery. The husband, after many long hours at her bedside, returned to his business, happy in the belief that his beloved one was to be spared him. He was summoned back to the hospital, however, and the Angel of Death descended, Mrs. Forman sinking into the long and restful sleep peacefully and without suffering.

Mrs. Forman is survived by her husband and two daughters, as well as by her parents and two brothers and two sisters in the old country. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Forman had any relatives here, although a cousin of Mrs. Forman is now on his way to America to enter the employ of Mr. Forman here.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mr. Forman and the two little girls in their sad bereavement. The daughters are being cared for by Mrs. Ray Atherton, who nursed the mother during her final illness, and Mr. Forman also will make his home with the Athertons, his desire being to keep the family together.
