WORLD CHAMPION TYPIST AT HIGH SCHOOL

William F. Oswald, the world champion typist for the year 1919, gave an exhibition of his skill at the Pullman high school on June 3. Mr. Oswald was accompanied by J. B. Patterson, manager of the Spokane branch of the Underwood Typewriter company.

Mr. Oswald gave some interesting demonstrations of the part that concentration plays in speed typewriting. While writing at the rate of 128 words a minute he carried on a conversation, answering questions which were asked him.

He wrote for one minute at the rate of 142 words from copy matter. This is the exact rate at which he won the world championship in 1919. However, on that occasion he wrote for 60 consecutive minutes and deducted 10 words for every error he made.

Mr. Patterson states that Pullman will probably have the pleasure of seeing Mr. Oswald again next year.
