

UNIQUE FACTORY.

THERE ARE WONDERFUL MACHINES, BUT NO VISIBLE PRODUCT.

Whirling Belts and Whirling Pulleys in a Noisy Workshop—Some of the Odd Things Done by Women—Suggested a Lamentable Analogy to the Reporter.

Without any question whatever, it is the most unique factory in New York. When you enter the door, the whirl and buzz of machinery distracts your ears. You see belts and pulleys in rapid motion; you feel the heat of the engine which keeps all the machinery going, and you know that you are in a place where something or other is being manufactured.

It is hard, however, to discover just what the machinery is doing, and the polite attendant who meets you at the door gives you no clew of it as he ushers you into the noisy workshop.

I visited this establishment the other day at the suggestion of a friend, who said it was the queerest place in Gotham and had "never been written up."

The machinery was placed on one side of a long, sunny room. On the other side of the room were a dozen velvet couches, on which were reclining muffled up figures. As I entered, a figure arose and the attendant who met me at the door gave you no clew of it as he ushers you into the noisy workshop.

DELIGHTFULLY ROMANTIC.

A Stage Held Up and a Maid Carried Off by a Good Looking Bad Man. A romantic case of kidnaping occurred the other day in the country back of Manhattan. The stage between Rosario and Manhattan, which left the former place, stopped at 1 a. m. the next day at Agua Caliente, where another passenger, a young and pretty girl, was taken on. She was Carolina Newman, daughter of a poor blind woman living at Manhattan. There were two other passengers, a man and a woman.

The stage left Agua Caliente at 2 a. m. and had gone only a couple of leagues when the driver suddenly reined up at a call from the roadside, where four men on horseback sat coolly pointing revolvers at his head. There was no demand for coin, and from the quiet manner of the highwaymen the driver could draw no idea of the nature of their demands. While one man held a gun pointed at the driver, and another attended the horses the others dismounted, stepped to the end of the coach and courteously requested the young lady to come out. The girl recognized the larger man, a magnificent looking fellow, as Jose Valdez, her rejected lover, and declining the plot he begged the passengers to save her. Valdez warned them to do nothing, and as they had no firearms they dared not protest against the actions of the bold robbers.

After urging Miss Newman to come out without a word, Valdez and his companion laid hold of her and carried her to the horses, placing her upon one and tying her to the saddle. The girl's shrieks and tears had no effect either in hurrying the men or arousing their pity. When they were again mounted and ready to leave, Valdez turned to the driver and said calmly, "Go, friend, and excuse me for molesting you."

The driver lost no time in accepting the permission, and the agitated passengers inside did not breathe easily until they saw the party, with the girl in the center, gallop over a hill. The driver and passengers reported the matter on arriving at Mazatlan and gave the names of Librado and Bernardo Valdez and Rufino Zatarain, as the accomplices of Jose Valdez, the first two being his cousins.

Valdez is a dare devil and spendthrift, and though of good family bears a very bad reputation. He was rejected by Miss Newman, who is a highly respected girl of American birth. The project of the district of Concordia, in which Agua Caliente is situated, has charge of a party of rurales searching for Valdez, and strong efforts are being made to capture the villain. His hiding place is unknown. News of her daughter's capture prostrated the mother in Mazatlan.—San Diego Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

A THURIFER GUILD. English Clergymen Agitated Over the Question of Income Taxing. Two subjects are at present greatly exercising the minds of many clergymen of the Church of England—one is the startling falling off in their incomes owing to the long continued and increasing agricultural depression, and the other is the use of income in churches. The latter is always a prominent topic of clerical discussion about Christmas time, but this year it seems to create more interest than usual, owing to the growing prevalence of the practice.

There are now so many servers, acolytes and other altar assistants engaged in lighting and assisting thrifters in the churches of England that they seriously propose to form themselves into a guild or society for the promotion of income taxing. The name suggested for it is the "Thurifer Guild." One of its objects will be a study of the history of the practice and the best manner of manufacturing orthodox and sweet smelling incense in an expeditious and economic manner.—London Telegraph.

The Congo Railroad. The opening of the first section of the Congo railroad passed almost unnoticed in this country, chiefly because it is due to Belgian enterprise. But for all that, British traders already realize the vast possibilities involved and are actively preparing to obtain a share of the new trade. The road at present extends from Matadi to Kenge, and thence will be pushed as rapidly as possible to Stanley pool. The list of freight charges has been published in the chief European ports, and two British and one German steamship line have made Matadi a port of call. It is confidently predicted that a Congo boom is about to commence, and that King Leopold will soon be within measurable distance of reward for his courage and patience.—London Letter.

The Singer Family Abroad. It is extraordinary how the Singer family has managed to mix itself up with the aristocracy of France. With nothing but a huge fortune and a large stock of eccentricity the original old Singer married no less than 19 women, covering a wide range of position and character. He numbered his descendants by the score, and these it is who have managed to ally themselves with some of the proudest families in Europe. At the recent wedding of Mrs. Winnetta Singer in Paris to Prince Melchior de Polignac there was a great gathering of the Singer clans, and they bore such names as Rochefoucauld, Decazes, Murat, Modena and Dudley.—Cholly Knickerbocker in New York Recorder.

An Old Goose. It is positively asserted that a prominent farmer living near Elliott City, Md., has in his possession a goose which he estimated the rather astonishing age of 90 years. The bird was purchased by its present owner in 1890, and was then 23 years old. It is as sprightly now, it is stated, as in its appearance to indicate such an advanced age. In a discussion by several old fowl fanciers here regarding the ages of different birds it was affirmed that geese often lived to such an age, and even a longer period.

The Women's Movement in Germany. The women's movement in Germany is making great progress. The congress called by the lady delegates to the World's fair at Chicago met in Berlin recently, and it is the intention of the ladies to form a union of all the charitable and humane societies in Germany in order that the work of the societies may be conducted upon a broader plan. A thorough exchange of views between the different societies is proposed, and it seems likely that the movement will have a decidedly beneficial effect upon the female mind in Germany.

The Canadian Ten Cent Piece. The Canadian silver ten cent piece, which used to be worked upon the way at all ferry offices, railway stations and like places in New York, seems almost entirely to have disappeared. Even the street car conductors no longer keep a choice selection of these coins in a special pocket for the benefit of nearsighted men and indiscriminating women. The coin would pass with the utmost ease now, as in device, weight and size it is nearer the new dime than the old.—New York Item.

HIS APOLOGY FOR CROSS WORDS.

It Was a Wicked Scheme, but the Nevada Cowboy Frightened the Lady. "On my overland trip to San Francisco I was treated to the exhibition of a rough ranchman put very much on his good behavior," said a New York lady. "We had got out at one of the stations in Nevada for dinner. I have forgotten the name of the place, but ever I noted it, but if it wasn't forty flat it was named. Not feeling hungry, I leaned back in my chair, idly looking at the distant sand hills through the open window opposite, unmindful of the rattle of knives and plates around me. A rough voice at my very ear startled me from my dream.

"Here, why the hell don't you pass me the butter?" "It came from the nearer one of two stalwart, sunburned men, who seemed to be ranchmen or miners. They sat beside me in dusty high top boots and rough peajackets, with their broad brimmed hats on, and were eating as if they had long arrears to make up in the way of square meals.

"Imagine my astonishment at such a summons, which I made no doubt was addressed to me. But I was too much intimidated to be indignant and hastily handed him not only the butter, but everything else within my reach. At this he looked round at me for the first time, and his look of amazement showed that he was worse taken back than I had been. He did not thank me, but took his hat off and put it under his chair, and nudging his companion said in an awestricken stage whisper:

"I say, Jim, take your hat off. She's a lady." "Then, evidently wishing to make further amends for his discourtesy, he again turned to me: "Say, marm, hev yer ever seen a live wildcat? Cause if yer ain't I've got one outside here I caught myself, an' I'll take you out after we get through eatin' an show it ter ye."

"I thanked him and said I would be very glad to see it, as I had never seen one. After dinner, having still 10 minutes to spare, we went to see the wildcat. It was in a rough wooden box with wooden bars, cringing as far back as it could get, with its eyes gleaming like coals of fire. When one of the men offered it a piece of meat on the end of a stick, it made a spring that seemed as if it would break through the bars, but the stick had a sharp point that made it beat a hasty retreat, though not before it had secured the meat, over which it snarled viciously. Its owner told me he had brought it to the station to send it to a friend who kept a 'chubhouse,' whatever that is, in Carson City. I asked him to tell us how he caught it, but before he could answer the conductor called out, 'All aboard!' As the train got under way I looked back and saw my two friends flying across the country on their Mustangs.—New York Sun.

Stage Drivers of Early Days. Speaking of stage drivers reminds one of the glory of stages, which reached its crowning point when rival lines ran between Sacramento and Virginia, Nev. Six magnificent horses to each coach, the coaches the finest possible, the horses caparisoned with every ornament which could be added to enhance their beauty. The driver, in a bearskin coat and cap, bearing a gaudy, was a little sovereign in his way. No matter what the grade was, no matter how fierce the blizzard or how deep the snow, he carried nothing for snowdrifts or high water, and his ruling idea was that he must make the station ahead of the opposition line.

In this work there were a dozen men, each with a personality of his own and all with a perfect art in their hands and their brains which made them sovereigns, and the locomotive that succeeded them did not very much increase the time which some of them made. Each had his friends, his champions; each was greatest in his sphere among a certain crowd, but they were altogether great. The like of them was never before and never will be again.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Deep Sea Thermometer. The deep sea thermometer, as invented abroad and improved by officers of the United States navy, is a marvelously ingenious and effective contrivance. It is in effect a self registering instrument, though not technically so called. The thermometer is so arranged that it is automatically turned up down when the machinery begins to draw it up from the depth at which the temperature is to be ascertained. The effect of the inverted process is to break the column of mercury, and a small portion of the column remains in the upper end of the tube, exactly enough to measure the temperature at the moment of inversion. The tube is graduated so as to read from either end, and the quantity of mercury that it does not respond to any but great and sudden changes of temperature. It thus happens that the reading, when the thermometer reaches the surface, is practically correct for the temperature at the point of inversion.—Kansas City Times.

A Rare Chance. Mother—Yes, my dear. I know that he is very much older than you are. He is one of the old fashioned gentlemen, the only one of the old stock left unmarried, and I advise you to take him. Daughter—But why? He is not even rich. Mother—Wealth does not bring happiness, my daughter. Like his father before him, he will do his own marketing, and if the steak is tough you can growl at him instead of him at you.—New York Weekly.

Early Depravity. "Papa," asked Tommy Goodman, "who was Cain's wife?" "Caroline," said the Rev. Dr. Goodman after an ominous pause, addressing his wife, "will you please hand me my services slipper and leave the room! There is going to be a trial for heresy right here and right now."—Chicago Tribune.

Their Mission. Two women journalists have been sent on a tour of the world by the Dundee Courier and Weekly News. They are Miss F. Marro Inman and Miss Bessie Maxwell, and their purpose is not to put a girldo round the earth in 80 days as Nellie Bly and Miss Bissland did for American journals, but to study the social and economic conditions of women in the various countries they visit. Their trip will cover 28,000 miles.—San Francisco Argonaut.

One of Europe's Beauties. Princess Yousouppoff, who has just died at her home near Paris, was once one of the most beautiful women in Europe. As a very early age she was a widow and refused many offers of marriage. However, when more than 60 years old she fell in love with a young man named Chauveau and became his wife. Two years ago he died, and the princess returned to her country home and there passed away. Princess Yousouppoff had an income of $250,000 annually, and her turquoises are said to be the most wonderful in the world.—Paris Journal.

Women's Feet Growing Larger.

It is now an open fact that feet are growing larger as a consequence of the outdoor life led by so many girls of the period. The tiny slipper once so revered in poetry and prose as a positive inspiration when worn by pretty women will come to be regarded as an article of antiquarian relic, dating from a time when feet were practically unshod, their owners being as adverse to active service as a lap dog. The heavy tread of the beetle-crushing foot will be heard in the land, and even ultra-fashionables will have to confess to five, six or seven as their sizes.—Providence Journal.

Elder S. S. Beaver, of McAllisterville, Juniata Co., Pa., says his wife is subject to cramp in the sto-ach. Last summer she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for it, and was much pleased with the speedy relief it afforded. She has since used it whenever necessary and found that it never failed. For sale by Janek's Pharmacy.
