THE YAKIMA HERALD.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1901.

NORTH YAKIMA NEWS NOTES.

There are a number of cases of chicken pox in the city.

T. H. McNeice is preparing to build a fine residence in the east part of the city.

Joseph Ponti, the Prosser pioneer, was a business visitor to North Yakima last Saturday.

E. A. McDonald, state food and dairy commissioner, came over last Friday and remained till Saturday.

Among the attractions Christmas evening is the masquerade ball in the Armory. Everybody is invited.

Last Saturday was the shortest day of the year. From now until the 21st of June the days will gradually grow longer.

There was a large audience at the M. E. church last Wednesday night to hear the lecture of Quincy Lee Morrow, the temperance lecturer.

Mr. Embrie, purchasing agent for the British government, shipped six cars of Yakima horses to New York last week to be sent to South Africa.

George Aldrich of Freeburn, Minn., is here looking over the country with a view to locating. He is now the guest of his old friend, A. E. Larson.

T. D. Quinn, who moved to this city from the Wenas some time ago, will soon begin the erection of a fine residence on his 10-acre tract west of the city.

Miss Maud Williams has resigned as teacher of the Wenas schools on account of sickness. Miss New, a recent arrival from Oregon, has been appointed to fill the unexpired term.

George W. Hubbard, who has been here for the past three months buying hops, returned to his home in Los Angeles, last week. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hubbard.

Inter-State Fisheries' stock will pay dividends within one year. Get in on ground the floor at 10 cents per share. See Erwin & Johnstone at H. B. Scudder & Company's office. 51

The musical talent of Yakima City will give a cantata next Sunday under the leadership of Mrs. Carmichels. The subject of the cantata is "Emanuel." A collection will be taken up during the exercises.

A second-hand Piano, almost new, can be had, if taken at once, for $175.00. This instrument is guaranteed for five years. Apply quick for terms if you want a real snap. Briggs & Dam. 51-t

G. M. McKinney of this city has been appointed general immigration agent of the Southern Pacific railway. Mr. McKinney was formerly assistant general immigration agent of the Northern Pacific railway.

The Selah Valley Irrigation company has had a force of men at work for the past two weeks enlarging the ditch. It is the plan of the company to make a new lateral and bring under cultivation several hundred more acres of land.

The following land office entries were made last week for homesteads in the Horse Heaven country: Charles A. Cleveland, George Balenbolt, Edgar L. Lovell, Edward H. Hertig, Lucien Genevay, Herman D. Vaughn, Odilon Caron, Edson J. and Samuel Sharpe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mahlhutter of Albert Lea, Minn., stopped off here last week to see their old friend, A. E. Larson, while on their way east from the Sound country. They expect to come back here in the spring and make this valley their future home.

Miss Hazel Suver, daughter of Chas. W. Suver, of this place, who has been going to school at the North Yakima Convent for three years, came home on Friday last to spend her vacation as usual, and will return to school the first of the year. Prof. Conolly and wife, of North Yakima, are now permanently located in Ellensburg. They have rented the Dr. Power house on Ruby street.—Ellensburg Localizer.

All the schools in the county closed last Friday for a week's vacation. Exercises held in some of the schools, but in most of them just the formal closing exercises were performed. During vacation the defective heater in the Central school will be replaced by a new one and better service will hereafter be given to that building. It is likely that some time in January two new teachers will be added to the schools, owing to the big increase in the attendance over last year.

High School Notes.

The High school dismissed last Friday for a two weeks' vacation. The other schools in the city get but one week, but as the High school held sessions during institute week they get a two week's vacation now.

Frederick Warde, the actor, paid the High school a visit and gave them a most enjoyable talk upon "The Oratory of Shakespeare." He was met at his hotel by the Cadet corps and escorted to the High school building, where he was royally welcomed.

The High school attended "The Mountebank" in a body, and at the fall of the curtain on the last act, rose and gave three cheers for Frederick Warde, followed by the High school yell.

A Christmas offering was given by the pupils, which embraced money and articles of use to the poor. It is the intention to turn the offering over to the Salvation Army for distribution among those who need it most.

Scoops All the Other Papers.

What we do know is that this paper "scoops" them both regularly every week in the matter of local news.—Yakima Democrat.

He does indeed—"scoops" the whole business. It's a great snap to issue a paper the latter end of the week after all the other papers in the city have been printed. The expense of hiring a reporter is thus entirely eliminated.

THE DOODLESACK.

The Noley Instrument Has Lived and Spread in Spite of Its Musical Denouncers.

A writer in the Athenaeum asserts that bagpipe music has "suffered greatly through the efforts of well-meaning but mistaken people to lift it out of its proper place and graft it on to city life and its inside entertainments." To compare its music with "classical productions" is "like comparing 'tatties and herring with wine jellies.'" A Chicago jury once decided that the bagpipe was not a musical instrument at all. But why quarrel with a definition? Enough that it has lived through some bad crises. When that phase of life in which it was born and brought up passed away, it declined to be moved into the background. In short, it had the will to live without the adventitious aids of cranks and of congresses, because it answers a primitive want. Indeed, nothing could be more ironic than the fact that the military organization which did much to crush out everything that had made it a power should have been so completely conquered by it that there are now two-and-twenty pipe bands in the British army. The bagpipe has been annexed by some of the native Indian regiments, notably those in the Punjab, and it continues to spread there as a great military instrument.

THE AMERIND.

There Has Been an Attempt to Give a New Name to Our Aborigines.

An amerind is not, as anyone might be excused for surmising, an East Indian 'dote in a thin shell. That is a tamarind. An amerind is not a fruit at all. It is a name invented by the Anthropological society in Washington, and intended as a substitute for American Indian. A writer, M. Dellenbaugh, who has published a book about "The North Americans of Yesterday," is denounced by a reviewer of the Evening Post because all through his book he speaks of Indians as amerinds, says E. S. Martin, in Harper's Weekly. The Post's reviewer thinks he ought to be ashamed, and there seems to be due basis for that opinion. A got-up name like amerind may do for anthropologists, but it cannot hope to pass current among real people. If there is objection to calling our aborigines Indians because it has turned out that they don't live in India, the simplest remedy is to call them injuns. There is no ambiguity about injun. Everyone knows that it is American and not Asiatic. Moreover, it is a word that has come up from the plain people, and such a word, as we all know, has a far better chance to survive than any remedial epithet that is thought out and launched by the learned.

AN ODD MEXICAN SPORT.

Tarantulas Fitted Against One Another by the Youths Battle to the Death.

"The Mexican boys in Lower California," said a returned traveler, relates the Detroit Free Press, "have a curious habit of catching the tarantulas, with which the country abounds, and matching them in deadly combat, betting their centavos with all the enthusiasm of a gambler at Monte Carlo. "It was my fortune to witness one of these combats, and, while I would not care to adopt the sport as a regular thing, I found the experience interesting as an illustration of a curious custom.

"The deadly arena was composed of a large tin pan, the flaring sides of which held the combatants prisoners and yet allowed them plenty of room to fight in. When the hideous-looking things were thrown in the pan they eyed each other for a moment and then clutched like a couple of tigers, while the Mexican youths yelled words of encouragement to their favorites. "From the comments that I heard I took it that there were fine points to the game that I did not understand. All I saw was a horrible, hairy ball from which protruded in all directions a number of hairy legs that suddenly grew still, as death claimed the victims."

A MAN OF METAL.

Young German Porter Carried a Heavy Load of Shot Underneath His Skin.

The "Iron Chancellor" has disappeared, says the Westminster Gazette, but there is still a Teuton very much alive who is "a man of iron" in an almost literal sense of the term. This came out a few days ago when a young German porter bragged at a public house that he was a man of iron, since a sportsman had discharged at least 90 grains of shot into his back. He would have nothing to do with surgeons, wherefore his brother had removed about half of the "load" by the simple expedient of cutting the shots out with a knife. The story was presently brought before the authorities, and the porter was medically examined, with the result that his story proved absolutely true. His back and arms were "larded" with lead balls, which he carried about without any discomfort whatever. The reason for his reluctance to approach a surgeon seems to have been that the sportsman who had thus marked him was a gamekeeper, and it was while he was on a poaching expedition that ill-luck thus befell him.
