We All Eat to Live, but many do not enjoy the best food, when they can easily do so without additional cost. It's all in your grocery house. Some grocers buy cheap stuff because there is more money in it for them. A reliable grocer looks to the future, and buys the best, in order that he may have your continued patronage. Such we claim to be. Our aim is to give satisfaction. All the delicacies, as well as staple groceries carried in stock. Prompt delivery.

AN ODD MEXICAN SPORT.

Tarantulas Pitted Against One Another by the Youths Battle to the Death.

"The Mexican boys in Lower California," said a returned traveler, relates the Detroit Free Press, "have a curious habit of catching the tarantulas, with which the country abounds, and matching them in deadly combat, betting their centavos with all the enthusiasm of a gambler at Monte Carlo."

"It was my fortune to witness one of these combats, and, while I would not care to adopt the sport as a regular thing, I found the experience interesting as an illustration of a curious custom."

"The deadly arena was composed of a large tin pan, the flaring sides of which held the combatants prisoners and yet allowed them plenty of room to fight in. When the hideous-looking things were thrown in the pan they eyed each other for a moment and then clutched like a couple of tigers, while the Mexican youths yelled words of encouragement to their favorites."

"From the comments that I heard I took it that there were fine points to the game that I did not understand. All I saw was a horrible, hairy ball from which protruded in all directions a number of hairy legs that suddenly grew still, as death claimed the victims."

A MAN OF METAL.

Young German Porter Carried a Heavy Load of Shot Underneath His Skin.

The "Iron Chancellor" has disappeared, says the Westminster Gazette, but there is still a Teuton very much alive who is "a man of iron" in an almost literal sense of the term. This came out a few days ago when a young German porter bragged at a public house that he was a man of iron, since a sportsman had discharged at least 90 grains of shot into his back. He would have nothing to do with surgeons, wherefore his brother had removed about half of the "load" by the simple expedient of cutting the shots out with a knife. The story was presently brought before the authorities, and the porter was medically examined, with the result that his story proved absolutely true. His back and arms were "larded" with lead balls, which he carried about without any discomfort whatever. The reason for his reluctance to approach a surgeon seems to have been that the sportsman who had thus marked him was a gamekeeper, and it was while he was on a poaching expedition that ill-luck thus befell him.

WASN'T GOING TO THE CIRCUS.

Afraid He Might Drink and Start in on an Animal Destroying Expedition.

"I had called at a Kentucky farmhouse for a drink of water about an hour after a traveling circus had passed over the same highway," writes our Southern Gentleman Tramp, relates the Detroit Free Press, "and as the man referred to the elephants and camels I naturally asked if he wasn't going to town to see the performance."

"Not skassly, sah—not skassly," was his prompt reply, "No, sah, it wouldn't do fur me to git clus up to them animals."

"You are not afraid of them?" I asked.

"Not a bit, sah."

"But I don't see anything about you to scare them."

"Nothing 'tall, sah, but it jest wouldn't do. If I went to that circus I'd take a big drink when I struck the town. Then I'd want another as I was lookin' around outside the tent, I'd take a third one as I started in, and I'd likely meet some friend with a bottle who'd offer me a fourth."

"Oh, I see. You mean you'd be too drunk to see the show?"

"No, sah, not 'tall. Them four drinks would be jest 'nuff to make me believe I could lick anything on legs in Kentucky, and what would be the result?"

"You'd get in a fight with somebody and be flung out."

"No skassly, sah—not skassly. I'd simply go fur them animals. I'd flop them six elephants on their backs, twist the necks of them four giraffes and knock the humps off them five camels before you could tote up 30 cents, and when they come to count up $80,000 damages where would Tom Scott be? I'd like to go, sah—I'd like to go powerful well, but knowing myself as well as I do, and not wishin' to bring about no calamity, I'm goin' to stay right home and hoe corn and let the elephants roar and the camels hump up their humps and be derned to 'em!"

A prize essay on temperance was recently published in Liverpool, England, but whoever adjudicated the prizes must have been fond of mixed metaphors. Here is a paragraph from the successful paper. The writer enlarged on the evil of sending children for beer, thus: "They sip some out of the jugs as they wend their way home, thus introducing the thin end of the wedge, which is certain to spring up into a harvest of drunkenness. Think, oh, think, of these weary little ones going down life's hill over a thorny road. They are bound to float out into eternity, with no hand to shake their dying pillow. Brethren, pray for them, and help to lift them out of the quicksands, which will burn into their very souls." It is alleged that when the author of this literary composition received a sovereign for his work he entered the nearest public house and got "gloriously drunk."

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van-Metre of Shepherdstown, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by C. C. Case and North Yakima Drug Store.

Traveling is Dangerous.

Constant motion jars the kidneys which are kept in place in the body by delicate attachments. This is the reason that travelers, trainmen, street car men, teamsters and all who drive very much, suffer from kidney disease in some form. Foley's Kidney Cure strengthens the kidneys and cures all forms of kidney and bladder disease. Geo. E. Hansen, locomotive engineer, Lima, O., writes: "constant vibration of the engine cut me a great deal of trouble with my kidneys, and I got no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Cure. Contest Notice.

United States Land Office, North Yakima, Wash., April 22, 1904. A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by H. M. Light, contestant, against homestead entry number 3290, and least entry number 413, amount $12, 1902, and Mar. 6, 1903, for the southeast quarter of section 20, township 11N, range 27 E, W. M., by Orin E. Gatchell, John P. Connor and Mary M. VanVechten, contestees, in which it is alleged that Orin E. Gatchell has failed to cultivate and improve said land as required by law; that said entryman has abandoned said land for more than six months last past, and that said alleged absence was not due to his employment in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps of the United States during any war in which the United States has been engaged. Contestant also alleges that Desert Entry No. 413, filed upon said land and March 6, 1903, by John P. Connor and afterwards assigned to Mary M. VanVechten, has not been completed nor has final proof been made upon the same within the period required by law, but said land is in its original wild desert state; said parties are hereby notified that applicant, respondent and contestee touching said allegations, at 10 o'clock a. m., on June 17, 1904, before the Register and Receiver at the United States Land Office in North Yakima, Washington.

The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit filed March 4, 1904, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice cannot be made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication. HENRY V. HINMAN, Register.
